EVERY INTELLIGENT American is interested in the constitution of the United States, as he is interested in the foundation of his house.

No matter how well one may think he knows the constitution, its value and power, he will do well to read "Constitutionism, The Origin of Liberty Under The Constitution."

This book by James Mussatti, former professor of history at the University of Southern California, is published by the Richard Blank Publishing company of Los Angeles, Cal.

HERE IS REAL political news. Dr. F. E. Townsend, who invented the old-age pension plan with $200 a month for everybody sixty years old, says he'll have a presidential candidate of his own for 1936.

"We can lick both parties, hands down," is his way of putting it. Dr. Townsend says he is tired of being "belittled;" he has 30,000,000 men and women who signed petitions asking congress to pass his bill, his 30,000,000 are all voters, "and if politicians do not think this constitutes a definite threat to the traditional parties they ought to brush up on politics."

DR. TOWNSEND SAYS, concerning candidates, "We'll take anybody, although we draw the line at communism."

The $200-a-month candidate will be announced at a national convention next summer and before the campaign is over that candidate may worry the Democratic party as much as Senator Huey Long could have worried it, had he lived. Two hundred dollars a month is a good deal of money.

ENGLAND HOPED that the League of Nations might really do useful work and united 52 against one to force Italy out of Ethiopia. Then the plan failed, partly because France wanted no war in Europe and probably told England that, if war came, England would have to take care of herself and learn, all alone, what airplanes could do to battleships and cities. So a peace plan was suggested, that included carving up Ethiopia.

HAILE SELASSIE complained that the "peace" proposition would give half or two-thirds of Ethiopia to Italy now, European nations reserving the right to take the rest for Italy or themselves later. That appeals feebly to Haile Selassie, as a "peace plan."

DIFFERENT MINDS inhabit different skulls; environment has much to do with the difference, heredity has more. John Lawrence Collins, who killed a man last June and will die in the electric chair next January, born in New Orleans, did not know who his father and mother were, "did not care." Two days ago he married a girl "because she was going to have a baby," but said "he didn't care whether he married the girl or not."

The judge sentenced him to death. Collins smiled, said "No," when asked if he had anything to say. When he started for Sing Sing prison to wait

SECRETARY PERKINS OFFERS NEW SOCIAL SECURITY PROGRAM

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Outlining a new seven-point social security program, Secretary Perkins called toright for cooperation of labor and management "with the government standing by to aid."

The labor secretary held such "cooperative activity and understanding" "not only would consolidate industrial gains since the depression's low point, but also would carry the nation into an era of "greater security."

While citing the "vital importance" of profits in industry, Miss Perkins told the New York County Lawyers' association that "good and steady wages for workers and fair prices for the produce of farmers" were necessary for a "sound" prosperity.

In Washington, meanwhile, George L. Berry, President Roosevelt's coordinator for industrial cooperation, postponed the first meeting of his new industrial council scheduled originally to meet "within a few days" after last Monday's turbulent labor-industry conference.

DENHAM SPRINGS MAN IS KILLED IN ROAD MISHAP

BATON ROUGE, La., Dec. 14.—(AP)—W. M. Brown, 65, of Denham Springs, La., was killed tonight when an automobile struck a parked truck in which he was seated near the Harelson community. State highway police said the automobile was driven by O. L Wright of Pride, La. No action was taken against Wright.

COTTON EXPORTS SHOOT UPWARD; AAA IS PLEASED

Officials See Increase As Part Of Long-Sought Answer To Critics

SHIPMENTS MORE THAN 2 TIMES AMOUNT IN 1934

Reports Of Climb May Become Campaign Ammunition Next Summer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14. — (AP) — Sharply increasing cotton exports today were described by AAA officials as part of their long-sought answer to opposition charges that crop control had ruined the nation's foreign agricultural market.

The commerce department today reported that exports in November were 1,134,874 bales or more than twice the 572,359 bales shipped during the same month last year. Secretary Wallace quickly stepped forward to add that the November exports were greater than the past ten year average for the month—1,117,000 bales.

"While the exports may not continue up to the ten year average," Wallace said, "we are very much pleased."

The agriculture secretary added that while the demand earlier in the season indicated an increase for 1935, the report for November showed the first major rise in shipments.

Exports for the four months ending

T. W. HOUSE, JR., COMMITS SUICIDE

Son-In-Law Of Former Illinois Governor Kills Himself In Texas

WACO, Texas, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Thomas William House, Jr., 31, nephew of Col. E. M. House and son-in-law of former Governor Charles Deneen of Illinois, was shot to death at his home here today, and Joe Trippet, assistant district attorney, pronounced the wounds self-inflicted.

Trippet said House left notes addressed to his wife and children saying, "I couldn't make the grade."

House, vice-president of the Texas Long Distance Telephone company, was found fatally wounded in the basement of his home at 8:30 a.m. He had been shot four times in the chest, one bullet making a flesh wound and the other three going through the body.

He was dead upon reaching a hospital, but a physician, called by Mrs. House, reached the scene before he died. The presence of the physician satisfied legal requirements and no inquest was held.

The physician, Dr. F. W. Hoehn, said House died of bullet wounds in the chest, but did not discuss how the wounds were inflicted.

T. W. House, Sr., father of the dead man, came here by airplane from Houston immediately after learning of his son's death, but like other members of the family, declined to discuss the shooting.

The body probably will be sent to Houston for burial. Plans were not complete late today.

House had been here about eight months. Previously he had been stationed in Cincinnati, New Orleans, and Washington, D. C.

Besides the widow, survivors include a daughter, Bess Ashly, 3, born in Cincinnati, and another daughter, Bina Loulie, born here three weeks ago.

MISSISSIPPI BRIDGE READY FOR DEDICATION

'VIBRATING' BOY MYSTERY SOLVED

Physician Says Lad Becomes 'Human Echo', Reproduces Noises

HAWKSHEAD, Lancashire, Eng., Dec. 14.—(AP)—The mystery of seven-year-old Frank Atkinson, who "vibrates" when he sleeps and whose body produces strange "knockings," has been solved—in principle at least.

Through some unknown physiological process, doctors said they had determined the boy, while asleep, becomes a "human echo" and reproduces a noise created anywhere near him.

Dr. W. E. Allen, a local physician, said today his parents still cling to the belief their son is the victim of some unworldly force. They refuse to let the boy be placed in the care of a specialist.

"I am convinced an abnormal nervous system is responsible for the weird sounds apparently emanating from the boy's abdomen." Dr. Allen said. "Tests with the boy sleeping in a neighbor's home had no variant results."

For some time the story of the boy has brought talk of ghosts and of supernatural powers. To soothe public fears Dr. Allen, with several

OLSON RENEWS HIS REQUEST FOR AID OF FEDERAL MEN

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 14.—(AP)—State officials, who refused to take "no" for an answer, today challenged Attorney General Homer S. Cummings either to approve federal inquiry of the Liggett assassination or disclose the evidence on which he "indicted the reputations" of the Twin Cities.

Their first appeal for federal handling of the case rejected yesterday by Cummings, Gov. Floyd B. Olson and State's Attorney General H. H. Peterson today renewed their request and expressed conviction a government inquiry "will disclose a violation of federal law."

Cummings, more than a year ago, branded the Twin Cities "poison spots of crime." The Minnesota officials advised Cummings this "created an obligation upon you to honor our requests for the use of department of justice operatives."

WALT CAGLE FIXES DATE FOR ANNUAL HOG KILLIN' TIME

BOAZ, Ala., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Hog killin' time and the official start of winter for Boaz has been set for next Wednesday by Sand mountain's own Walt Cagle.

Walt, seated comfortably in his farm home at Mountain Borough, promised today to make his annual appearance in Boaz at that time to pick up his winter wardrobe of oversized clothes and receive what is expected to be a gala welcome.

For more than 20 years the appearance of 550-pound Walt Cagle has signalized the beginning of winter for Sand mountain, just as has his annual order for size 74 overalls, underwear, and 12 1-2 size shoes meant repeated plaints from manufacturers that "there can't be a man that big—are you sure the size is correct?"

OKLAHOMA AREA IS QUARANTINED

County Health Authorities Work To Halt Outbreak Of Meningitis

HOBART, Okla., Dec. 14.—(AP)—With an entire county under strict quarantine, health authorities worked tonight to halt an outbreak of meningitis that has caused one known death and possibly several more.

Records of Dr. J. L. Adams, Kiowa county health officer, showed one death, that of five-year-old Edgar A. Studdard, definitely ascribed to meningitis.

"There have been nine other deaths recently that may have been from the disease," he said. "However, no post-mortem examinations were made. Hence we can suspect only from the illnesses of those who came in contact with the dead that any or all of the nine deaths may have been caused by it."

Nine illnesses in the county of 29,630 population definitely were diagnosed as meningitis cases by Dr. Adams tonight.

Two other cases, not definitely diagnosed, were being treated for meningitis. Three others were being studied.

Business men, workers and farmers accepted the quarantine quietly. Merchants who had advertised heavily, expecting this week-end to be one of the biggest of the Christmas season, regretted the wholesale shutdown. They were quick, however, to urge strict observance of the quarantine.

Travel on main highways was not halted, but all public assemblages were banned and grocery and drug

INDIGNATION SERVICE IS PLANNED AT TAMPA

TAMPA, Fla., Dec. 14.—(AP)—A public service of penitence and indignation Sunday afternoon will crystallize Tampa's sentiment against the flogging death of Joseph Shoemaker for which no one has been arrested.

The Tampa Ministerial association will conduct the service in advance of a grand jury investigation of the killing which starts Monday. The Rev. Walter Metcalf, president of the association, said:

"The meeting is for the purpose of creating a deep moral tone of indignation and penitence and a consciousness deep in our civic sense of the general condition in Tampa." He did not define the "general condition."

SECRET ACTIONS SHADOW PARLEY

Conference Works To Extricate Itself From Jap Parity Demands

LONDON, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The shadow of secret diplomatic maneuvers fell tonight across the week-end naval conference, struggling to extricate itself from the complications of Japanese parity demands.

Uncertainty hinged on two developments, both originating with the Japanese.

Some observers expressed fear the conference might be turned into a "super-secret" session, coupled with the launching of separate talks. They said this might steer the conference on the rocks of bilateral conversations which wrecked preliminary negotiations last year.

The Americans were uneasy at this trend from the open round table discussions, which they feel are vital to avoid the playing off of one nation against the other.

Great Britain's delegation hastened to clear up the status of its private talk last night with the Japanese and said it was purely supplementary to the conference itself. Such talks among the various delegations are continuing from time to time.

Nevertheless, the feeling remained among observers that the Japanese are trying to drive a wedge between the Americans and the British in their opposition to Tokyo's equality proposal.

This seemed to be borne out by Tokyo dispatches hinting that equality in Japan's demands is equality with the United States.

No formal session of the conference was held today. Instead of a general session Monday, a secret meeting will be held attended only by delegates.

PALLBEARERS DOWN STRONG WHISKY AT DEIBEL'S FUNERAL

DENVER, Dec. 14.—(AP)—After a funeral in a barrom, pallbearers downed glasses of strong whisky today over the casket of George Deibel, eccentric rag picker.

Thus they fulfilled his last wish.

The toast was raised in the historic old barroom of the Windsor Hotel—once owned by the late H. A. W. Tabor, Colorado silver king.

Deibel, 90 and a bachelor, requested that his funeral be held in the room, frequented many years ago by some of Denver's most prominent residents.

He instructed Bishop Frank Rice of the Liberal church to serve the pallbearers "liquor of strong alcoholic content."

The toast was drunk to the tune of "It's Springtime in the Rockies," one of Deibel's favorites.

For 49 years Deibel drove through the alleys of Denver collecting junk. Bishop Rice said the business netted him a "comfortable amount."

MERRILL MOVES ON TO HUNT MISSING EXPLORER

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Pan American Airways radio system reported today Pilot Dick Merrill, flying a plane to the rescue of Lincoln Ellsworth, missing in the Antarctic, arrived in Tapachula, state of Merida, Mexico, at 5:18 p. m.

The flier planned to spend the night there and take off tomorrow morning, weather permitting, for Cristobal, Panama Canal Zone.

He took off from here shortly before noon today.

Governor Reported To Have Promised Hauptmann His Life Won't Be Taken

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann convicted murderer of the kidnaped Lindbergh baby, learned today that the week of January 13 has been set for his death in the electric chair.

With grave politeness he thanked the unnamed prison guard who brought him the news, and reiterated his conviction that "something will happen so I won't go to the chair."

A short time later he received a visit from his spiritual adviser, the Rev. John Matthiesen, of Trenton, who found him as cool and composed as he had been throughout the six weeks' trial at Flemington.

"He knew what was coming up," the minister said. "The news really made no impression on him. He is full of confidence in the fact that the state of New Jersey does not intend to permit a murder."

Should all of the eleventh hour efforts of his attorneys fail to save him, Hauptmann will probably go to the chair exactly a month from today. Al-

AMERICAN DOCTOR KILLED BY BOMB

Dr. Robert W. Hockman Dies When Unexploded Italian Shell Bursts

JIJIGA, Ethiopia, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The explosion of an Italian bomb has cost the life of a 28-year-old American missionary, Dr. Robert W. Hockman.

The former Wheaton, Ill., resident, was blown to death at Daggah Bur, on the southern front, while handling an unexploded Italian bomb yesterday, it was learned today.

Since the outbreak of hostilities Dr. Hockman worked untiringly for the Ethiopian Red Cross, establishing the first medical unit on the front.

"We have lost the most valuable, most efficient Red Cross wofker in Ethiopia," said Dr. T. A. Lambie, secretary-general of the Ethiopian Red Cross. He praised Hockman's heroism when Daggah Bur was bombarded recently.

The young United Presbyterian missionary is survived by his widow and a one-month-old child, who are now at an American mission in Egypt. She formerly lived at New Concord, Ohio.

Dr. Hockman made a hobby of studying bombs. He recently supervised the digging out of a nine-foot unexploded projectile at Daggah Bur.

His body is being taken to Addis Ababa for burial. Dr. Hockman went to Addis Ababa in December, planning to go to Egypt to see his child for the first time, but Red Cross au-

Home Rule Leader Invites Arrest In Answer To Attack

'His Duty To Prosecute, If He Believes I'm Guilty Of Plotting Murder,' Declares Dear; 'I Defy Him To Do It'

ELLENDER SAYS PENSION UP TO U. S.

State Hasn't Enough Money, Avers Candidate; Dear Replies He Can Save Enough In Government Expenses To Do It

BATON ROUGE, La., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Congressman Cleveland Dear, anti-administration candidate for governor, today defied Governor O. K. Allen to prefer charges against him for plotting to assassinate the late Senator Huey Long, while Allen J. Ellender, administration candidate for the United States senate, charged there is "no basis for Dear's promises" to pay old-age pensions.

Speaking at Many, Dear answered charges he attributed to Allen and other administrationists that he had participated at a New Orleans hotel gathering when a plot to assassinate Long was discussed.

"If I am guilty of plotting the murder of any man, it is Governor Allen's duty to have me arrested and prosecuted," Dear stated. "I defy him to do it."

Ellender said payment of old-age pensions was the problem of the federal government. Dear has said he could save half of the $42,000,000 the state government is spending annually and pay the pensions.

"There is no basis for Dear's promises," Ellender said in an address at Oakdale yesterday. He said the state actually is run on less than $20,000,000 annually."

"Huey Long and I talked about this old-age pension problem a lot," Ellender said. "We were convinced that it would take $1,500,000 a month to pay it. Let Mr. Dear tell you where he is going to get this money."

The anti-administration candidates "fought everything that Senator Long provided for your benefit, but we are going to repudiate them at the polls," Judge Richard Leche, administration candidate for governor, told a Leesville meeting.

A disturbance occurred at DeRidder when Ped C. Kay, DeRidder attorney, threatened Joe Bates, assistant chief of the state bureau of identification and investigation, with a shotgun after Bates refused to move automobiles parked for a political rally.

Sheriff Henry Cain and Chief of Police Dutch Lacaze disarmed Kay but the attorney was not arrested.

DE RIDDER, La., Dec. 14.—Expressing the opinion that the provision of old-age pensions is a problem that rests with the federal government, Allen J. Ellender, candidate for United States senator on the state machine ticket, in his meeting here yesterday called upon Congressman Cleveland Dear, the Home Rule candidate for governor, to explain where he would raise the money for the benefits he has promised the people.

"This opposition is going around telling you they are going to give you old-age pensions, and this and that," said Mr. Ellender, speaking in the Beauregard parish courthouse. "Where are they going to get the money to do all that? These antis, and they are the same bunch now, always have opposed our revenue measures in the state legislature. Are they going to follow the same old beaten path?

"Cleveland Dear is saying that it costs the people $42,000,000 a year to run the state government and that he is going to cut that cost in half to provide the funds for the benefits he advocates. That $42,000,000 he is talking about is contained in the appropriation bill for 1930, when we were putting the road improvement program through.

"Actually, the state's general fund is $8,500,000 annually. All other revenues are from constitutional taxes, which are dedicated to a specific purpose. The state in reality is run on less than $20,000,000 annually. It costs about $14,000,000 to run the schools and the other state institutions and branches, exclusive of the interest on bond issues."

"Let Mr. Dear tell you where he is going to get this money. He has

MANY, La., Dec. 14.—Congressman Cleveland Dear, candidate for governor on the Home Rule ticket, in his address last night hurled two challenges at Governor O. K. Allen.

"I again challenge 'Oily' Oscar Allen to tell the people of Louisiana if he got a check for $24,000 out of the profits of the Win or Lose Oil company," Congressman Dear said. "I defied 'Oily' Oscar three days ago to deny that he got this check and he remains silent.

"'Oily' Oscar has not answered, and I do not believe he will ever answer."

Congressman Dear also challenged Governor Allen to have him arrested. "'Oily' Oscar Allen is going around the state preaching hatred and charging that a murder plot was hatched in the De Soto hotel in New Orleans," Congressman Dear asserted. "'Oily' Oscar, if he believes this to be the truth, should have somebody arrested. I challenge him to have me arrested in connection with any murder plot.

"If I am guilty of plotting the murder of any man, it is Governor Allen's duty to have me arrested and prosecuted. I defy him to do it. If Allen does not believe that I am connected with any plot, then he should, in common decency, stop making such a charge."

Congressmen Dear, speaking in Natchitoches and Sabine parishes today, asserted that "you people know me and know that I would not be a part of any murder plot."

"There was an assembly of about 300 men in the De Soto hotel, and the doors were wide open during the discussions there," Congressman Dear continued. "There was nothing secret about these discussions. A ticket to

FRANCE IS READY TO ANNOUNCE HER DEFAULT ON DEBTS

PARIS, Dec. 14.—(AP)—France was ready today to announce her semi-annual default on war debts to the United States.

The usual polite note is expected to be issued, acknowledging the bill for tomorrow's installment of approximately $22,000,000 with a renewed expression of willingness to negotiate a settlement when conditions are better.

The anniversary of the first default three years ago, when Edouard Herriot was thrown out of the premiership by the chamber of deputies for wanting to pay, finds the debt unofficially dead.

Even the former advocates of payment, including M. Herriot, now are silent. The governor and parliament are occupied so far as finances are concerned solely with assuring France a balanced budget for 1936 and finding a way out of the depression.

Prizes To Be Awarded For 7 Best Decorated Doorways

Forty-five dollars in prizes will be awarded for the best decorated doorways in Monroe and West Monroe during the Christmas season, it was announced Saturday by officers of the Monroe Garden club, which is sponsoring a movement to stimulate a more festive appearance of the residential section of the Twin Cities in observance of Yuletide.

The city of Monroe, Chamber of Commerce of Monroe and West Monroe and the World and News-Star are cooperating in the program by contributing to the fund for the prizes.

No prizes will be awarded for illuminated outdoor Christmas trees, it was announced, the plan being to encourage doorway decoration as offering a larger opportunity for widespread participation.

Seven prizes will be awarded as follows: First, $15; second, $10; third, $7.50; fourth, $5; three prizes of $2.50 each.

The awards will be made only to private residences or apartment houses. No business places or industrial plants will be eligible for participation. The decorations are to be judged according to artistic arrangement, irrespective of the volume of illumination introduced. In order to make this rule effective, the judging will take place in daylight, it has been announced.

Decorations are to be in place not later than Christmas Eve and must remain until New Year's night. The judging will be made during the holiday week. Announcement of prize winners will be made New Year's morning.

No formal entry will be necessary. All decorated doorways in the two cities will be inspected and will be considered in the awarding of prizes.

INTIMATE STUDIES OF CLEVELAND DEAR, CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR OF LOUISIANA, ON THE 'HOME RULE' TICKET

O'NEILL ASSAILS POLICE JURY ACT

Says Law Permitting Appointment Of Officials Is Unconstitutional

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 14.—(AP)—In his dissenting opinion handed down today in the East Baton Rouge police jury case, Chief Justice Charles A. O'Neill asserted that the act of the legislature which permitted Governor Allen to appoint an additional police juror in the parish or every elected juror was unconstitutional.

Validity of the act, No. 22 of the third extra session in 1934, was upheld by a four to three decision of the supreme court on December 2.

Chief Justice O'Neil's opinion declared that the act wrested from the people of East Baton Rouge parish "their right of local self government" and that it "violates both the letter and the spirit of several guaranties in the constitution."

"In the first place," the dissenting opinion stated, "the statute was enacted in violation of section 14 of article V of the constitution, which declared that the legislature, in an extraordinary session, shall not enact any law having an object not 'specifically enumerated' in the proclamation of the governor convening the extraordinary session."

"Any one of the violations of the constitution that I have mentioned," the opinion said, "is sufficient to render the statute null.

"If the constitutional guaranties which I have referred to are so limp and impotent that they do not safeguard the people against such anomalous legislation as act No. 22 of the third extra session of 1934, those safeguards ought to be strengthened and made more effective—to the end that the government of Louisiana shall remain always in truth a government of laws and not men."

Modern External Treatment Helps End Colds Sooner

OFTEN RELIEVES BY MORNING

Before a miserable cold gets you down, go to bed and apply Vicks VapoRub. Two generations have proved VapoRub the surest help to a milder, shorter cold.

Just rubbed on throat and chest at bedtime, VapoRub acts two ways at once:

1. By stimulation through the skin, like a poultice or plaster.
2. By inhalation of its penetrating medicated vapors, released by body heat and breathed in direct to inflamed air-passages.

For Fewer and Shorter Colds

Note for your family: Vicks has developed, especially for home use, a practical Plan for Better Control of Colds. This commonsense guide to fewer and shorter colds has been clinically tested by practicing physicians and further proved in everyday home use by millions. Full details of Vicks Plan come in each VapoRub package.

GINNINGS ARE LESS

MARION, La., Dec. 14.—Dec. 14.—(Special)—According to J. W. Melton of Marion, special agent of the bureau of census, there were 9,655 bales of cotton ginned in Union parish from the 1935 crop prior to December 1, 1935, as compared with 9,826 bales ginned to December 1, 1934, thus making the ginnings to December 1 of this year 171 bales less than for last year.

Dear Directs Vigorous Fight In Governorship

'Home Rule' Candidate Has Had Interesting History In His March Toward Political Prominence

By James C. Bushong

Tall, well built and with sincerity of purpose plainly written on his square, rugged, thoughtful face, the speaker is driving his thoughts home. As he scores a particularly telling blow against his adversary, his hazel eyes flash and his right fist descends in an arch into his open left hand.

A few seconds later the speaker's voice has dropped to an earnest, conversational tone and he is appealing as "man to man" with them. And now they pay him the tribute of quiet attention.

It is a typical scene from any one of the Hume Rule meetings where the quiet but forceful 47-year-old Cleveland Dear has spoken during the past month or so of campaigning.

Louisiana likes a fighter, and Cleveland Dear, his friends will tell you, is a two-fisted fighter who "only gets going good when they start crowding him."

Born in 1888 near Sugartown, in what is now Beauregard parish, the present leader of the Home Rule ticket comes of fighting stock, the same Scotch-Irish and English strain that sired General Andrew "Old Hickory" Jackson.

His old teacher, Sam Iles, recalled recently that as a quiet, reserved boy, "Cleveland Dear never started any fights, but he never ran away from any either."

Educated in the public schools and Louisiana State university where he worked his way while obtaining a college and law degree, Cleveland Dear never voluntarily sought public office.

Years ago, when he was a mere lad, his father, "Uncle Jim" Dear told him: "No matter what anyone tells you, son, there is such a thing as duty, and when you see your duty, you go ahead and do it, regardless of what anyone says."

Cleveland Dear remembered that when the United States entered the World war, so he enlisted with his law partner, Frank Peterman, and went to perform that duty. He served with the infantry for a time and then joined the ammunition train detachment, known because of the danger as the "Suicide Club." He came out of the war a captain.

He recalled that duty talk again in 1920 when a group of Alexandria lawyers and business men went to him and asked him to make the race for district attorney.

He did not want to run for district attorney or any other office. He had built up a considerable legal practice, but he saw it as his duty and entered the race. He won and was launched on his career as a public office holder. He has been holding public office ever since.

Twice more, in 1924 and 1928 his candidacy was posted for the district attorneyship, and Cleveland Dear won, one time with opposition and once unopposed.

Then, in 1932, another delegation of citizens, a group who represented an area larger than Beauregard parish, wanted him as their candidate for congress from the eighth district. He was elected to congress. He was returned in 1934.

In the early part of 1935 when the group that is now known as the Home Rule faction gathered for their caucuses, Cleveland Dear was chosen to head the ticket as gubernatorial candidate.

Today Cleveland Dear is the recognized leader of the Home Rule group, not only as their most important candidate, but by virtue of the qualities of leadership that he has asserted. When the candidates split up into groups to accommodate their itineraries, the others clamor to be on the same platform with Cleveland.

An acquaintance to some of his fellow candidates when the campaign opened, he is now the warm, personal friend of all of them, as attested by their affectionate greetings when he returns from a flying visit to his home.

Cleveland Dear is a quiet man and one who does not seek the limelight. He will tell you that if he has a difference with a man there is nothing he likes better than to sit down in a room and calmly discuss the matter with him. "You can get somewhere that way," he says, "and you know where you stand when you are through speaking."

But if political speeches are needed, Cleveland Dear can make them too. And as his old teacher said, he has never learned how to run away from a fight.

OBITUARY

CONNELLA RITES

ALEXANDRIA, Dec. 14.—(Special)—Miss Louise Connella, 55, of Bayou Rapides, died at a local hospital at 3 a.m. Friday, December 13. She is survived by one brother, Conrad Connella, Glendale, Calif.; three sisters, Mrs. J. E. Hixson, Lake Charles, La.; Mrs. G. S. Johnston, Mims, Fla., and Mrs. J. D. Herron, Roswell, N. M. She was an aunt of Mrs. Fred Williamson, Monroe, La.

Miss Connella was born in Rapides parish on March 19, 1885, the daughter of the late John Levin Connella and the former Miss Jessie Edgar. Miss Connella's father was an instructor in law at Soule college in New Orleans, La., in his early life, later moving to Rapides parish, where he taught private school and was a planter.

Miss Connella was a member of the Calvary Baptist church of Alexandria.

Funeral services were held Friday afternoon at the Calvary Baptist church, with the Rev. Dr. E. E. Colvin, pastor, officiating. Interment was made in the Rapides cemetery, Pineville, La.

J. W. BAYNE RITES

The funeral of J. W. Bayne, 84, who died Friday night at his home, 316 North Fourth street, was held at Peters funeral chapel, Saturday at 3:30 p.m., with Rev. W. C. Scott, pastor of the First Methodist church, officiating. Interment took place in Riverview burial park.

Mr. Bayne had resided in Monroe for nearly 20 years. He leaves three sons, R. G. Bayne of Urania, W. H. Bayne of Jackson, L. M. Bayne of Monroe, and three daughters, Mrs. H. C. Kihneman of Monroe, Mrs. S. L. Wilcox of El Dorado, Ark., and Mrs. R. A. Smith of Bolton, Miss.

Pallbearers were L. B. McCarthy, Robert Hales, Jerry Furry, Thomas Beard, David Dumas, and J. J. Derringer. The honorary pallbearers were L. B. McCarthy, Sr., Arnold Bernstein, Frank J. Roddy, W. I. Neel, John Brothers, James Brothers, D. A. Breard, Sr., R. D. Swayze and R. H. Oliver, Sr.

SAMUEL T. BROOKS

Samuel T. Brooks, 50, died in a local hospital early Saturday. He was a resident of Swartz, and is survived by his widow, four brothers and one sister, T. D. Brooks of Bosco, J. L. Brooks of Monroe, B. F. Brooks and R. L. Brooks of Swartz, and Mrs. Sallie Gaar of Swartz.

The funeral will be held this afternoon, the procession leaving the Mulhearn funeral home at 1:30 p.m., and proceeding to the Swartz Baptist church, where the service will be held at 2 p.m. Rev. Roger Johnson will officiate and the interment will take place in Spring Hill cemetery. The Masonic lodge of Collinston will be in charge at the grave.

The active pallbearers will be N. A. Dozier, R. L. Berry, Fred Hill, Leland Stanford, H. A. Crosley and G. A. Evans.

Honorary pallbearers will be C. H. Hancock, J. N. Walker, P. T. Crawford, Alec Dyer, O. E. Towery, and J. S. Dunn.

SODALITY WILL HOLD MEETING ON MONDAY

St. Matthew's parish sodality will hold its regular meeting Monday at 7:30 p. m. Father M. F. Walsh has been named as new chaplain of the sodality to succeed Father Gremillion, who was recently transferred to Rayville.

The meeting will open with benediction at the church, afterwards the members will hold a business meeting and a social at the school building. All members are urged by the prefect to attend.

BRUNO CONFIDENT HE WILL ESCAPE DEATH IN CHAIR

though he may be executed any time during the week designated, the custom at state prison is to have executions on Tuesday nights about 8 p.m.

Informing Hauptmann of the new death date was apparently a task no one desired. C. Lloyd Fisher, his chief counsel, was so upset yesterday on learning Justice Thomas W. Trenchard had fixed a new date that he declined to tell the condemned man. Col. Mark O. Kimberling, principal keeper at state prison, then said he would notify Hauptmann. He changed his mind later and delegated one of the guards to carry the message.

Hauptmann had slept late, as he frequently does, and had finished breakfasting when the guard came to his death house cell with the news. Hauptmann was calm, the guard reported to Kimberling, and showed no emotion, saying he had been "expecting the information almost any time."

Kimberling spoke later of Hauptmann's optimism in the shadow of the electric chair and of his "feeling he'll get out of it." The principal warden did not believe the optimism resulted from the secret nocturnal visit Governor Harold G. Hoffman paid to Hauptmann in the death house two months ago.

"He had that optimism even before the governor saw him. He has said several times to me that he doesn't expect to go to the chair. He feels something is going to break," Kimberling said.

Governor Hoffman's name was brought back into the forefront of the Hauptmann developments by the report he had promised the convicted man he would not die in the chair. Edward J. McNamara, a death house inmate, was quoted by the New York Evening Post as telling of the promise to a friend who visited him.

The visitor had remarked Hauptmann was certain to be executed, the paper said, and McNamara answered, "You're wrong there. Governor Hoffman was in here a short time ago to see Bruno and gave him his word he would not die in the electric chair for the crime."

Governor Hoffman was in New York and could not be reached, but on previous occasions he has repeated that he promised Hauptmann nothing and offered him nothing during the death house visit. The governor, alone, can save no one from the chair. Clemency must come from the court of pardons and the governor is only one of its eight members. For clemency Hauptmann would have to obtain five of its eight votes.

Another minor flurry in the day's events was the published report that Joseph Schaz, extradited here from Dallas, Texas, on a six-year-old robbery charge, was in reality a "secret witness" in the Hauptmann-Lindbergh case. The prosecutor's office ridiculed the reports.

The next move in the fight to save Hauptmann will be discussed Monday when his attorneys confer.

COTTON EXPORTS SHOOT UPWARD; AAA IS PLEASED

November 30 were 2,574,786 bales, an increase of more than 600,000 over the total of 1,894,142 for the same period in 1934. The November exports of 1,134,874 bales, increased from 711,664 in October this year.

While the estimate of the 1935 crop on December 1 was 10,734,000 bales and the ten year average exports were about 8,000,000 bales, Wallace said that "there is plenty of cotton in this country to take care of exports on the basis of the ten year average."

Asserting there has been a definite increase in cotton exports each month of this season, he noted that last year the total was 4,800,000 bales, or a drop of about 38 per cent from the average.

One member of the AAA unofficial board of strategy, declining to be quoted by name, asserted today he believed the cotton export reports this year would prove a definite answer to one pointed criticism of the AAA.

Recalling attacks made by New Deal opponents, particularly Governor Eugene Talmadge of Georgia, charging that crop restriction had ruined the export market, more than one official indicated that the export reports might become Democratic campaign ammunition next summer.

stores were directed to serve only by delivery—and then with extreme caution.

Pointing out the difficulty of determining the extent of the disease, Dr. Adams cited the death of the five-year-old daughter of the Rev. H. B. Donnell, Baptist minister.

"The little girl died this week and was buried without a post-mortem examination," he said. "We'll never know for sure whether her death was caused by meningitis.

"But we do know that the day after her sister, Ada Beth, 11, became seriously ill. Her case has been diagnosed definitely now as meningitis. That gives us every reason to believe her sister died of the same disease."

NATIONAL BANK ASSETS JUMP BILLION DOLLARS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(AP)—A jump of more than a billion dollars in national bank assets during the four months ended November 1 was reported today by J. F. T. O'Connor, comptroller of the currency, along with a $63,000,000 drop in their loans.

In his report of the figures assembled from his last call for a condition statement, O'Connor said the banks' assets aggregated $27,430,730,000 on November 1, an increase of $1,869,665,000 since June 29.

Loans and discounts totaled $7,301,371,000, compared with $7,365,226,000 on the previous call.

There were 5,409 active banks on November 1, 22 fewer than in June.

Investments in government obligations, including government guaranteed securities, rose $320,589,000 between the two calls, amounting to $7,493,596,000 on November 1.

AIR WOMEN ARE BANNED AT MEET

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Air women pleaded today for an opportunity to display their skill at Miami's air show, but the concluding day's demonstrations of speed and daring aloft were for "men only."

Loudly and vainly Miss Annette Gipson of New York, one of four women entered for a scheduled handicap race for their sex, protested as "shameful" the cancellation of the events.

Joining Miss Gipson in the protest were Miss Alberta Barber and Miss Charlotte Frye, both of Atlanta.

"They've advertised and ballyhooed events for women for months," said Miss Gipson, "and now with some flimsy excuse that is not an excuse the officials tell us there won't be any races for women.

"All we can do about it, apparently, is squawk. It's not at all fair. We've sat out here for three days expecting to race."

An American altitude record for planes weighing less than 1,235 pounds was claimed by G. M. "Tex" Rankin, Portland, Ore., who believed he bettered 20,000 feet.

SUPPER IS GIVEN

More than 100 persons were served last night at the spaghetti supper given by the ladies auxiliary of the V. F. W., at the club rooms on Hall and Harrison streets, it was announced. More than $25 was realized, and the money will be added to the Auxiliary's Christmas fund.

Interpreting Life

Did you ever stop to realize how much depends on the interpretation of a thing—especially if it is creative? It is the last word, always, in success or failure.

For instance, think of a song, a composition, a dance, a play, a painting, a poem or story. No matter how lovely it is, no matter how perfect it may be when it leaves your hands, it is made or marred by the reader, singer, player, who interprets it for you. If he speaks, or plays, or looks, or sings woodenly, he's only going through mechanics, physical motions. He puts nothing more into it, consequently nothing more comes out of it. And all the hidden fire and passion and beauty that you've so carefully infused into it, stays locked there, wasted, because it isn't being interpreted properly with full understanding. But if the right interpreter comes along, how that same spirit of yours lives and glows with all the meaning and feeling you intended and felt, and how you warm to him because you feel he appreciates what you're trying to do, and so, through him, you know it will be given to the world in an understandable way.

Well, life's a good deal like that, too. It's given to us with all its richness and meaning intact. And it depends on us whether it remains hidden or brought out, whether we make it mean something or just let it be dull and dead and uninteresting.

The child usually accepts life happily because it's new and wonderful to him. The adolescent finds it now gay, now sad, because it bewilders him and he's groping for a real understanding. The adult makes it either beautiful or dull depending on the ability to interpret it properly and pass it on to others with all its power, sweetness and beauty, or with dullness and colorlessness. Much depends on how hard he tries to understand and how he looks at it.

To the old it's often drab and lifeless because they've seen so much of it they've forgotten how much depends on their response, and they're too tired to try any more to understand or pass their appreciation of it on. They even let its jokes fall flat because they don't make the effort to see the point and can't help others laugh at them.

It takes work and effort to make a good interpreter. It takes intelligence and experience and understanding and concentration. And a keen response and appreciation, of course. But aren't all these things worth striving for when they mark the exact difference between expressing the best in creation—and creation—or wasting it. And isn't it better to hunt always for that best so we can help explain it fully to others less blest?

Think it over this Sunday morning!

CAUTIOUS ADVANCE NEEDED

The federal trade commission suggests that congress broaden its powers to permit it to wage war on unfair business practices when such practices adversely affect the consumer's interests.

As things stand now, the commission may attack an unfair trade practice only when such practice injures a business competitor. It points out that an entire industry might conceivably gang up in some trade agreement which would not be in the least damaging to competitors, since all competitors would be in on it, but which would hurt the consumer like blazes.

That the consumer needs all the protection he can get is pretty obvious, and that such law would give it to him is almost equally clear. Nevertheless, the proposal is one which needs a great deal of debate.

To outlaw any trade practice which might be declared unfair to the consumer would be to cover an enormous amount of ground. It could easily pave the way for government control of industry as sweeping as the NRA itself. A lot of careful study ought to precede any attempt at such legislation.

SUPERSTITION PERSISTS

Twenty-two men crowded into the subterranean crypt that housed King Tut, back in 1922, and took a look inside when the seals to the chamber were broken. Since that time, seven of the 22 have died, the latest being Dr. James H. Breasted, one of the world's most famous Egyptologists.

Because of these deaths, there are people simple enough to believe that the ancient curse laid upon despoilers of the tomb is working.

It can be pointed out, of course, that seven deaths among 22 persons in 13 years do not make an unusually high average. It can also be pointed out that Dr. Breasted himself was 70—the scriptural limit of three score years and 10—and that medical science is not in the least mystified about the cause of his death.

But you could point these things out until you were blue in the face and it would do little good. A person who will believe in a 3,000-year-old curse will go on believing in it in spite of all the common sense evidence you can give him.

Science says a man becomes what he eats. We've often wondered how missionaries finally got the cannibals converted.

More Truth Than Poetry

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

CHANCE

If you ever fall foul of a person
Who seems to be dreadfully smart,
And you think that some day
He'll be making his way
In the busy financial mart,
Keep your eye on the young fellow's future,
His words may perhaps all come true.
The chances are strong
That he'll rise right along
And do what he said he would do.

If you ever encounter a blowhard,
Compacted of bluster and gall,
And softly declare:
"He is mostly hot air;
He will gather no prizes at all,"
The lad may make money in millions
Which you fancy that you might have got.
And this goes to show
That you fancy you know
A good many things you do not.

The other man's game appears easy.
He succeeds, though you never know why,
While fate's little ball
Never rolls right at all,
But always goes spinning awry.
Men start in the game with a million
And end in a clod dreary cell.
And that proves to me
(And I think you'll agree)
That sometimes it's darned hard to tell.

A Bright Sign

By BRUCE CATTON

You could work up quite a nice little argument, if you cared, by asking people to say what is the most valuable thing America produces.

There's a wide field to pick from. This country is workshop and granary for half the world—or it used to be, anyway, before world trade went democratic—and it can give you anything from autos to bran muffins with the air of a merchant who handles nothing but the best.

But the things that are raised out of the ground or put together in factories are not one-tenth as important to the country as the people who do he growing and the putting together.

If we are producing the right sort of young people, we don't need to worry much about what farm and factory are producing. That will take care of itself—or, to be more exact, the right sort of young people will take care of it.

Now all this was brought to mind by an ordinary photograph in a newspaper; a picture, if you want the details, of Miss Romayne Tate of Paragould, Ark., and Mr. William Hamilton of Good Hope, Ill.

Miss Tate and Mr. Hamilton seem to be healthy youngsters in their 'teens, or thereabouts, and the picture showed them holding two rather elaborate loving cups—the President Roosevelt trophies awarded them for outstanding achievements as 4-H club members.

Since this world is sinful and human nature is weak, the people who do things that cause their picture to get printed in the papers are not always representative of the finest flowers of civilized society. An ordinary day's grist of pictures will include a criminal or two, a gowking movie actress, some goof who is roller skating backward from Hoboken to Pike's Peak, a newly discovered society female, and a handful of bedsheeted Ethiopian soldiers carrying obsolete rifles wrong end to through the African desert.

To come across this picture of these two 4-H club prize winners was like getting a drink of cool water on a hot and dusty day. For it was a reminder that the country is not, after all, as cock-eyed as some of its happenings seem to indicate.

Health, good sense, and plain, everyday decency and sanity looked out of the page, to reassure us about Uncle Sam's fundamental soundness.

A country that can produce young people like these has little to worry about. It may fall over its own feet trying to devise a farm program and lose a flywheel or two in adjusting its industrial production.

It may bring forth its annual crop of crooners, fan dancers, and half-baked politicians—but as long as it can bring up youngsters like these, we needn't lose any sleep.

It is a country that is going places, after all.

New Deal In Washington

By Rodney Dutcher
(Washington Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—The New Deal came so near suspending collection of AAA processing taxes the other day that it wasn't even funny.

Everybody was for it except Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau, whose chief job is to collect taxes of all types and descriptions. Everybody, that is, except perhaps President Roosevelt, with whom Morgenthau talked before he made his decision.

About 2,000 processing taxpayers have rebelled against the levy and brought injunction suits, which means that 70 per cent of the tax isn't being paid. There are about 47,000 other processors of farm products who pay only 30 per cent of the tax.

At least two-thirds of that 30 per cent are tobacco and sugar manufacturers, who have been paying almost unanimously, but are so relatively few in number that if they were to defy the tax AAA and the treasury would have about 45,000 small processors paying from 8 to 10 per cent of the whole tax.

Plead For "Little Fellow"

Secretary Henry A. Wallace, AAA Administrator Chester Davis, and Solicitor General Stanley Reed agreed that the treasury should postpone collection of processing taxes due Nov. 30 and Dec. 31.

They took the high ground that since "enemies" of the farmer were refusing to pay the tax, those other processors who kept on paying should not be subjected to price-cutting competition from those who were able to cut costs by refusing to pay.

It was recognized, of course, that most of the 45,000 little fellows simply couldn't afford to sue for injunctions even if they wanted to.

The big packers, millers, and cotton mills, able to afford high-priced lawyers, had led the court fight against the tax. If the supreme court knocked out the processing levy, nobody would have to pay. If it upheld it, everybody would have to pay.

Morgenthau Says "No"

Morgenthau turned down the proposal. The treasury took the position that such action would give the appearance of New Deal weakness to the courts and the public and that many small pckers, rice millers, nd other processors, if they later were compelled to pay three months of accummulated taxes all at once, would be found to have established no reserves for it and that the government would have to take them over or forget about it.

The AAA's solicitude for the little fellow in this instance is touching, but truth compels admission that there was more to it than that.

The move to postpone processing taxes until after the supreme court ruled began only after tobacco manufacturers and sugar refiners brought pressure, complaining that while they didn't want to appear unfriendly to AAA, they didn't like to be taking a rap that other processors were avoiding.

Clay Williams, of the Reynolds Tobacco company, celebrated former head of NRA, even telephoned the White House about it.

One Juicy Victory

Strangely or otherwise, most victories the "little fellow" wins in Washington are likely to be achieved with the aid of some "big fellows" in the background.

For instance, you may have noticed in recent years that your breakfast orange juice was likely to be more sour than it used to be. And you may have noticed that just the other day the department of agriculture decided to bar interstate shipments of oranges which owed their orange color to artificial staining.

The department formally noted the fact that "a very large number of consumer protests against the practice of staining by addition of color has reached the department." It explained that staining had become "well-nigh universal in certain producing sections."

Unquestionably consumers did make considerable demand that the department's food and drug administration stop the practice of coloring oranges to conceal inferiority.

But orange growers in California, declaring that certain growers in Florida were taking unfair advantage of them by use of coloring processes, also had demanded action.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH PLANS $19,461 BUDGET

A budget of $19,461.50 has been tentatively approved for the First Baptist church for the year 1936. The budget will be presented to the church Wednesday night for action on proposed expenditures.

Five general divisions are contemplated in the suggested budget. The first deals with missions, education and benevolence for which there is an appropriation of $5,000.

The Baptist Training union has an appropriation of $415, while the Sunday school calls for an appropriation of $1,060.

For the Women's Missionary union, the sum of $360 is assigned, while for general and administrative expense there is assigned $12,526.50. The chief items in this list are the pastor's salary, which is $4,200, and the educational director's salary which is $3,000.

THEFTS ARE REPORTED TO POLICE FORCE HERE

Miss Loraine Sheppert, 3805 Dick Taylor street, reported to police yesterday that a confectionary stand which she operates at 223 St. John street, had been entered Friday night and a quantity of cigarettes, chewing tobacco and gum stolen.

Clifford Ferrin reported the loss of an overcoat and hat, stolen from his automobile Friday while it was parked in front of the Electrik Mair bakeshop.

Sam Ivey reported the loss of a portfolio containing papers and bills belonging to the Monroe Hardware company. The property was stolen from his automobile, which had been parked on DeSiard street, Friday.

Lights Of New York

By George Ross

NEW YORK.—When a Broadway show is ailing and someone yells, "Is there a play-doctor in the house?" they generally have to wait until "Doc" George Abbott hurries over in his ambulance. They call him Sure-Cure Abbott around the Rialto because he almost never has lost a patient.

Right now, he is top general practitioner of the show-shops, having nursed to health and happiness such Broadway bonanzas as "Three Men on a Horse," "Boy Meets Girl" and "Jumbo." His weekly income would tinge a movie star's fat contract crimson.

Abbott, a favorite son of Buffalo, is the greatest all-around man in current theatericals. Actor, author, director, producer, scene designer, he has had his fling at all of them and has several million dollars to show for the time he has served Broadway. "Broadway" was the name of a show, by the way, he once co-wrote with Philip Dunning which cleaned up three million dollars in its day. In another show he doctored "Coquette," Helen Hayes had her famous "Act of God" baby. Out of a drama he efficiently treated for a slight case of anemia, "Four Walls," there emerged an actor destined to change his name from Muni Weisenfreund to Paul Muni, whom you all know.

Secret Remedy

What Abbott's particular magic happens to be, nobody seems to know, except that he can pump more life-blood into a play than any other man. Give him a script that lacks "zowie" or punch and he will take its temperature, pulse and give it the works.

He injects laughs when there aren't enough and peps up the action with his own special speedball. While directing, he clocks seconds instead of minutes so that there must be something happening all the time. In anybody else's hands, "3 Men on a Horse," one of show business's biggest money-makers in ten years, might have easily been a flop. Abbott doctored it, directed it and hired all the players himself.

Talent Discoverer

The players he hires are not star names but, more often actors and actresses getting their first break on Broadway. Part of the special magic Abbott weaves over a pay is his knack of discovering fresh talent.

Two years ago, he found a young lady called Joyce Arling prowling around his front office in quest of a job. He gave her a part in "Kill That Story," one of his minor efforts, and later cast her roles in "Ladies Money" and "3 Men on a Horse" because he thought she had the goods. Now, he's assigned her to a leading part in "Boy Meets Girl" and not only are the papers full of her praise but the movie scouts are begging her to come out to the Baghdad-on-Pacific that is Hollywood. And if your correspondent doesn't miss his guess, this Arling girl will be Hollywood's next camera queen.

Yule Perils

It is about this time of year, when the Christmas shoppers are merrily elbowing one another's ribs on Fiftn avenue, that your correspondent requests to be safely tucked away under lock and key, before he starts prowling around the gadget shops.

What earthly use I could have for a sterling silver key that is linked onto a sterling silver chain; a combination chrome and tan pigskin shoehorn and button-hook; a chromium mug-shaped bottle holder to make that needs only water to write 600,000 words before running out of fuel; a magnifying glass that lights up; a chemical weather-forecaster or a carrot-juice extractor—I will never know. But I've never been able to resist the temptation to have them "sent." The distaff in your correspondent's home generally has them "sent" right back.

BOND IS PROVIDED BY MRS. ETHRIDGE

Mrs. Luttie Ethridge of Winnsboro, who has been held by local authorities in connection with an assault on Prentiss East, radio singer, made bond yesterday. Her bond was placed at $300.

A warrant, sworn out by East's brother charging assault to commit murder, resulted in Mrs. Ethridge's arrest by Winnsboro officers, and she was lodged in the Ouachita parish jail, pending the outcome of East's condition.

East was discharged from the hospital last week. He suffered a compound fracture of the skull and a broken jaw, when, he claims, he was attacked by a negro near the Sterlington highway, while accompanied by Mrs. Ethridge.

The case against the woman will be investigated by the grand jury at its next session, it is reported.

LIBRARY IS PLANNED FOR MADISON PARISH

TALLULAH, La., Dec. 14.—(Special)—Ordinances providing for the establishment of a public library for Madison parish and the appropriation of $2,850.70 as a contribution toward the construction of a building to be used for agriculture and home demonstration work of the parish and the library were adopted at the December meeting of the Madison parish police jury here.

The ordinance, providing for the equipment, operation and maintenance of the library, named as the board of control the president of the police jury and Mrs. J. H. Baughman to serve one year, W. M. Scott, two years; H. C. Sevier, three years; Mrs. R. K. Baney four years, and James R. Linton, five years.

WEST MONROE CANNERY HAS ITS BEST YEAR

The community canning plant operated in West Monroe will in all probability close for the season with the end of the present month, stated Mrs. C. A. Kincaid, plant supervisor.

The past year has been the most successful in its history, the place being in use daily ever since the season started last spring. Thousands of cans of vegetables and meats have been preserved by farm women from all over Ouachita parish.

When the plant is closed for the year, figures will be given by Mrs. Kincaid of the exact volume of canning that has been done under her supervision.

INN WILL GIVE PROGRAM FOR GOOD FELLOWS FUND

"Gala Night" will be observed at the Three-Mile Inn, DeSiard road, Wednesday, Dec. 18, when the management will present a special program for the benefit of the Good Fellows fund. A feature of the event will be a floor show by student dancing artists directed by Mrs. Harry Rice from KMLB studio. Music will be furnished by the Three-Mile Inn Foresters. Dancing will begin at 9 o'clock. Sale of tickets will be in charge of Fred Pettit of the Great Southern Life Insurance company, Bernhardt building. The entire proceeds will be donated to the Good Fellows fund to provide Christmas cheer for underprivileged children.

LEVEE WORKER HURT

While working on the levee wall near the traffic bridge, Clifton Smith, 28, of 108 Harrison street, yesterday fell from the dirt levee onto the steel pilings below, and suffered internal injuries. He was taken to St. Francis sanitarium.

BUSINESS HOUSES RAZED BY FLAMES

Early Morning Blaze Wipes Out Roadhouse, Filling Station

Fires of undetermined origin early yesterday morning totally destroyed two business establishments on highway 80 west of here. The Loma Linda, roadhouse just outside the West Monroe city limits, and D. Bagwell's combination grocery store and filling station, seven miles west of here, were burned to the ground.

The Loma Linda, a new building on the north side of the highway, was built last summer at a cost of approximately $1,000, it was reported. The Bagwell store was owned up until last spring by A. G. Pace, who estimated the building alone was worth $500. Both fires occurred around 3 a. m.

Both structures were burned before fire fighting apparatus could be brought into use. The burning of the Bagwell store was not discovered until after sunrise when passers-by saw the smouldering ruins and notified authorities. Loma Linda was burned almost to the ground when firemen were summoned, and Chief E. C. Taylor, of the West Monroe fire department, stated that the building was so far gone when his department was called that they were not able to save anything.

Bagwell, who had living quarters at the rear of the store, and who lived there alone, was said to have closed his store and gone hunting late yesterday afternoon. His store burned while he was away and authorities who investigated the burning of the building said he had not returned early yesterday morning.

The roadhouse was reported owned by O. M. Houck, who could not be located. It was said that the management of the roadhouse had previously operated a like establishment near Jonesboro which was destroyed by fire just before they built the place here.

An estimate of the value of groceries and other accessories destroyed at Bagwell's, or other property damages to the Loma Linda were not learned. Bagwell could not be reached but Pace, who formerly owned the store, was able to give the value of the structure only.

MARRIAGES

FERRIDAY, La., Dec. 14.—(Special)—A marriage of much interest was solemnized in Waterproof on Thursday afternoon at the First Presbyterian church when Miss Louise Stripling became the bride of Mr. Joseph Testa, Jr., also of Waterproof. Film Stars Describe What They Want For Christmas

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Dec. 14—(AP)—The things they'd like to get in their Christmas stockings, but don't expect, were described today by some of the movie stars.

There's William Powell. He wants Santa to bring a cash buyer with him down the "neo-classic chimney of my tax laden house." He has been trying to sell it for many months.

"A dog that knows which guests to bite," is the desire of Jeanette McDonald, whose sheep hound recently nipped a number of dinner guests.

It's a big order, but Clark Gable wants a "ship without photographers." He was described as "the darlingest thing" by a girl who said she met him on a sea voyage. Gable said he never heard of her, but was his face red when a picture of them was printed.

"Anything but a cocktail shaker," for Edna Mae Oliver. She is a strict tee-totaller, but jokesters fill her full-fashioned with liquor equipment.

Robert Montgomery wants a "G-man's badge." He's tried all the other kinds, without success, on traffic officers.

Nothing would please Wallace Beery better than "something to change my daughter's mind." Three-year-old Carol Ann wants Santa to bring her an elephant.

Other hopefuls include:

Rosalind Russell—(very homestick)—"A breath of Times Square air instead of this everlasting sunshine."

Charles Butterworth—"A pair of suspenders that won't climb up my back."

Frank Morgan—"Well, what I want is—er, that is—now, drat it, what did I have in mind."

Greta Garbo? She didn't say, but studio executives "tank" she wants to be alone.

LEGIONNAIRES TO RECEIVE AWARDS

Membership Campaign Workers Will Be Given Prizes For Efforts

The L. B. Faulk post will hold its regular meeting Monday night at 8 o'clock at the Legion's memorial home. This meeting will be of importance as it will be the last meeting before Christmas. At this meeting, prizes for the recent membership campaign will be awarded.

The following will receive as prizes beautiful pencils awarded by the state department for the securing of 25 or more members: C. B. Braun, William Perhamus, Harry Stein, Dr. R. L. Wood, Isaac Lemle. The following will receive the gold star for ten or more members: C. B. Braun, William Perhamus, Harry Stein, Dr. R. L. Wood, Isaac Lemle, Jess De Armand. The following will receive the silver star for obtaining five or more members: M. Padget, Sam Rubin, G. Godwin, Isador Liebreich, F. Hammonds, W. Huckaby, and Charles Mitchell.

Final plans will be completed at the meeting for the filling of 38 veterans' Christmas boxes for Ward C at the United States Veterans' hospital at Alexandria. These boxes will be prepared by the local unit of the ladies' auxiliary of the L. B. Faulk post. They will be distributed at the hospital by Mrs. Marion Huckaby, president of the local auxiliary. The auxiliary will also prepare and distribute ten Christmas baskets to families of veterans in Monroe.

India now has approximately 40 motion picture producing studios.

GRASS FIRES

Truck No. 3 in command of Captain J. C. Liles, answered four fire calls in less than two hours yesterday, none of which proved serious. They included a grass fire on the 1100 block of North Seventh street, which was put out with sacks; grass fire at Emerson street in Fairview, and a grass fire at 2207 Marie Place. The two last fires were put out by hand, and were caused by burning trash. A Ford truck, owned by N. C. Shamblin, caught fire as the result of a short in the ignition coils, while parked at Breard and Twenty-Sixth street.

NOTICE!

The regular annual meeting of the stockholders of the Ouachita National Bank of Monroe will be held on January 14, 1936, at three o'clock, P. M., in the Directors' Room of the Ouachita National Bank in Monroe, Monroe, Louisiana, for the purpose of electing a Board of Directors for the ensuing year, and for the further purposes of receiving, considering and acting upon the annual report of the Liquidating Committee of said Bank to the shareholders and continuing or selecting and instructing the Liquidating Committee, and, generally, of transacting any and all business which may be brought before said meeting with respect to the affairs of the bank, including, expressly, its liquidation and the proper supervision of handling all rights and equities of the bank and its stockholders.

W. C. OLIVER,
Vice Pres. and Cashier.

POLITICAL HIGH SPOTS

I am not soliciting support or your vote by Telephone at all. Have tried to distribute my cards to every one, with instructions to vote for the Candidate of your choice.

Have been asked, if elected, whether I will employ Italians. I certainly will employ Italians, Jews, Germans or Irish. The real American Indian and his pony have been kicked off into the Pacific Ocean long ago. I, myself, might have been changed in the cradle and accidentally been born a negro, and could not vote. My advice in this connection is that all white people raise plenty of chickens and the negro will pull through the depression.

Some comment at me calling the ladies, big, beautiful dolls. I guess I ought to know. I married one twenty years ago and have known what home is ever since.

We have but one Flag. The Star Spangled Banner waves for you and for me. Hats off—no difference as to our nationality.

WELL, NOW THAT YOU'VE ASKED ME MY AGE, OCCUPATION, WHAT BECAME OF MY HUSBAND - IS THERE ANYTHING ELSE YOU'D LIKE TO KNOW, KID?

IT AIN'T ME WHAT WANTS TO KNOW, MRS. FINNIGAN - IT'S LADY PLUSHBOTTOM.

WELL, TELL LADY PLUSHBOTTOM THAT I SAID "IF HER EARS WERE A LITTLE SMALLER SHE'D LOOK LIKE A MULE.

WELL, GO TELL LADY PLUSHBOTTOM I SAID—

OOP!

OH YOU POOR CHILD - LOOK AT THAT!! WHAT? YOU THINK THAT WOMAN SHOVED YOU?

IT'S FUNNY I DIDN'T SEE THAT KID LEAVE - I WONDER IF HE'S IN THE CELLAR SAMPLING MY PRESERVES AGAIN.

OH!

OW! OW! OW! OW! SHE'S TRAPPED ME BY THE FINGER!

SLAM!

TRY TO HIT ME WITH A HAMMER WILL YOU, MULE EARS?

ALL I KNOW IS I TORE ME PANTS ON A NAIL ON MRS. FINNIGAN'S CELLAR DOOR, EMMY WENT OVER TO KNOCK TH' NAIL DOWN SO I WOULDN'T DO IT AGAIN AND MRS. FINNIGAN TRIED TO DROWN HER AND EMMY'S IN BED.

POOR MRS. FINNIGAN! I KNOW EMMA-SHE WILL SUE THE DEAR GIRL FOR $100,000.00 IF SHE RECOVERS.

LADY PLUSHBOTTOM CAN NOT SEE ANYONE! NO-NOT EVEN YOU, UNCLE AMBROSE.

OH-THIS IS TERRIBLE! TERRIBLE!!

EMMA-LISTEN. IF I GIVE YOU A CHECK FOR $100.00 WILL YOU PROMISE NOT TO SUE MY FRIEND, MRS. FINNIGAN?

YES-I PROMISE, UNCLE AMBROSE. JUST SLIP IT UNDER THE DOOR.

THERE'S YOUR CHECK, EMMA. -IS YOUR CONDITION CRITICAL?

WELL-I'M DRYING MY DRESS!

GIVE ME THAT CHECK!

GOOD FELLOWS FUND BOOSTED

this year to the work that is being done by the Good Fellows of the Twin Cities. The hearty thanks of all Good Fellows goes to these two splendid organizations which are doing so much toward the welfare of the community at large. A letter from H. E. Roll, superintendent of the Missouri Pacific, tells the story of this effort and its results. The letter is quoted herewith in full:

"Dear Good Fellows:

"We have two clubs at Monroe; the Monroe Booster club and the Monroe Women's club of the Missouri Pacific railroad.

"These two clubs are among the finest with which it has been my privilege to be associated and they have that interest in the welfare of their community and its citizens which helps to build a community like the one in which we live. To show their interest in the underprivileged children of this community, they have sponsored and put on certain entertainments for the purpose of raising funds to give to the Good Fellows club and do their part in relieving suffering and at the same time give joy to some youngsters at this season of the year who might not otherwise share in the glad Christmas spirit.

"These entertainments have been entirely voluntary on the part of the two clubs, and their efforts have resulted in the pleasure of handing you $116.50 as a donation to the Good Fellows club, and it is their hope that it will result in as much good and happiness as they feel in giving this amount.

"We wish to express our appreciation for the help that we have received from the Iron Mountain bakery, Bond's bakery, and the City bakery who donated fruit cakes; to the city of Monroe for the services of a peace officer; and for the services of the Phillips Print shop which were donated.

"Sincerely yours,

(Signed) "H. E. ROLL."

Contributions of foodstuffs are among the noteworthy donations during the week-end. The Gatlin Grocery Ritchie Grocery and Strauss & Son have volunteered to supply flour and fruit for the food baskets that will be made up by the committee. Other contributions will be forthcoming early this week. Contributions of children's clothing, sweaters, underwear and stockings are needed. All such contributions will be acknowledged in the columns of the World and News-Star.

No letters of appeal for aid from the Good Fellows fund can be considered after Tuesday of this week. This is necessary in order to permit the committee ample time to prepare the baskets that are to be delivered next Sunday to the Good Fellows families.

'READY, ACTION, CAMERA, SPRAY!' COMMAND IN QUINS' MOVIE DEBUT

Copyright, 1935, NEA Service, Inc.

There won't be any germs sneaking into the Dionne nursery with the movie troupe that is making a film about the babies—not if Dr. Dafoe can help it. The doctor, left, superintends a careful spraying of the throats of the leading actors before they enter the nursery to make a scene. Nurse Lamoreux sprays Dorothy Peterson, who plays a nurse in the picture, while Nurse Leroux at right performs the same job for Jean Hersholt, who plays the doctor.

The Croyden, Surrey, Eng., library collects an average of $500 monthly in fines imposed for keeping books overtime.

policemen, made an investigation.

"When anyone taps on the wall," the doctor reported, "there is a sound from Frank's abdomen. I do not know whether the noise comes from the stomach or the intestines. The number of noises produced always corresponds with the knocks on the wall.

"The whole thing is uncanny. I found that there was no reaction if I held part of the boy's body. I tapped four times near him while holding his hand. I released the hand and tapped another four times. Frank produced eight noises.

"When he makes these noises his whole body and the bed he is lying on shake with vibration."

The boy, son of a farmer, is described as a normal, healthy child.

'JACKSON DAY' TO START CAMPAIGN

Young Democrats Of State Urged To Hold Dinners On Jan. 8

Albin P. Lassiter, president of the Young Democrats of Louisiana, announced Saturday that pursuant to a request received from James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee, groups in this state as well as similar ones throughout the nation, will observe January 8, as "Jackson day."

Plans for Monroe contemplate the holding of a big banquet at a local hotel when prominent speakers will appear and a general program will be held.

President Lassiter stated that he is desirous that all clubs of Young Democrats of Louisiana observe the day in suitable manner which will comprise the actual send-off of the presidential campaign of 1936. He said that he is expecting that such dinners held in Monroe, Shreveport, New Orleans, Lafayette, Lake Charles, Opelcusas, Baton Rouge, Alexandria and other cities and towns.

One of the features, he stated, will be an address broadcast by President Roosevelt which will be received during the holding of the banquets in the various cities of this and other states.

Announcement of the program here will be made in the near future. Mr. Lassiter has just returned from New Orleans where he made tentative plans for the holding of the proposed banquets.

BOXING BRITISH!

LONDON—(AP)—The fine art of boxing, laments the critics, seems to be passing to the United States.

Tommy Loughran's recent fight here brought a wail.

"It hurt just a little," comments one writer, "to see the oldest and best English boxing style revived by a man from America."

'DOVER ROAD' WILL BE GIVEN TUESDAY

Popular Play Will Be Major Production Of Little Theater

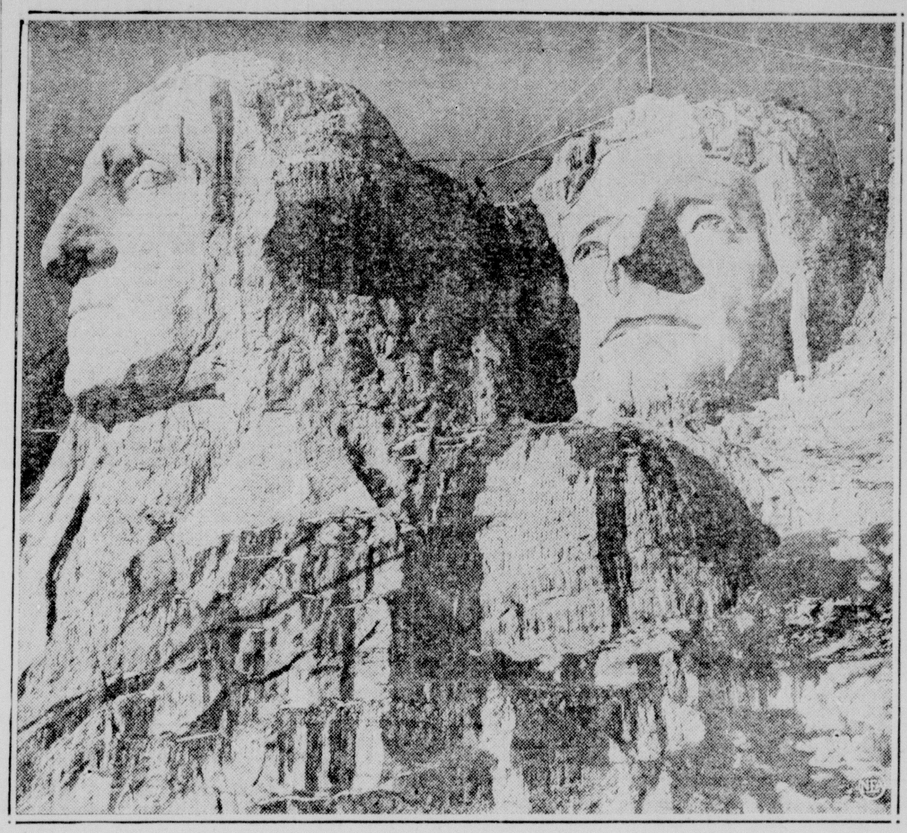
"The Dover Road" will be presented by the Little Theater at the Northeast Center of Louisiana State university at 8 p.m. Tuesday night. Rehearsals have been in progress under the direction of Mrs. Blanche Oliver for many weeks, and the cast is said to be well able to support the various parts, some of which are of difficult nature.

Those who will participate are Frank Breese, Owen McCleary, Nita Shields, Louise Guerriero, Suzanne Kellogg, J. B. King, Sybil Thompson, Ulmer McDonald, H. C. Wroten and Eileen MacKinnon.

It has been the intention to mail out membership cards to all who are members of the Little Theater last year so that they can pay for these at the door and thus obviate long delays in their issuance. Those who fail to receive their cards are asked to attend the play and purchase their membership tickets at the play.

There will be no membership campaign, the public being asked to buy their tickets Tuesday night which will entitle to admission to all work shop and major productions throughout the season.

TWO STATUES NEAR COMPLETION



Flecked with snow like the hair of men in the winter of life, the likenesses of George Washington (left) and Thomas Jefferson gaze from the lofty eminence of the colossal Mt. Rushmore memorial across the far-flung Dakota horizon. The last five months of work by Gutzon Borglum, noted sculptor, and his staff of stone cutters, nearly completed the two statues, largest in the world.

Scientists Flay Carrel's Ideas About Spiritualism

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Scientists of the midwest ganged up today on what they called the spooks conjured up in the east this week by Dr. Alexis Carrel.

"There are no ghosts," the midwesterners insisted.

They were surprised and disturbed at the Rockefeller institute researcher's statement that "we know positively that clairvoyants are capable of perceiving past and future events."

Denials came quick and sharp.

"No reputable psychologist" believes in spiritualism, Dr. A. R. Gilliland, of Northwestern university, declared.

"Spiritualism and particularly mental telepathy has not been proved," said Dr. Harvey Carr, University of Chicago psychologist.

"Positively not," Dean Stevens, Northwestern psychologist exclaimed. "There has never been a study that gave any positive evidence. The whole weight of science is against it."

Pointing out that Doctor Carrel was a medical man invading the mental field, Dean Stevens deplored the tendency of men to be "so very exact in their own field but so very careless in any other field."

Dr. M. B. Visscher, professor of physiology at the University of Illinois, advised the world to take Doctor Carrel's words "with a grain of salt."

The physiologist said the Carrel statement was "very bad" because of the New Yorker's "great prestige."

The anatomist's viewpoint was supplied by Dr. Leslie Arey, of Northwestern. Said he:

"We haven't any reason to think it (spiritualism, mental telepathy or clairvoyance) should be so. There is no mechanism for it that you can put your finger on. But that does not mean we should just rule it out."

Dean David J. Davis, of the University of Illinois Medical school, said he didn't know of any scientific evidence of clairvoyance.

A "little evidence" on the spiritualist's side of the question was pointed out by Dr. A. C. Ivy, head of Northwestern's physiology department.

At Duke university, he said, Dr. William McDougall conducted experiments with marked cards and obtained results "beyond the element of chance." The experimenters also found a horse, however, which they said could do mind reading.

The Duke studies were discounted, other scientists said, because they were never duplicated elsewhere. Further, an extensive study at Stanford university showed "absolutely negative" results.

NEGRO BOY HELD

Henry Booker, 15, negro, living at 904 Layton avenue, was arrested Friday night by local police. At the time he was taken he was found to be in possession of six overcoats, said to have been stolen from parked automobiles here.

It once was customary to nail a cat underneath the floor of each new house in France, for good luck.

DEAR CHALLENGES ALLEN'S CHARGES

oppose the candidates of the state machine in this election was discussed.

"It is ridiculous to say that a murder plot would be discussed among 300 men. I do not believe that 'Oily' Oscar believes the charge that he is making in the interests of the candidates of the state machine, but if he does, let him do his duty.

"The state machine controls the attorney-general of Louisiana and the state machine controls the district attorney of New Orleans, where 'Oily' Oscar says the murder plot was hatched. If there was a plot, why doesn't 'Oily' Oscar have the attorney-general or the district attorney prosecute somebody?"

Congressman Dear criticized what he described as "the memorial mockeries" that are being held in various parts of the state "by such men as Paul English, a former entertainer in a night resort."

"They have no respect for the man they pretend to memorialize," Congressman Dear said. "They, under the guise of holding a memorial meeting, hold political meetings, and tell the members of 'Share-Our-Wealth' societies that they have to vote for a political machine dominated and ruled by Bob Maestri of New Orleans.

"If you people of the country parishes don't know who Bob Maestri is find out before January 21. Bob Maestri is the ruler of the lower section of New Orleans and the boss of the professional gamblers of New Orleans, St. Bernard and Jefferson parishes.

"Bob Maestri is the man who is trying to run the 'Share-Our-Wealth' societies today. I do not believe that the honest, sincere members of the 'Share-Our-Wealth' societies in the county parishes are going to turn me down—a man who has come up honestly from a small farm—for a political machine controlled by a man like Bob Maestri."

The crowd that filled the courthouse at Many and overflowed on the surrounding lawn cheered Congressman Dear when he declared that public officials who were guilty of state-owned land steals would be prosecuted in any other state in the American union.

"It is my opinion," Congressman Dear said, "that the United States will not permit 'Oily' Oscar Allen to become a member of that body if he ever appears to take his seat.

"Oscar Allen, as governor of Louisiana, signed away to Lieutenant-Governor Jimmy Noe leases on state-owned oil lands in Ouachita parish for which the state did not receive a dime. These same leases were sold by Jimmy Noe's Win or Lose Oil company for $320,000.

"Out of this $320,000 Governor Allen and Lieutenant-Governor Noe took $87,500 and purchased 11,000 acres of oil lands in Bossier parish. What was left of the $320,000 was divided up into checks, made payable to cash, and they were cashed without being endorsed.

"One of these checks was for $62,500 and Lieutenant-Governor Noe deposited this check in his bank in Monroe. Another check was for $50,000 and another for $24,000. I challenged Oscar Allen to deny that he got the $24,000 check, and he remains silent. I again defy him to deny that he got this $24,000 check. I do not believe he will ever answer."

Congressman Dear asserted that the officers of the Win or Lose Oil company were Lieutenant-Governor Noe, president; Seymour Weiss, head of the New Orleans dock board, vice-president, and Earle Christenberry, secretary.

"Earle Christenberry introduced Dick Leche, the state machine's candidate for governor, when Leche made his first speech of this campaign," Congressman Dear said, "and Earl Christenberry is the manager of Leche's campaign and the campaigns of the other state machine candidates.

"Leche says he approves the acts of 'Oily' Oscar. I don't doubt that he does—Earle Christenberry is his campaign manager, and Dick Leche was private secretary to Governor Allen before Allen appointed him to a judgeship in the city of New Orleans."

Congressman Dear declared that "this is the kind of gang of machine politicians that go among the poor people of Louisiana talking 'share-the-wealth.'"

"This gang of machine politicians," Congressman Dear continued, "has never shared a dime with the poor people of Louisiana. This is the same gang of politicians who refused to pass an old-age pension law, or to create a social welfare department to take care of the widows, sick mothers and orphans of our state.

"This is the same gang of machine politicians who have refused to lift a finger to help the farmers and the unemployed men and women of our state. Instead of trying to do something for the hungry people of Louisiana, this gang of politicians was fighting to keep $60,000,000 of federal money away from the unemployed of our state, and they succeeded in keeping out this public works administration money that would have paid union wages to the unemployed.

"This gang has found millions of dollars for the politicians, but not one cent for our unemployed, for our old people or for widows, sick mothers and orphans.

"This is the gang that parades dozens of bodyguards around the state to stick guns in the backs of 70-year-old men who violated no law. It is time in Louisiana when men should say whether they are men or jelly fish."

Congressman Dear asserted that there will be "no army of bodyguards rushing about the state intimidating law-abiding citizens when I am governor."

"When the Home Rule candidates take office," Congressman Dear said, "they will not need bodyguards to bludgeon the free people of Louisiana into submission."

Congressman Dear denounced Attorney-General Gaston L. Porterie for "failing to do his duty."

"Instead of prosecuting public officials who ought to be prosecuted," Congressman Dear said, "Porterie and his gang of state machine politicians have the gall to come before the people and ask for their votes."

"This is the same Gaston Porterie," Congressman Dear continued, "who used all the power of the attorney-general's office in an attempt to prevent the prosecution of 513 election crooks in the city of New Orleans—the election crooks who were pardoned by a legislature controlled by the state machine.

"'Oily' Oscar Allen signed the bill which pardoned these election crooks when Porterie was unable to save them from prosecution and conviction."

The issues confronting the people of Louisiana today, Congressman Dear said, "are as great as those which were foced by our fathers when they arose and drove the carpet-baggers from our state."

"The moral issues before the men and women of Louisiana today," Congressman Dear continued, "are as great as when our fathers drove the lottery out of the state. I do not believe the men and women of Louisiana are going to vote for state machine candidates who were selected and who are controlled by Bob Maestri and the professional gamblers of New Orleans, St. Bernard and Jefferson parishes."

Congressman Dear announced Earl Long, candidate for lieutenant-governor on the state machine's ticket, for "lying about my labor record."

"Earl Long said that my labor record in congress was the lowest of any member of congress," Congressman Dear said. "This is a deliberate lie. My labor record in congress is 100 per cent, and I invite any man or woman in Louisiana to write William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and ask him for my labor record.

"This state machine gang also has been spreading false propaganda against my record in congress on the soldiers' bonus. I am a World war veteran, and I voted for the soldiers' bonus, and I voted to override the president's veto.

"This state machine gang cannot tell the truth. Day in and day out they resort to falsehoods in an attempt to fool the people."

Congressman John N. Sandlin, candidate for the United States senate in opposition to Allen J. Ellender, also challenged Governor Allen "to have me arrested and prosecuted if he believes I had any connection with a murder plot."

"I know nothing of any murder plot," Congressman Sandlin said, "and I challenge Governor Allen to have me arrested and charged with any connection with any plot."

Other Home Rule candidates who spoke in Natchitoches and Sabine parishes today are Clement M. Moss, for lieutenant-governor; Philo Coco, for attorney-general; Francis Williams, for secretary of state; E. H. Fisher, for state superintendent of education; William T. Mayo, for state treasurer; Wilfred Begnaud, for state auditor, and Jules Carville, for register of the state land office.

Mr. Coco pledged himself to investigate "all frauds connected with the leasing of state-owned oil lands when I am attorney-general."

WED WITH DEATH IN CHAIR FACING BRIDEGROOM

The phrase, "Until death do us part," came with tragic import in the wedding ceremony of this couple, with the bridegroom in the shadow of the electric chair. His wrists handcuffed, John Collins, convicted of a holdup murder in Laurel, L. I., slipped the wedding ring on the finger of Anna Downey, his 18-year-old bride, and then was led back to his cell in the Queens county jail at Long Island City. Officiating was Municipal Judge William H. Robinson, right.

If nothing happens to disturb the "smooth course of justice," Mrs. Tilford will be hanged by the neck until she is dead next Tuesday. She may deserve it, although only the Angel Gabriel knows about that, but nine children born to her do not deserve it.

Mrs. Tilford will be the second woman hanged in Canada in 62 years, two too many.

THE AUTOMOBILE industry is "rejoicing in its strength," and that means general improvement. Mr. Harlow H. Curtice, of Flint, Michigan, makes automobiles and announces that during the last three months the number of his employes has averaged 13,563 against 6,962 for the same period a year ago. His payrolls are highest since 1929; his employes were paid during the three months mentioned, a total of $6,371,727, against $2,391,438, for the same period last year, an increase of 166.4 per cent. Such figures mean "better times."

GREAT BRITAIN PUTS PRESSURE ON SELASSIE

(By Associated Press)

Diplomatic disclosures bobbed up Saturday to embarrass further the British government, already on the defensive for its part in the peace plan it worked out with France.

An official foreign office "white paper" disclosed:

1. That Great Britain instructed its minister to Addis Ababa to use strong pressure upon Emperor Haile Selassie to have him accept the peace plan.

2. Britain hinted to Premier Mussolini that if he would negotiate over the formula a threatened league oil sanction would be called off.

The plan found few friends except in official London and Paris circles.

Even Premier Mussolini who, league officials estimated, would receive direct or indirect control of two-thirds of Ethiopia under it, was cool.

Il Duce asked for "clarification" of the formula and indicated he would give his answer after a midnight meeting of his fascist grand council next Wednesday.

Peace hopes in Rome slumped badly.

Guns on the African front were relatively quiet but a tragic accident killed an American missionary in Ethiopia.

Dr. Robert W. Hockman, 28, formerly of Wheaton, Ill., died when an unexploded Italian bomb he was handling Friday at Daggah Bur went off. These bombs were his hobby.

A significant diplomatic development was the disclosure that Great Britain has begun negotiations with Germany for a closer relationship.

Tales instigated in Berlin by the British ambassador with Reichsfuehrer Hitler were said to center about the possibilities of limitations of armaments and a mutual aid air pact among signers of the Locarno treaty, mainly Germany, France, Italy and Britain.

L. L. MURRELL TO TAKE POST AT PALACE STORE

L. L. Murrell of Beaumont, Texas, will arrive today to take charge of the first floor at The Palace, a post until recently held by William Grasse, who resigned to accept a position in Hattiesburg.

Sig Masur, president of The Palace, announced that Mr. Murrell comes here with the highest recommendations and is thoroughly competent to fill the place, and will be glad to meet the public at his new post which he will assume tomorrow.

He Grew Worse Each Day Until He Began Gly-Cas

Mr. Mahoney's System Had Filled With Poisons; Weak, Run Down; Rheumatism, Bladder Trouble Made Life More Miserable—Then Gly-Cas Amazes

"I know Gly-Cas will give satisfactory results wherever it is given a fair trial," said Mr. W. M. Mahoney, 68 years of age, 525 Grand Ave., Monroe, well known Railroad Man of this vicinity, recently in a surprising statement reaching the Phoenix Drug Co., 348 DeSiard Street, this city.

"For many years I had suffered continually with what medical authorities diagnosed as "asthma" and I was in a terribly weakened and run-down condition," said Mr. Mahoney. "I felt almost too miserable to accomplish anything I would undertake to do. My work in superintending building of bridges and railorad beds naturally exposed me to all kinds of weather which aggravated my health troubles continually. My work caused me to eat at different places where it was impossible to select the proper foods until I developed a severe case of constipation and a torpid liver. My kidneys then became weakened and caused me no end of distress, and I finally resorted to the use of strong medicines to get relief—but met only with repeated failure. As I continued to suffer rheumatism settled over my body and my bladder gave me considerable trouble over which I had no control. It was so discouraging and I had about given up hope of ever getting well again when I began to hear so much praise for this new Gly-Cas I decided to put it to a REAL TEST in my own case—and found it wonderful.

"I was actually amazed at the quick thorough action of this new Gly-Cas in my stubborn case," continued Mr. Mahoney, "my kidneys, liver and bowels are now properly regulated and they have eliminated those poisons which had collected in my system for years. All the rheumatic pains have gone entirely and that intense suffering of years has disappeared. I sleep well at night, my appetite has returned and I now really enjoy my food, feel fine and have renewed energy. To all those sufferers who have not yet given Gly-Cas the opportunity to help them I would recommend that they not hesitate any longer for the merit of this new remedy has been proven beyond all doubt."

Gly-Cas is sold by Phoenix Drug Co., 348 DeSiard St., Monroe, and by leading druggists in surrounding towns.

3rd Candidate No. 1
Surprise For Haile
Men's Minds Differ
Her 9 Children

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1935, by King Features Syndicate Inc., International Copyright and all other rights reserved.)

EVERY INTELLIGENT American is interested in the constitution of the United States, as he is interested in the foundation of his house.

No matter how well one may think he knows the constitution, its value and power, he will do well to read "Constitutionism, The Origin of Liberty Under The Constitution."

This book by James Mussatti, former professor of history at the University of Southern California, is published by the Richard Blank Publishing company of Los Angeles, Cal.

HERE IS REAL political news. Dr. F. E. Townsend, who invented the old-age pension plan with $200 a month for everybody sixty years old, says he'll have a presidential candidate of his own for 1936.

"We can lick both parties, hands down," is his way of putting it. Dr. Townsend says he is tired of being "belittled;" he has 30,000,000 men and women who signed petitions asking congress to pass his bill, his 30,000,000 are all voters, "and if politicians do not think this constitutes a definite threat to the traditional parties they ought to brush up on politics."

DR. TOWNSEND SAYS, concerning candidates, "We'll take anybody, although we draw the line at communism."

The $200-a-month candidate will be announced at a national convention next summer and before the campaign is over that candidate may worry the Democratic party as much as Senator Huey Long could have worried it, had he lived. Two hundred dollars a month is a good deal of money.

ENGLAND HOPED that the League of Nations might really do useful work and united 52 against one to force Italy out of Ethiopia. Then the plan failed, partly because France wanted no war in Europe and probably told England that, if war came, England would have to take care of herself and learn, all alone, what airplanes could do to battleships and cities. So a peace plan was suggested, that included carving up Ethiopia.

HAILE SELASSIE complained that the "peace" proposition would give half or two-thirds of Ethiopia to Italy now, European nations reserving the right to take the rest for Italy or themselves later. That appeals feebly to Haile Selassie, as a "peace plan."

DIFFERENT MINDS inhabit different skulls; environment has much to do with the difference, heredity has more. John Lawrence Collins, who killed a man last June and will die in the electric chair next January, born in New Orleans, did not know who his father and mother were, "did not care." Two days ago he married a girl "because she was going to have a baby," but said "he didn't care whether he married the girl or not."

The judge sentenced him to death, Collins smiled, said "No," when asked if he had anything to say. When he started for Sing Sing prison to wait

SECRETARY PERKINS OFFERS NEW SOCIAL SECURITY PROGRAM

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Outlining a new seven-point social security program, Secretary Perkins called tonight for cooperation of labor and management "with the government standing by to aid."

The labor secretary held such "cooperative activity and understanding" "not only would consolidate industrial gains since the depression's low point, but also would carry the nation into an era of "greater security."

While citing the "vital importance" of profits in industry, Miss Perkins told the New York County Lawyers' association that "good and steady wages for workers and fair prices for the produce of farmers" were necessary for a "sound" prosperity.

In Washington, meanwhile, George L. Berry, President Roosevelt's coordinator for industrial cooperation, postponed the first meeting of his new industrial council scheduled originally to meet "within a few days" after last Monday's turbulent labor-industry conference.

DENHAM SPRINGS MAN IS KILLED IN ROAD MISHAP

BATON ROUGE, La., Dec. 14.—(AP)—W. M. Brown, 65, of Denham Springs, La., was killed tonight when an automobile struck a parked truck in which he was seated near the Harelson community. State highway police said the automobile was driven by O. L Wright of Pride, La. No action was taken against Wright.

COTTON EXPORTS SHOOT UPWARD; AAA IS PLEASED

Officials See Increase As Part Of Long-Sought Answer To Critics

SHIPMENTS MORE THAN 2 TIMES AMOUNT IN 1934

Reports Of Climb May Become Campaign Ammunition Next Summer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14. — (AP) — Sharply increasing cotton exports today were described by AAA officials as part of their long-sought answer to opposition charges that crop control had ruined the nation's foreign agricultural market.

The commerce department today reported that exports in November were 1,134,874 bales or more than twice the 572,359 bales shipped during the same month last year. Secretary Wallace quickly stepped forward to add that the November exports were greater than the past ten year average for the month—1,117,000 bales.

"While the exports may not continue up to the ten year average," Wallace said, "we are very much pleased."

The agriculture secretary added that while the demand earlier in the season indicated an increase for 1935, the report for November showed the first major rise in shipments.

T. W. HOUSE, JR., COMMITS SUICIDE

Son-In-Law Of Former Illinois Governor Kills Himself In Texas

WACO, Texas, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Thomas William House, Jr., 31, nephew of Col. E. M. House and son-in-law of former Governor Charles Deneen of Illinois, was shot to death at his home here today, and Joe Trippet, assistant district attorney, pronounced the wounds self-inflicted.

Trippet said House left notes addressed to his wife and children saying, "I couldn't make the grade."

House, vice-president of the Texas Long Distance Telephone company, was found fatally wounded in the basement of his home at 8:30 a.m. He had been shot four times in the chest, one bullet making a flesh wound and the other three going through the body.

He was dead upon reaching a hospital, but a physician, called by Mrs. House, reached the scene before he died. The presence of the physician satisfied legal requirements and no inquest was held.

The physician, Dr. F. W. Hoehn, said House died of bullet wounds in the chest, but did not discuss how the wounds were inflicted.

T. W. House, Sr., father of the dead man, came here by airplane from Houston immediately after learning of his son's death, but like other members of the family, declined to discuss the shooting.

The body probably will be sent to Houston for burial. Plans were not complete late today.

House had been here about eight months. Previously he had been stationed in Cincinnati, New Orleans, and Washington, D. C.

Besides the widow, survivors include a daughter, Bess Ashly, 3, born in Cincinnati, and another daughter, Bina Loulie, born here three weeks ago.

'VIBRATING' BOY MYSTERY SOLVED

Physician Says Lad Becomes 'Human Echo', Reproduces Noises

HAWKSHEAD, Lancashire, Eng., Dec. 14.—(AP)—The mystery of seven-year-old Frank Atkinson, who "vibrates" when he sleeps and whose body produces strange "knockings," has been solved—in principle at least.

Through some unknown physiological process, doctors said they had determined the boy, while asleep, becomes a "human echo" and reproduces a noise created anywhere near him.

Dr. W. E. Allen, a local physician, said today his parents still cling to the belief their son is the victim of some unworldly force. They refuse to let the boy be placed in the care of a specialist.

"I am convinced an abnormal nervous system is responsible for the weird sounds apparently emanating from the boy's abdomen." Dr. Allen said. "Tests with the boy sleeping in a neighbor's home had no variant results."

For some time the story of the boy has brought talk of ghosts and of supernatural powers. To soothe public fears Dr. Allen, with several

OLSON RENEWS HIS REQUEST FOR AID OF FEDERAL MEN

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 14.—(AP)—State officials, who refused to take "no" for an answer, today challenged Attorney General Homer S. Cummings either to approve federal inquiry of the Liggett assassination or disclose the evidence on which he "indicted the reputations" of the Twin Cities.

Their first appeal for federal handling of the case rejected yesterday by Cummings, Gov. Floyd B. Olson and State's Attorney General H. H. Peterson today renewed their request and expressed conviction a government inquiry "will disclose a violation of federal law."

Cummings, more than a year ago, branded the Twin Cities "poison spots of crime." The Minnesota officials advised Cummings this "created an obligation upon you to honor our requests for the use of department of justice operatives."

WALT CAGLE FIXES DATE FOR ANNUAL HOG KILLIN' TIME

BOAZ, Ala., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Hog killin' time and the official start of winter for Boaz has been set for next Wednesday by Sand mountain's own Walt Cagle.

Walt, seated comfortably in his farm home at Mountain Borough, promised today to make his annual appearance in Boaz at that time to pick up his winter wardrobe of oversized clothes and receive what is expected to be a gala welcome.

For more than 20 years the appearance of 550-pound Walt Cagle has signalized the beginning of winter for Sand mountain, just as has his annual order for size 74 overalls, underwear, and 12 1-2 size shoes meant repeated plaints from manufacturers that "there can't be a man that big—are you sure the size is correct?"

OKLAHOMA AREA IS QUARANTINED

County Health Authorities Work To Halt Outbreak Of Meningitis

HOBART, Okla., Dec. 14.—(AP)—With an entire county under strict quarantine, health authorities worked tonight to halt an outbreak of meningitis that has caused one known death and possibly several more.

Records of Dr. J. L. Adams, Kiowa county health officer, showed one death, that of five-year-old Edgar A. Studdard, definitely ascribed to meningitis.

"There have been nine other deaths recently that may have been from the disease," he said. "However, no post-mortem examinations were made. Hence we can suspect only from the illnesses of those who came in contact with the dead that any or all of the nine deaths may have been caused by it."

Nine illnesses in the county of 29,630 population definitely were diagnosed as meningitis cases by Dr. Adams tonight.

Two other cases, not definitely diagnosed, were being treated for meningitis. Three others were being studied.

Business men, workers and farmers accepted the quarantine quietly. Merchants who had advertised heavily, expecting this week-end to be one of the biggest of the Christmas season, regretted the wholesale shutdown. They were quick, however, to urge strict observance of the quarantine.

Travel on main highways was not halted, but all public assemblages were banned and grocery and drug

INDIGNATION SERVICE IS PLANNED AT TAMPA

TAMPA, Fla., Dec. 14.—(AP)—A public service of penitence and indignation Sunday afternoon will crystallize Tampa's sentiment against the flogging death of Joseph Shoemaker for which no one has been arrested.

The Tampa Ministerial association will conduct the service in advance of a grand jury investigation of the killing which starts Monday. The Rev. Walter Metcalf, president of the association, said:

"The meeting is for the purpose of creating a deep moral tone of indignation and penitence and a consciousness deep in our civic sense of the general condition in Tampa." He did not define the "general condition."

SECRET ACTIONS SHADOW PARLEY

Conference Works To Extricate Itself From Jap Parity Demands

LONDON, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The shadow of secret diplomatic maneuvers fell tonight across the week-end naval conference, struggling to extricate itself from the complications of Japanese parity demands.

Uncertainty hinged on two developments, both originating with the Japanese.

Some observers expressed fear the conference might be turned into a "super-secret" session, coupled with the launching of separate talks. They said this might steer the conference on the rocks of bilateral conversations which wrecked preliminary negotiations last year.

The Americans were uneasy at this trend from the open round table discussions, which they feel are vital to avoid the playing off of one nation against the other.

Great Britain's delegation hastened to clear up the status of its private talk last night with the Japanese and said it was purely supplementary to the conference itself. Such talks among the various delegations are continuing from time to time.

Nevertheless, the feeling remained among observers that the Japanese are trying to drive a wedge between the Americans and the British in their opposition to Tokyo's equality proposal.

This seemed to be borne out by Tokyo dispatches hinting that equality in Japan's demands is equality with the United States.

No formal session of the conference was held today. Instead of a general session Monday, a secret meeting will be held attended only by delegates.

PALLBEARERS DOWN STRONG WHISKY AT DEIBEL'S FUNERAL

DENVER, Dec. 14.—(AP)—After a funeral in a barrom, pallbearers downed glasses of strong whisky today over the casket of George Deibel, eccentric rag picker.

Thus they fulfilled his last wish.

The toast was raised in the historic old barroom of the Windsor Hotel—once owned by the late H. A. W. Tabor, Colorado silver king.

Deibel, 90 and a bachelor, requested that his funeral be held in the room, frequented many years ago by some of Denver's most prominent residents.

He instructed Bishop Frank Rice of the Liberal church to serve the pallbearers "liquor of strong alcoholic content."

The toast was drunk to the tune of "It's Springtime in the Rockies," one of Deibel's favorites.

For 49 years Deibel drove through the alleys of Denver collecting junk. Bishop Rice said the business netted him a "comfortable amount."

MERRILL MOVES ON TO HUNT MISSING EXPLORER

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Pan American Airways radio system reported today Pilot Dick Merrill, flying a plane to the rescue of Lincoln Ellsworth, missing in the Antarctic, arrived in Tapachula, state of Merida, Mexico, at 5:18 p. m.

The flier planned to spend the night there and take off tomorrow morning, weather permitting, for Cristobal, Panama Canal Zone.

He took off from here shortly before noon today.

BRUNO CONFIDENT HE WILL ESCAPE DEATH IN CHAIR

Condemned Man Gravely Thanks Prison Guard For News Of Sentence

MONTH FROM YESTERDAY MAY BE EXECUTION DAY

Governor Reported To Have Promised Hauptmann His Life Won't Be Taken

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann convicted murderer of the kidnaped Lindbergh baby, learned today that the week of January 13 has been set for his death in the electric chair.

With grave politeness he thanked the unnamed prison guard who brought him the news, and reiterated his conviction that "something will happen so I won't go to the chair."

A short time later he received a visit from his spiritual adviser, the Rev. John Matthiesen, of Trenton, who found him as cool and composed as he had been throughout the six weeks' trial at Flemington.

"He knew what was coming up," the minister said. "The news' really made no impression on him. He is full of confidence in the fact that the state of New Jersey does not intend to permit a murder."

Should all of the eleventh hour efforts of his attorneys fail to save him, Hauptmann will probably go to the chair exactly a month from today. Al-

AMERICAN DOCTOR KILLED BY BOMB

Dr. Robert W. Hockman Dies When Unexploded Italian Shell Bursts

JIJIGA, Ethiopia, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The explosion of an Italian bomb has cost the life of a 28-year-old American missionary, Dr. Robert W. Hockman.

The former Wheaton, Ill., resident, was blown to death at Daggah Bur, on the southern front, while handling an unexploded Italian bomb yesterday, it was learned today.

Since the outbreak of hostilities Dr. Hockman worked untiringly for the Ethiopian Red Cross, establishing the first medical unit on the front.

"We have lost the most valuable, most efficient Red Cross worker in Ethiopia," said Dr. T. A. Lambie, secretary-general of the Ethiopian Red Cross. He praised Hockman's heroism when Daggah Bur was bombarded recently.

The young United Presbyterian missionary is survived by his widow and a one-month-old child, who are now at an American mission in Egypt. She formerly lived at New Concord, Ohio.

Dr. Hockman made a hobby of studying bombs. He recently supervised the digging out of a nine-foot unexploded projectile at Daggah Bur.

His body is being taken to Addis Ababa for burial. Dr. Hockman went to Addis Ababa in December, planning to go to Egypt to see his child for the first time, but Red Cross au-

ALLOTMENT APPROVED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(Special)—An allotment of $24,000 for the dredging of Ouachita river to restore channel depth of six and one-half feet in the vicinity of Long Lake landing and Jack's landing was approved today by Acting Secretary of War Woodring.

Home Rule Leader Invites Arrest In Answer To Attack

'His Duty To Prosecute, If He Believes I'm Guilty Of Plotting Murder,' Declares Dear; 'I Defy Him To Do It'

ELLENDER SAYS PENSION UP TO U. S.

State Hasn't Enough Money, Avers Candidate; Dear Replies He Can Save Enough In Government Expenses To Do It

BATON ROUGE, La., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Congressman Cleveland Dear, anti-administration candidate for governor, today defied Governor O. K. Allen to prefer charges against him for plotting to assassinate the late Senator Huey Long, while Allen J. Ellender, administration candidate for the United States senate, charged there is "no basis for Dear's promises" to pay old-age pensions.

Speaking at Many, Dear answered charges he attributed to Allen and other administrationists that he had participated at a New Orleans hotel gathering when a plot to assassinate Long was discussed.

"If I am guilty of plotting the murder of any man, it is Governor Allen's duty to have me arrested and prosecuted," Dear stated. "I defy him to do it."

Ellender said payment of old-age pensions was the problem of the federal government. Dear has said he could save half of the $42,000,000 the state government is spending annually and pay the pensions.

"There is no basis for Dear's promises," Ellender said in an address at Oakdale yesterday. He said the state actually is run on less than $20,000,000 annually."

"Huey Long and I talked about this old-age pension problem a lot," Ellender said. "We were convinced that it would take $1,500,000 a month to pay it. Let Mr. Dear tell you where he is going to get this money."

The anti-administration candidates "fought everything that Senator Long provided for your benefit, but we are going to repudiate them at the polls," Judge Richard Leche, administration candidate for governor, told a Leesville meeting.

A disturbance occurred at DeRidder when Ped C. Kay, DeRidder attorney, threatened Joe Bates, assistant chief of the state bureau of identification and investigation, with a shotgun after Bates refused to move automobiles parked for a political rally.

Sheriff Henry Cain and Chief of Police Dutch Lacaze disarmed Kay but the attorney was not arrested.

DE RIDDER, La., Dec. 14.—Expressing the opinion that the provision of old-age pensions is a problem that rests with the federal government, Allen J. Ellender, candidate for United States senator on the state machine ticket, in his meeting here yesterday called upon Congressman Cleveland Dear, the Home Rule candidate for governor, to explain where he would raise the money for the benefits he has promised the people.

"This opposition is going around telling you they are going to give you old-age pensions, and this and that," said Mr. Ellender, speaking in the Beauregard parish courthouse. "Where are they going to get the money to do all that? These antis, and they are the same bunch now, always have opposed our revenue measures in the state legislature. Are they going to follow the same old beaten path?

"Cleveland Dear is saying that it costs the people $42,000,000 a year to run the state government and that he is going to cut that cost in half to provide the funds for the benefits he advocates. That $42,000,000 he is talking about is contained in the appropriation bill for 1930, when we were putting the road improvement program through.

"Actually, the state's general fund is $8,500,000 annually. All other revenues are from constitutional taxes, which are dedicated to a specific purpose. The state in reality is run on less than $20,000,000 annually. It costs about $14,000,000 to run the schools and the other state institutions and branches, exclusive of the interest on bond issues."

"Let Mr. Dear tell you where he is going to get this money. He has

MANY, La., Dec. 14.—Congressman Cleveland Dear, candidate for governor on the Home Rule ticket, in his address last night hurled two challenges at Governor O. K. Allen.

"I again challenge 'Oily' Oscar Allen to tell the people of Louisiana if he got a check for $24,000 out of the profits of the Win or Lose Oil company," Congressman Dear said. "I defied 'Oily' Oscar three days ago to deny that he got this check and he remains silent.

"'Oily' Oscar has not answered, and I do not believe he will ever answer."

Congressman Dear also challenged Governor Allen to have him arrested. "'Oily' Oscar Allen is going around the state preaching hatred and charging that a murder plot was hatched in the De Soto hotel in New Orleans," Congressman Dear asserted. "'Oily' Oscar, if he believes this to be the truth, should have somebody arrested. I challenge him to have me arrested in connection with any murder plot.

"If I am guilty of plotting the murder of any man, it is Governor Allen's duty to have me arrested and prosecuted. I defy him to do it. If Allen does not believe that I am connected with any plot, then he should, in common decency, stop making such a charge."

Congressmen Dear, speaking in Natchitoches and Sabine parishes today, asserted that "you people know me and know that I would not be a part of any murder plot."

"There was an assembly of about 300 men in the De Soto hotel, and the doors were wide open during the discussions there," Congressman Dear continued. "There was nothing secret about these discussions. A ticket to

FRANCE IS READY TO ANNOUNCE HER DEFAULT ON DEBTS

PARIS, Dec. 14.—(AP)—France was ready today to announce her semi-annual default on war debts to the United States.

The usual polite note is expected to be issued, acknowledging the bill for tomorrow's installment of approximately $22,000,000 with a renewed expression of willingness to negotiate a settlement when conditions are better.

The anniversary of the first default three years ago, when Edouard Herriot was thrown out of the premiership by the chamber of deputies for wanting to pay, finds the debt now officially dead.

Even the former advocates of payment, including M. Herriot, now are silent. The governor and parliament are occupied so far as finances are concerned solely with securing France a balanced budget for 1936 and finding a way out of [illegible]

Prizes To Be Awarded For 7 Best Decorated Doorways

Forty-five dollars in prizes will be awarded for the best decorated doorways in Monroe and West Monroe during the Christmas season, it was announced Saturday by officers of the Monroe Garden club, which is sponsoring a movement to stimulate a more festive appearance of the residential section of the Twin Cities in observance of Yuletide.

The city of Monroe, Chamber of Commerce of Monroe and West Monroe and the World and News-Star are cooperating in the program by contributing to the fund for the prizes.

No prizes will be awarded for illuminated outdoor Christmas trees, it was announced, the plan being to encourage doorway decoration as offering a larger opportunity for widespread participation.

Seven prizes will be awarded as follows: First, $15; second, $10; third, $7.50; fourth, $5; three prizes of $2.50 each.

The awards will be made only to private residences or apartment houses. No business places or industrial plants will be eligible for participation. The decorations are to be judged according to artistic arrangement, irrespective of the volume of illumination introduced. In order to make this rule effective, the judging will take place in daylight, it has been announced.

Decorations are to be in place not later than Christmas Eve and must remain until New Year's night. The judging will be made during the holiday week. Announcement of prize winners will be made New Year's morning.

No formal entry will be necessary. All decorated doorways in the two cities will be inspected and will be considered in the awarding of prizes.

NEW BUSES ARE EXPECTED TODAY

Big Carriers Are Being Driven Through To City From Lima, Ohio

The large new buses ordered for the municipal street railway from a plant in Lima, Ohio, will arrive in Monroe some time today, it was announced Saturday. Four bus drivers and a mechanic, together with John Brothers, superintendent of the local street railway, left earlier in the week for the Ohio city to drive back the new buses.

Word was received here that plans contemplated the return by way of Louisville, Nashville and Meridian. A wire stated that they were in Louisville at 9 a. m. Friday and that that night would be spent in Nashville and Saturday in Meridian. They are expected here sometime in the middle of the afternoon today.

The buses are of large size and much more modern than those now in use. They will be placed on the run out DeSiard road and on the north side where the traffic is the heviest.

Much of the "morocco leather" goods on European markets comes from Kano, a city in northern Nigeria, British West Africa.

City Briefs

A charity ball will be held on Cherokee terrace, Hotel Frances, on December 21 by the Ouachita Business Men's club. Music will be furnished by Alec White's orchestra. Net proceeds will be used to provide Christmas baskets for the underprivileged.

All third and fourth grade teachers of the Ouachita parish schools were given special demonstrations in their various studies at the Ouachita parish grammar school Saturday morning.

A large Christmas tree was placed in the lobby of Hotel Virginia Saturday. A myriad of little incandescent globes with gay colors adorns the tree which is surmounted with a large star of the east. The tree is receiving much favorable comment from all who chance to visit the hostelry.

With added trucks and clerks, the Monroe postoffice is prepared to handle with speed and accuracy the biggest Christmas business thus far in the history of the new building. The peak of business is expected to be reached some day during the middle of the present week. To facilitate business the office will be open Saturday afternoon of this week.

Mayor C. C. Bell of West Monroe, and S. H. McCalry, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of Monroe and West Monroe, are in New Orleans attending the sessions of the national rivers and harbors congress. Ceremonies in connection with the opening of the Bonnet Carre spillway bridge also comprised part of the celebration.

The city schools will close for the holidays on Friday, December 20, and will reopen on January 2, according to announcement made Saturday by E. L. Neville, superintendent. The parish schools will close also on Friday but are to reopen on New Year's day. The Northeast Center of Louisiana State university will close on Wednesday of this week and will reopen on January 2.

A nominating committee composed of Fred Williamson, Lucyle Godwin and Mrs. E. P. Cudd was named Friday noon at the meeting of the Council of Social Agencies. They are instructed to prepare names on which the membership will vote at the January meeting for new officers for the coming year. Final plans were formulated at the luncheon for the disbursement of toys to underprivileged children at Christmas time.

The educational project of the WPA will be resumed throughout the fifth district shortly after Christmas, stated A. P. Lassiter, director, on Saturday. This will mean the reemployment of many teachers in the 14 parishes inclusive of Ouachita, in the near future. They have not been employed in this line since last summer when the project was called to a halt.

Miss Johnnie Tucker, of this city, was reported convalescing yesterday at the Vaughan-Wright-Bendel clinic, following an operation performed Friday.

The Library club of the Northeast Center of Louisiana State university its sponsoring a "stunt program" Monday at activities period. Each club at the college will be asked to present a "stunt" which must not require more than five minutes to complete. The club that stages the best program will be awarded a prize. There is said to be a lively interest among the clubs as to which will put on the best program.

The Masonic lodge in West Monroe, known as F. & A. M., No. 419, held its annual election the past week which resulted as follows: J. L. Warren, worshipful master; Ford Hines, senior warden; L. L. Wood, junior warden; F. C. McConnell, secretary; F. G. Thatcher, treasurer.

Mrs. J. G. Bell and Mrs. J. Wilder spent Saturday in Gilbert, where they visited friends and relatives.

The meeting scheduled to be held this afternoon at the L. B. Faulk post's memorial home by the members of the Sons of the American Legion, has been postponed, it was announced Saturday night.

FRANK CLINE TO TAKE PRISONERS TO ANGOLA

Deputy Sheriff Frank Cline will leave this morning for Angola, where he will take the following prisoners to the penitentiary, convicted and sentenced during the last session of the criminal district court here: J. K. McKeller, found guilty of breaking and entering in the night time, two years; Harrison Davis, convicted of murder, life imprisonment; Sam Lewis, convicted of larceny of a yearling, six months; John Pierce, convicted of possession of stolen property, eight to 24 months.

FIREWORKS ARE CAUSE OF BLAZE SATURDAY

Children playing with fireworks were responsible for a small fire yesterday at 717 Jackson street, occupied by J. T. Deal. Trucks 1, 2 and 6 answered the call.

A Chevrolet truck caught fire at Jackson and Plum streets, due, it was reported, to the owner striking a match close to the gasoline tank. The blaze was quickly put out, without damage to the truck.

NEGRO IS CAPTURED

The alertness of Officer J. M. Busby resulted in the speedy capture of Alonzo Claburn, negro, of Farmerville, who, it was reported, had driven off with a truck belonging to A. Keller & Son, 215 North Second street. The alleged theft of the truck was bulletined to the police and Busby made the arrest as Claburn was crossing the traffic bridge. The negro is being held in the city jail. He is said to have told officers that he "just wanted to ride to Farmerville."

Newsmen Hurl Barbs At Annual Gridiron Dinner

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Six Herbert Hoovers from whom to choose a Republican presidential candidate and a Harry Hopkins who took over control of the tides from the moon were paraded before President Roosevelt and a distinguished group of guests tonight by the Gridiron club.

In the semi-annual dinner of the famed dining club, Washington newspaper correspondents whetted news events into good humored barbs which they flung with impartial hand at those who hold the reins of the nation.

Most of those who figured in the pointed drama and song were present to see themselves marched across the stage. From the scene of the merriment emanted a report that President Roosevelt and Norman Thomas spoke. But there are no reporters at Gridiron dinners.

Some of the dramatic skits showed: William Randolph Hearst, Arthur Brisbane, Colonel Robert R. McCormick, the Chicago publisher, Charlie Chaplin, James Cagney, William Powell, Aimee Semple McPherson and J. P. Morgan moving to a desert island in their hunt for a tax free refuge.

American Liberty league lawyers who became mistaken for nine buggy drivers that turned out to be the supreme court.

Attorney General Cummings and Secretary Roper singing the touching story of "Franklin and Johnson" who were "buddies" and how "Hugh" was "our pal but he done us wrong."

White House secretaries Early and McIntyre, dubbed 'Early and Late," recounting famous news events at which they had failed to function and agreeing that the president had asked "where is my secretary-at?"

The Schechter brothers of Brooklyn taking their famous NRA chickens to the Olympic games with Ogden Reid, publisher of the New York Herald-Tribune, presenting a rooster to them to perpetuate the Schechter strain.

Harry Hopkins talking over with the Man in the Moon his plans to boondoggle there.

"Nellie, the beautiful stock model," striving to save her little subsidiaries from Jam M. Landis and the securities act, and wailing for fear her "pretty ones" may "die to carry Nebraska" for the "Squire of Hyde Park."

The Republicans striving to stage a new 'G. O. P. Follies" in "Tugwelltown" with six Herbert Hoovers as potential stars and explaining in song that:

INTIMATE STUDIES OF CLEVELAND DEAR, CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR OF LOUISIANA, ON THE 'HOME RULE' TICKE

O'NEILL ASSAILS POLICE JURY ACT

Says Law Permitting Appointment Of Officials Is Unconstitutional

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 14.—(AP)—In his dissenting opinion handed down today in the East Baton Rouge police jury case, Chief Justice Charles A. O'Neill asserted that the act of the legislature which permitted Governor Allen to appoint an additional police juror in the parish or every elected juror was unconstitutional.

Validity of the act, No. 22 of the third extra session in 1934, was upheld by a four to three decision of the supreme court on December 2.

Chief Justice O'Neill's opinion declared that the act wrested from the people of East Baton Rouge parish "their right of local self government" and that it "violates both the letter and the spirit of several guarantees in the constitution."

"In the first place," the dissenting opinion stated, "the statute was enacted in violation of section 14 of article V of the constitution, which declared that the legislature, in an extraordinary session, shall not enact any law having an object not 'specifically enumerated' in the proclamation of the governor convening the extraordinary session."

"Any one of the violations of the constitution that I have mentioned," the opinion said, "is sufficient to render the statute null.

"If the constitutional guaranties which I have referred to are so limp and impotent that they do not safeguard the people against such anomalous legislation as act No. 22 of the third extra session of 1934, those safeguards ought to be strengthened and made more effective—to the end that the government of Louisiana shall remain always in truth a government of laws and not men."

Modern External Treatment Helps End Colds Sooner

OFTEN RELIEVES BY MORNING

Before a miserable cold gets you down, go to bed and apply Vicks VapoRub. Two generations have proved VapoRub the surest help to a milder, shorter cold.

Just rubbed on throat and chest at bedtime, VapoRub acts two ways at once:

1. By stimulation through the skin, like a poultice or plaster.
2. By inhalation of its penetrating medicated vapors, released by body heat and breathed in direct to inflamed air-passages.

Continuing through the night, this combined vapor-poultice action loosens phlegm — soothes irritated membranes—helps break congestion. Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

Dear Directs Vigorous Fight In Governorship

'Home Rule' Candidate Has Had Interesting History In His March Toward Political Prominence

By James C. Bushong

Tall, well built and with sincerity of purpose plainly written on his square, rugged, thoughtful face, the speaker is driving his thoughts home. As he scores a particularly telling blow against his adversary, his hazel eyes flash and his right fist descends in an arch into his open left hand.

A few seconds later the speaker's voice has dropped to an earnest, conversational tone and he is appealing as "man to man" with them. And now they pay him the tribute of quiet attention.

It is a typical scene from any one of the Hume Rule meetings where the quiet but forceful 47-year-old Cleveland Dear has spoken during the past month or so of campaigning.

Louisiana likes a fighter, and Cleveland Dear, his friends will tell you, is a two-fisted fighter who "only gets going good when they start crowding him."

Born in 1888 near Sugartown, in what is now Beauregard parish, the present leader of the Home Rule ticket comes of fighting stock, the same Scotch-Irish and English strain that sired General Andrew "Old Hickory" Jackson.

His old teacher, Sam Iles, recalled recently that as a quiet, reserved boy, "Cleveland Dear never started any fights, but he never ran away from any either."

Educated in the public schools and Louisiana State university where he worked his way while obtaining a college and law degree, Cleveland Dear never voluntarily sought public office.

Years ago, when he was a mere lad, his father, "Uncle Jim" Dear told him: "No matter what anyone tells you, son, there is such a thing as duty, and when you see your duty, you go ahead and do it, regardless of what anyone says."

Cleveland Dear remembered that when the United States entered the World war, so he enlisted with his law partner, Frank Peterman, and went to perform that duty. He served with the infantry for a time and then joined the ammunition train detachment, known because of the danger as the "Suicide Club." He came out of the war a captain.

He recalled that duty talk again in 1920 when a group of Alexandria lawyers and business men went to him and asked him to make the race for district attorney.

He did not want to run for district attorney or any other office. He had built up a considerable legal practice, but he saw it as his duty and entered the race. He won and was launched on his career as a public office holder. He has been holding public office ever since.

Twice more, in 1924 and 1928 his candidacy was posted for the district attorneyship, and Cleveland Dear won, one time with opposition and once unopposed.

Then, in 1932, another delegation of citizens, a group who represented an area larger than Beauregard parish, wanted him as their candidate for congress from the eighth district. He was elected to congress. He was returned in 1934.

In the early part of 1935 when the group that is now known as the Home Rule faction gathered for their caucuses, Cleveland Dear was chosen to head the ticket as gubernatorial candidate.

Today Cleveland Dear is the recognized leader of the Home Rule group, not only as their most important candidate, but by virtue of the qualities of leadership that he has asserted. When the candidates split up into groups to accommodate their itineraries, the others clamor to be on the same platform with Cleveland.

An acquaintance to some of his fellow candidates when the campaign opened, he is now the warm, personal friend of all of them, as attested by their affectionate greetings when he returns from a flying visit to his home.

Cleveland Dear is a quiet man and one who does not seek the limelight. He will tell you that if he has a difference with a man there is nothing he likes better than to sit down in a room and calmly discuss the matter with him. "You can get somewhere that way," he says, "and you know where you stand when you are through speaking."

But if political speeches are needed, Cleveland Dear can make them too. And as his old teacher said, he has never learned how to run away from a fight.

OBITUARY

CONNELLA RITES

ALEXANDRIA, Dec. 14.—(Special)—Miss Louise Connella, 55, of Bayou Rapides, died at a local hospital at 3 a.m. Friday, December 13. She is survived by one brother, Conrad Connella, Glendale, Calif.; three sisters, Mrs. J. E. Hixson, Lake Charles, La.; Mrs. G. S. Johnston, Mims, Fla., and Mrs. J. D. Herron, Roswell, N. M. She was an aunt of Mrs. Fred Williamson, Monroe, La.

Miss Connella was born in Rapides parish on March 19, 1885, the daughter of the late John Levin Connella and the former Miss Jessie Edgar. Miss Connella's father was an instructor in law at Soule college in New Orleans, La., in his early life, later moving to Rapides parish, where he taught private school and was a planter.

5,000 EXPECTED AT CHURCH MEET

Methodist Young People Will Attend Memphis Conference

Methodist young people from all parts of the United States will assemble in Memphis, Tenn., 5,000 strong for a conference planned by the general board of Christian education, December 27-31. Monroe, West Monroe and many cities and towns of northeast Louisiana will send large delegations. The three-fold purpose of the meeting will be to guide youth to a personal relationship with the great leader of all Christianity, to arouse youth to the idea that in this alone is the salvation for the woes of the present day world, and to launch a program for united action by all young people of the Methodist denomination.

Some of the best speakers in the country will appear on the program, many persons occupying positions of national and international leadership. The list includes Y. C. Yang, president of Soochow university; Toyohiko Kagawa of Japan; Senator Gerald P. Nye; Allan K. Chalmers, Mrs. Induk Pak of Korea; Kirby Page, Regina Westcott Wieman; Willis A. Sutton, Mordecai Johnson, E. McNeill Poteat, Jr., Charles Gilkey, Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes and others.

From the start of the convention to its close, there will be something doing all the time. It is said that Memphis hotels will be taxed to the limit to accommodate the anticipated 5,000 persons at the convention.

COMMERCE GROUP TO END PRIMARY TODAY

All ballots in the primary election for members of the senior and junior boards of the Chamber of Commerce of Monroe and West Monroe must be received by midnight tonight, stated S. H. McClary, secretary.

After the primary ballots have been received, a new set of ballots will be sent out for the holding of the election proper.

When both senior and junior boards have been named, each meets and elects its own officers to function through the year.

CALLED FAGIN

Once a candidate for the governorship of Massachusetts, Nelson B. Clark is pictured at New York for his trial on charges of robbery and receiving stolen property. INDUSTRIAL AND REVIEW OF THE TWIN CITIES

SAFETY SHOULD BE BUILT IN CAR

Oldsmobile Official Discusses Important Problem Of Traffic Safety

"Motoring safety, very much on the public mind, can be attained only in one way—the building of the safest possible cars by the manufacturer and the temperate use of their power and speed by the motorist."

This was the statement of C. L. McCuen, Oldsmobile president and general manager, in discussing the important problem of traffic safety.

"The mere passage of laws is not the answer to the problem which concerns us all so deeply," he said. "There must be a full measure of cooperation on the part of the man who makes the modern motor car and the man who drives it.

"The manufacturer must build into his product those important and proved safety devices which will aid a motorist in avoiding an accident. He must have brakes strong enough and sure enough to stop his car in the shortest possible time. He must enclose the passengers in his cars in walls of steel, above, below and on all sides of them. He should add the further protection of safety glass. He must make his car easy to steer, easy to manipulate in any emergency.

"And the motorist must take full advantage of these safety devices. More than that, he should drive at all times with extreme caution, traveling at slower speeds at night than he does in the daytime.

"He must know what to do on all kinds of roads and in all kinds of traffic. He should realize that pedestrians cannot move as quickly as he is moving, and therefore should anticipate situations which might cause trouble.

"There are certain definite precautions, familiar to most motorists, to take when driving on icy streets, on gravel roads, in snow and sleet and rain. Periodical checking of brakes, tires, lights, horns, windshield wipers and steering apparatus should be made by every motorist. A defect in any of these might well cause an accident.

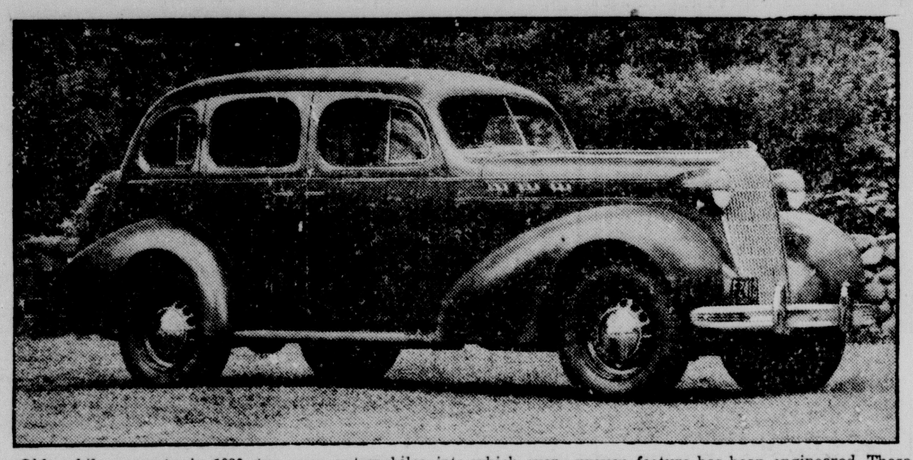
"No motorist deliberately invites an accident. But by failure to keep his car in condition, to abide by the traffic regulations of the state and city in which he lives, by forgetting for a brief moment his caution, he may well extend just such an invitation.

"The manufacturer is trying to do his part. Special engineers are assigned to test cars for their safety, to devise new ways to give added protection to the people who drive them.

"Each year finds more rigid frames, greater over-all strength, more powerful and quicker acting brakes—a hundred and one things which mean additional safety to the men and women driving on the country's highways today.

"Through the cooperation of both the manufacturers and the drivers, the accident toll on the highways can be sharply diminished. It surely is worth the effort."

THE CAR THAT HAS EVERYTHING



Oldsmobile presents, in 1936, two new automobiles into which every proven feature has been engineered. These features include all those advantages which add to the comfort and safety of the passenger as well as the economy and performance of the motor. Important among the 1936 Oldsmobile features are livelier power, increased luxury and comfort, super-hydraulic brakes, center-control steering, solid steel "Turret Top" body by Fisher, knee-action wheels, smoother performance, increased all-around economy and safety glass as standard equipment in all models. The model pictured above is an Oldsmobile Six Four Door Touring Sedan.

DEMONSTRATION OF DUAL-10

CENTRAL SHOWS NEW DUAL-10 TIRE

Demonstration Is Made On Wet Pavement To Show Unusual Gripping Ability

An unusual demonstration of the new Dual-10 tire which is a product of the General Tire company was given by the Central and Circle "S" stations.

The demonstration was made on Jackson street near the Barkdull Faulk school on a stretch of wet pavement by W. D. Ross of the Central Service stations. The new Dual-10 tires were mounted on a 1936 Chevrolet from Lee-Rogers Chevrolet company.

The new type tire has unusual gripping ability which is due to the softness of the tread and carcass, and softness of the vanes of the tread itself. In the local test the car traveling at a speed of 40 miles per hour was stopped straight in its tracks on the wet pavement in a distance of about 35 feet. It did not swerve sidewise, which is an added safety to drivers knowing that a car can be stopped within the confines of its own traffic lanes.

Showing that the new Dual-10 tires hold to the lanes, the car was driven around a corner on the wet pavement at a speed of 35 miles per hour.

The tread wipes the pavement clean of moisture allowing it to take hold and bring the car to a complete stop.

A comment of a local man was that it was the first time that he had ever seen that would not skid sidewise after locking all four brakes.

The name, Dual-10, was given to this new tire because of the ten points or features that it possesses.

The tire uses standard rims and does not necessitate the purchase of special equipment.

Introduction of the tire into this territory was made by the sales manager of the General Tire company in a special meeting in Memphis, Tenn.

Demonstrations will be made to persons interested by the Central and Circle "S" Service stations.

NASH OPERATES NEW AUTO SHOP

Seat Coverings, Upholstering, Duco Painting And General Body Work Are Done

C. L. Nash has opened the Nash Top and Body shop at 412 Walnut street in the rear of the North Louisiana Motor company.

Mr. Nash was formerly associated with the Monroe Top and Body company and the Monroe Body and Radiator company. He opened this new shop under his own management a little more than a month ago.

The new top and body shop will feature upholstering, Duco painting, and body and fender work.

Rebuilding of all major wrecks is part of their main work. Every tool that is needed to repair these jobs will be found in the shop. Rebuilding of burned automobiles is also done by the Nash Top and Body shop.

Mr. Nash's establishment is completely equipped to fit seat covers and his experience in this line is exceedingly valuable to his many customers.

Duco painting jobs are turned out by the local concern and bodies of the cars are refinished with skill.

The shop is conveniently located four blocks from DeSiard street. Cars may be left there during the day and they will be delivered at any time desired. If you wish the Nash Top and Body shop to call for your car you may telephone 729. When the work is finished your car will be delivered.

For any car work an invitation is extended by Mr. Nash to pay a visit to his new shop.

SEYMOUR AGENCY GIVES ADVICE FOR SAFETY IN DRIVING

In launching a campaign on safety while driving automobiles, several Monroe firms gave certain precautions that should be observed. Traffic accidents have become too frequent on our roads and highways due to carelessness in driving or carelessness in having the car properly equipped to meet emergencies.

The Seymour Insurance agency in the Bernhardt building is giving its support in this campaign, E. J. Seymour of the agency said.

"Our agency recognizes the fact that there have been too many accidents, too many lives lost, and too many people injured in the past number of years," Mr. Seymour continued.

"Automobiles should be checked from time to time as to brakes, steering gear and tires. It is a proven fact that good tires have averted many an accident. Brakes should respond immediately to bring the car to a halt.

"Careful driving should be adhered to at all times and drinking while driving should be avoided.

"In this campaign we hope to make people more safety conscious, and decrease the number of accidents on our streets and highways."

BRUNO CONFIDENT HE WILL ESCAPE DEATH IN CHAIR

though he may be executed any time during the week designated, the custom at state prison is to have executions on Tuesday nights about 8 p.m.

Informing Hauptmann of the new death date was apparently a task no one desired. C. Lloyd Fisher, his chief counsel, was so upset yesterday on learning Justice Thomas W. Trenchard had fixed a new date that he declined to tell the condemned man. Col. Mark O. Kimberling, principal keeper at state prison, then said he would notify Hauptmann. He changed his mind later and delegated one of the guards to carry the message.

Hauptmann had slept late, as he frequently does, and had finished breakfasting when the guard came to his death house cell with the news. Hauptmann was calm, the guard reported to Kimberling, and showed no emotion, saying he had been "expecting the information almost any time."

Kimberling spoke later of Hauptmann's optimism in the shadow of the electric chair and of his "feeling he'll get out of it." The principal warden did not believe the optimism resulted from the secret nocturnal visit Governor Harold G. Hoffman paid to Hauptmann in the death house two months ago.

"He had that optimism even before the governor saw him. He has said several times to me that he doesn't expect to go to the chair. He feels something is going to break," Kimberling said.

Governor Hoffman's name was brought back into the forefront of the Hauptmann developments by the report he had promised the convicted man he would not die in the chair. Edward J. McNamara, a death house inmate, was quoted by the New York Evening Post as telling of the promise to a friend who visited him.

The visitor had remarked Hauptmann was certain to be executed, the paper said, and McNamara answered, "You're wrong there. Governor Hoffman was in here a short time ago to see Bruno and gave him his word he would not die in the electric chair for the crime."

Governor Hoffman was in New York and could not be reached, but on previous occasions he has repeated that he promised Hauptmann nothing and offered him nothing during the death house visit. The governor, alone, can save no one from the chair. Clemency must come from the court of pardons and the governor is only one of its eight members. For clemency Hauptmann would have to obtain five of its eight votes.

Another minor flurry in the day's events was the published report that Joseph Schaz, extradited here from Dallas, Texas, on a six-year-old robbery charge, was in reality a "secret witness" in the Hauptmann-Lindbergh case. The prosecutor's office ridiculed the reports.

The next move in the fight to save Hauptmann will be discussed Monday when his attorneys confer.

COTTON EXPORTS SHOOT UPWARD; AAA IS PLEASED

November 30 were 2,574,786 bales, an increase of more than 600,000 over the total of 1,894,142 for the same period in 1934. The November exports of 1,134,874 bales, increased from 711,664 in October this year.

While the estimate of the 1935 crop on December 1 was 10,734,000 bales and the ten year average exports were about 8,000,000 bales, Wallace said that "there is plenty of cotton in this country to take care of exports on the basis of the ten year average."

Asserting there has been a definite increase in cotton exports each month of this season, he noted that last year the total was 4,800,000 bales, or a drop of about 38 per cent from the average.

One member of the AAA unofficial board of strategy, declining to be quoted by name, asserted today he believed the cotton export reports this year would prove a definite answer to one pointed criticism of the AAA.

Recalling attacks made by New Deal opponents, particularly Governor Eugene Talmadge of Georgia, charging that crop restriction had ruined the export market, more than one official indicated that the export reports might become Democratic campaign ammunition next summer.

Pointing out the difficulty of determining the extent of the disease, Dr. Adams cited the death of the five-year-old daughter of the Rev. H. B. Donnell, Baptist minister.

"The little girl died this week and was buried without a post-mortem examination," he said. "We'll never know for sure whether her death was caused by meningitis.

"But we do know that the day after her sister, Ada Beth, 11, became seriously ill. Her case has been diagnosed definitely now as meningitis. That gives us every reason to believe her sister died of the same disease."

NATIONAL BANK ASSETS JUMP BILLION DOLLARS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(AP)—A jump of more than a billion dollars in national bank assets during the four months ended November 1 was reported today by J. F. T. O'Connor, comptroller of the currency, along with a $63,000,000 drop in their loans.

In his report of the figures assembled from his last call for a condition statement, O'Connor said the banks' assets aggregated $27,430,730,000 on November 1, an increase of $1,869,665,000 since June 29.

Loans and discounts totaled $7,301,371,000, compared with $7,365,226,000 on the previous call.

There were 5,409 active banks on November 1, 22 fewer than in June.

Investments in government obligations, including government guaranteed securities, rose $320,589,000 between the two calls, amounting to $7,493,596,000 on November 1.

AIR WOMEN ARE BANNED AT MEET

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Air women pleaded today for an opportunity to display their skill at Miami's air show, but the concluding day's demonstrations of speed and daring aloft were for "men only."

Loudly and vainly Miss Annette Gipson of New York, one of four women entered for a scheduled handicap race for their sex, protested as "shameful" the cancellation of the events.

Joining Miss Gipson in the protest were Miss Alberta Barber and Miss Charlotte Frye, both of Atlanta.

"They've advertised and ballyhooed events for women for months," said Miss Gipson, "and now with some flimsy excuse that is not an excuse the officials tell us there won't be any races for women.

"All we can do about it, apparently, is squawk. It's not at all fair. We've sat out here for three days expecting to race."

An American altitude record for planes weighing less than 1,235 pounds was claimed by G. M. "Tex" Rankin, Portland, Ore., who believed he bettered 20,000 feet.

SUPPER IS GIVEN

More than 100 persons were served last night at the spaghetti supper given by the ladies auxiliary of the V. F. W., at the club rooms on Hall and Harrison streets, it was announced. More than $25 was realized, and the money will be added to the Auxiliary's Christmas fund.

TECH GRIDSTERS TROUNCE TAMPA SPARTANS, 37 TO 7

FLORIDA ELEVEN GIVEN ITS WORST DEFEAT OF YEAR

Bulldog Machine Starts Clicking Brilliantly Late In First Quarter

By George V. Lofton
(Sports Editor Of The World)

PLANT FIELD, Tampa, Fla., Dec. 14.—(Special)—Coming with a rush after a slow start, Louisiana Tech's Bulldogs added a fitting finale to their most successful season today by trouncing the Tampa university Spartans 32 to 7. It was the worst defeat of the season for the strong Florida eleven, which was at its peak today.

The Techmen knocked at the door three times in the first quarter before they started clicking, but from then on out it was just a question of what the score would be. They outclassed the Spartans in every department of play. Coach Eddie McLane used every player he had with him and the smartly coached Technicians delivered in sensational style.

The Bulldog attack reached its peak in the third quarter when W. H. Hinkie of Dubach scored two touchdowns in five plays after he was sent in as a substitute back.

Tech scored its first touchdown just before the first quarter ended. After penetrating deep into Tampa territory three times, they took the ball on Tampa's 48-yard line. A pass from Hanna to Hasha gained 28 yards, and on an end-around play, Phillips made 17 yards, advancing to the Tampa three-yard line. Herbert Massey of Tallulah carried it to the six-inch line and then Don Darling took it over. Hewitt was rushed in to kick but his attempt to add the extra point was wide.

Midway in the second quarter Tech scored again. Darling recovered a Tampa fumble on Tampa's 26. Phillips was able to gain but one yard on an end-around, and then Carroll was smothered for a six-yard loss. However, on the next play Carroll passed beautifully to Hasha for a touchdown. This time the Bulldogs added the point with a pass from Darling to Phillips.

Early in the third period, Hanna, whose kicking was one of the outstanding features of the game, kicked out of bounds on Tampa's one-yard line. The Spartans booted right back and Hanna took the kick on the 40, returning to the 34. A five-yard penalty for offsides gave Tech five more yards, and then Hanna slipped through right tackle for 15 yards to the Tampa 14. Hinkie was sent in for Cotten and after failing to gain on the first play, He scooted around left end of 14 yards and a touchdown on the next attempt. Hewitt kicked the extra point.

Taking the kick after the touchdown, Tech worked the ball to Tampa's 40, and then a pass from Hanna to Beckett was good for 30 yards, when it was ruled completed because of interference. Hinkie lost six yards and then Tech was penalized 15 yards for clipping, but on the next play Hanna faded back and passed to Hinkie, who took it in on the 20, and scampered through to another touchdown. Hewitt's kick for extra point was wide.

Tech's final score came early in the fourth period with two runs by Carroll and Massey featuring the drive. Taking the ball on their 33, Carroll slipped through tackle for 16 yards and then Massey picked up 20 through a similar hole. Massey added 12 more and then Carroll gained 12. A pass from Carroll to Hasha was incomplete, but on the next play, Hewitt tossed to Hasha, who made a spectacular catch in the end zone for the touchdown. Brooks' kick for extra point was blocked.

Tampa's only score came in the fourth period as a result of a penalty for unnecessary roughness. With the ball on Tech's four-yard line, the Bulldogs repulsed three Spartan thrusts, shoving Tampa back seven

DIXIE OFFICIALS POSTPONE ACTION

Questions Of Subsidizing And Increasing League Are Deferred

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Postponing action on both of the major controversial questions—proposals to outlaw financial inducements to athletes, and to increase the size of the league—the Southern conference today lifted its ban on radio broadcasting, cleaned up a few minor odds and ends and then called it a day.

By its action the conference indicated, however, that it would pry the lid off the dynamite can at a meeting here February 7 and 8 when both the subsidization questions and proposals to take new schools into the league will come up for final consideration.

Chairman Charles P. Nash of the conference committee on colleges emphasized that at the February meeting some final word should be given to the petitioning colleges which have been hanging around for years, hoping for an approving nod.

From a source close to the committee, it was learned that this group was prepared to recommend for membership William and Mary college and the University of Richmond in Virginia, Wake Forest and Davidson in North Carolina and Furman and The Citadel in South Carolina.

This same source said no mention was made of two other petitioners, Centre in Kentucky and Presbyterian in South Carolina. These colleges made their bids after the other six had placed their petitions before the organization.

By a constitution amendment a year ago, the conference provided that the membership might be increased from ten to sixteen and barring another constitution change no more than a half-dozen members could be taken into the group in February.

FIRST AID RUSH

MIKE CHAMBERS

Hefty Handler Of Tigers Has Team Ready For Bowl

Trainer Brings L. S. U. Grid Squad Through Season Uninjured

BATON ROUGE, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Time out. A Louisiana State grid player is hurt and prostrate on the field.

A broad-shouldered, white-jerseyed figure dashes out on the field.

He picks up the injured player, a burly lineman, throws him across his shoulders and runs with him back to the sidelines about as fast as he dashed out.

"What-a-man!" usually hums through the stands.

He Keeps 'Em Fit

It's Mike Chambers, the reddish-haired, pleasant athletic trainer who brought Louisiana State university, winner of the Southeastern conference championship, through a great football season without a player being lost through serious injury. They are ready, too, for the Sugar Bowl clash with Texas Christian at New Orleans on New Year's day.

It has been a season of one hard, bruising game after another; no chance for players to rest up in "breathers," and with three successive weeks on the road making it harder.

Taking the job left by Frank Wandle, who went to Yale, Chambers has won high praise in his first year as trainer at L. S. U. A native of New Orleans, he previously coached at Illinois, Ohio State, Iowa State and Georgia Tech and helped with Olympic athletes.

When the football season got under way, the burning question at Louisiana State was whether Abe Mickal, the great triple-threater, would regain physical condition after successive ailments.

'Irons Out' Injuries

Chambers brought Abe around so well that the latter played his finest. At the same time he kept such men as Rukas, Stewart, Barrett, Reed, Morton and Coffee playing from week to week by ironing out injuries.

Mike's habit of slinging an injured player over his shoulder and trotting off the field with him always gets a hand.

He doesn't do it with any "rabbit backs"—the Bayou Tigers are a hefty lot, and he picks up anyone who happens to be hurt.

Once he shouldered Roy Knight, 6-foot, 6-inch, 225-pound center, and cantered to the sidelines with him.

And it's a dead cinch that Mike will have the Tigers in perfect condition when they play in New Orleans' Sugar Bowl.

AVOID QUESTION OF SUBSIDIZING AT S'WEST MEET

Conference President Says There Is No Discussion Of 'Loosening Up'

By Bill Parker
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

DALLAS, Texas, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The Southwest conference faculty representatives held their annual meeting here today and avoided the question of legalizing athletic scholarships and financial aid to athletes.

President E. W. McDiarmid of Fort Worth, who presided, said there absolutely was no discussion of such a matter as "loosening up" conference rules to make things easier for athletes, and that the Southwest conference would continue to abide by its present constitution and by-laws. It had been rumored that the Southwest would take action similar to that of the Southeastern conference and recognize athletic value, but McDiarmid said the idea was never entertained.

The adoption of a rule limiting Southwest conference football teams to 10 games a season was one of the highlights of the meeting. The rule has no effect on present contracts. McDiarmid explained that exceptions could be made on post season games such as the Rose and Sugar Bowl affairs.

It was announced that every conference member except Arkansas would participate in next year's baseball championship race, and that each team would be required to play 15 conference games, two at home and one abroad or vice versa. Baseball practice cannot start before March 1 of each championship year. Southern Methodist and Rice are coming back into the baseball race after an absence of several years.

DOWN BULLDOGS OF BATON ROUGE BY SCORE 20-14

12,000 Fans See Game; Victors To Play Byrd For State Crown

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Jesuit High school of New Orleans defeated the Baton Rouge Bulldogs 20 to 14 before a crowd of 12,000 fans here today for the south Louisiana championship.

The victor will meet Byrd High school of Shreveport for the state championship. The game will be played next Saturday at a site yet to be determined.

Co-Captain L. G. Friedrichs, attempting to make an end run, was about to be smothered and passed for the final and winning score.

Score by periods.

Jesuit	0	14	6	0	—20
Baton Rouge	0	7	0	7	—14

Jesuit, scoring touchdowns—Friedrichs, Derbes (2) passes from Friedrichs. Point after touchdowns, St. John Smith (placement), Hooper (pass from Friedrichs).

Baton Rouge, scoring touchdown—Wax (pass from Baker), Baker.

Point after touchdowns, Harrison 2 (placements).

Penalties—Jesuit 15, Baton Rouge 0.

Passing put the Jesuits into position for their first score early in the second period after they got the ball on the Baton Rouge 47. The line failed to yield and the Jays took to the air, Friedrichs snagging a 17-yard pass from co-Captain George Antonini, on the Baton Rouge 21.

Freidrichs dropped a lateral to Antonini and George ploughed to the Baton Rouge 7. After two thrusts at the line, the ball was given to Friedrichs who went over for the score.

Baton Rouge came right back with a bang and taking the ball on their own 40 carried it over in four plays to tie the score. Wax carried the ball over on a pass from Baker.

Friedrichs passed to Derbes for the next score and flicked another toss to Hooper for the 14th point.

Early in the third period, the Jays got the ball after a blocked punt on the Baton Rouge 19. Friedrichs started to make an end run and finding himself about to be smothered passed to Derbes who went over for the score.

Baton Rouge turned the tables on the Jays in the fourth, and after blocking a punt on the Jay 35 yard line, the Bulldogs bucked through on a series of line plays to a touchdown.

Lineup:

TED TURNER WINS MEDALIST HONORS IN MIAMI MEET

New Jersey Golfer Blazes Down Course To Post Three Under Par

By J. P. McKnight
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

CORAL GABLES, Fla., Dec. 14.—A slender, quiet golfer, Ted Turner, of Pine Valley, N. J., came blazing unheralded through the dusk today to post 68, three under par, for the first round of the $10,000 Miami Biltmore Open and seize medalist honors.

Racking up four birdies in his brilliant round, which came within one stroke of equalling the course record Willie MacFarlane set in 1933, Turner barely nosed out Horton Smith, Oak Park, Ill., and Frank Moore, young Chicago professional, who had 69's.

One stroke back of Moore at subpar 70's were four other comparative newcomers to the top flight—Bruce Coltart, 25, Woodcrest, N. J.; Frank Walsh, veteran Chicago professional, who won the Illinois championship this year; Clarence Clark, Bloomfield, N. J., and Byron Nelson, Ridgewood, N. J.

A number handed in cards matching par as the afternoon drew to its close in increasingly wintry weather, with one-fourth the field still on the course.

They included: Bob McDonald, Chicago; Paul Runyan, White Plains, N. Y.; Al Nelson, Hopewell, N. J.; Ralph Kingsrud, Fargo, N. D.; and Bert Montressor, Decatur, Ill.

Johnny Revolta, P. G. A. champion and top heavy favorite to add to his winnings in the south Florida round of winter tournaments, blazed through the first nine in 33, two under par, only to slump coming home and take 39.

At 72 he joined such noted golfers as Henry Picard, Hershey, Pa., Al Watrous, Detroit, Mich., and Zell Eaton, Oklahoma City, former crack amateur, who joined the pro ranks last week. Eaton slipped after starting with three straight birdies.

ON THE SIDELINES

by Edward J. Neil

Another champion of the football player who serves an alma mater not widely known beyond her own outskirts offers a scheme for recognition of the unsung heroes of the gridiron.

The recognition-to-the-deserving plan, as offered by Lewis C. Frank, Jr., of the American University News Service in Washington, D. C., seems to have a lot of merit—if it can be put into practice.

He proposes that, since many individuals arise and shine in the ranks of the so-called small-timers, a "little all-America" squad be selected and pitted against one of the leading professional teams each fall.

Calls On College Editors

Frank, explaining a letter to 150 college newspaper editors in which he unfolds the plan, says:

"Each year the smaller colleges are finding it more and more difficult to obtain recognition at all in the field of athletics.

"The football fan, wanting, of course, to see the best football machines, pays his dollars to watch the representatives of the larger universities in action. The small colleges, not interested in commercializing athletics or lacking the initial capital to do so, naturally find themselves neglected. However, while these smaller schools lack the all-around good teams that the larger universities own, they do possess some of the best individual talent in the country.

"Numerous are the boys who have spurned lucrative offers from these larger schools in order to attend universities where their education will be the prime interest, yet they do deserve some recognition for their football prowess. Then, too, you have probably noticed that the professional teams use the small institutions as constant sources of excellent material.

"Now, the plan I proposed to these small college newspaper editors was for the selection of an all-America small college football squad, which squad would meet one of the leading professional elevens in an annual game late each autumn. To the professionals it would mean an excellent opportunity to scout the cream of the small college crop, and to the small schools and their individual players it would afford deserved recognition and publicity."

Feeling that the honorable mention roster that accompanies the big-time all-America might not do full justice to the boys along the by-ways of the football world, Sports Editor Alan Gould of The Associated Press set the wheels in motion last year for the selection of a "Little All-America."

Some of the best football players at large do their gridiron roving, passing and punting, no doubt, in the remote pastures, with mere handfuls of spectators to watch them. But usually they DO NOT MEET the big-time teams, except in "breathers." A great back behind a leaky line isn't likely to win himself much acclaim when he does get the opportunity against the big-timers. Nevertheless, he may have been a great back at a large school.

This leads to the inevitable impasse (ahem) and so bring on your Little All-America.

EAGER T. C. U. FROGS BEGIN WORK MONDAY

FORT WORTH, Texas, Dec. 14.—(AP)—They aren't due to resume training until Wednesday but those love-to-play football Frogs of T. C. U., will of their own accord, start practice Monday afternoon for their Sugar Bowl game with L. S. U. in New Orleans New Year's day.

Turned loose after the game with Santa Clara in San Francisco Dec. 7, the Christians enjoyed less than a full week of holiday before they became anxious to start preparing for their final test.

It was the first defeat in four matches for Rudolph, winner of the 1934 tournament and a strong favorite in the current event.

'UNFAIR RULING' ON ATHLETES IS NOW CORRECTED

Coaches Express Opinions On Change In Southeastern By-Laws

By Kenneth Gregory
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

ATLANTA, Dec. 14.—Action of the Southeastern conference in opening its doors to athletes for financial assistance was generally interpreted today by football coaches as removing discrimination and guarding against hypocrisy.

"The move of the conference," said Coach William A. Alexander of Georgia Tech, dean of Southeastern football pilots, "in legalizing scholarships and jobs to athletes does not mean that the conference is going into the market for football players."

The adoption of an amendment to the Southeastern's by-laws that placed athletic ability on a high plane in determining student values, was generally interpreted by the coaches as correcting a "very unfair ruling that had been in force in the conference."

Prior to the Southeastern's action athletes were forced to sign a paper acknowledging they had not received any assistance whatsoever.

"In former years," said Coach Alexander, "an athlete was ineligible for scholarships or jobs that were open to other students.

"It is hoped that the new rule will result in taking care of worthy students who happen to be athletes rather than throw them on the alumni or the town as in past years."

There was mention by a source close to the conference that some institutions might take advantage of the ruling that brings scholarships and financial assistance to athletes "into the open" for the first time since the Southeastern was organized in 1932.

"Suppose," said this authoritative source who would not permit use of his name, "that a certain school brings in athletes and offers them the advantages of this ruling. Then, suppose an alumni group of some other school recognizes the athletic ability of these athletes and offers inducements in addition to those legalized by the conference's action.

"What do you suppose would happen then?

"I am of the opinion that an athlete who received considerations above the conference ruling—which included an amount not to exceed 'legitimate expenses' of attending the university as represented by tuition, fees, books, board and lodging—would naturally feel inclined to accept a more remunerative offer.

"I doubt, however, that the Southeastern schools will permit such an encroachment upon their ideals.

Dr. Wilbur C. Smith, athletic director of Tulane university, said the practice of granting financial assistance to athletes—although barred by a conference ruling—had been in practice for years.

"The conference's action," he said, "simply eliminates hypocrisy. It was the only honest action that could be taken, and to go beyond the Southeastern's stand would be accepting proselyting in its rarest form."

Coach Chester A. Wynne, athletic director at the University of Kentucky, said the "men who handle athletics and the head coaches are the best sportsmen of the world.

"I have no fear of them going beyond the bounds of the rules adopted by the conference. They are genuine gentlemen. There isn't a coach who will violate anything conducive to higher education, both scholarly and athletically."

Herman J. Stegeman, athletic director of the University of Georgia, commented on the conference's action as follows:

"The enactment of legislation governing conditions under which athletes may receive reductions in college expenses, exactly as leaders in other student activities now receive, is a fine move.

"I think every honest man, who is not afraid to face the facts, will approve our rule."

Coach Ed L. Walker, athletic director of the University of Mississippi, heralded the move as a "progressive step."

"It is a good move," he said, "and I heartily approve of it."

Coach Jack Meagher of Alabama Polytechnic institute was elected president of the Conference Coaches association. Meagher succeeds Coach Ted Cox of Tulane.

There was no other business transacted at the day's session.

New York U. Faces Basketball Schedule Of National Scope

By John J. Romano

New York university enjoys an enviable reputation as the haven of basketball stars in the East. Coach Howard G. Cann is confronted with the unpleasant task if disappointing fully three score boys who aspire to wear the Violet of N. Y. U. each fall.

This year was no exception. Prior to their recent game against the alumni, Coach Cann had no fewer than nineteen players on the squad. Included in these is a trio of football players, Captain Nat Machlowitz and tackles Irwin Klein and Perry Geffen. N. Y. U. does not go in for rough basketball. But with this trio on hand they figure well able to take good care of themselves should some scrimmaging be in order.

Six lettermen from last season will bear the brunt of a nineteen game schedule. Eight games will be played in the N. Y. U. gymnasium, at Madison Square Garden and two on foreign courts. Capt. William Rubenstein, Leonard Maidman, Milton Schulman, Irving Terjesen, Jack Bromberg, Jack Brown, Arthur Duffy, Louis Strauss, Alex Weinstein, Irving Rothman and the three footballers will furnish Bernie Carnevale, Jerome Tarlow, Lou Tripsianis and Irwin Witty from last year's unbeaten freshmen team little if any chance to shine. Coach Cann believes in having plenty of reserves on hand. Knowing how badly a young man feels to sit on the side-lines throughout a full game he wishes it were possible to give them all a fling.

Cann's Record

With a record of turning out teams good enough to register 128 victories against 57 defeats in 11 years for his Alma Mater, Mr. Cann has to exercise restraint in permitting sympathy to overrule better judgment. The former N. Y. U. grid and basketball star likes to look back on the undefeated quintet of 1933 and which suffered but a lone defeat in a stiff 20-game schedule last season. To prove N. Y. U. had no easy time of it last year Coach Cann points out that his team scored a total of 740 points against the opponents' 489. Willie Rubenstein was elected captain by tossing the ball so accurately that he was high scorer of the team with 156 points.

Before the advent of Ned Irish who proceeded to prove that collegiate basketball could pack Madison Square Garden to capacity, N. Y. U. boasted as good a team as there was around the country. The emphasis on college basketball is not the real reason N. Y. U. has attracted the best local high school basketeers to its standard. If such a reason was put forth it would also apply to St. John's College, across the river in Brooklyn, which was unbeatable for several years and now has a full team of graduates playing professional basketball under the name of the Brooklyn Jewels. With few exceptions the Jewels played as the same unit it was when it was winning games regularly for Buck Freeman.

Schedule Covers Country

Ned Irish made Gotham fans basketball-conscious last year. In other years when the famous Celtics tried to put the game over in a big way it was necessary to hold a dance in conjunction with the game. Even this failed. A college gymnasium used to be plenty large enough to seat the attending spectators. But a glance over the team on N. Y. U's. schedule will readily convince you that basketball is a major sport. Otherwise the attendance would hardly pay the expenses of such teams as Notre Dame, California, Kentucky, Purdue and North Carolina. In addition to these teams the Violet will be opposed on two different occasions by Fordham, N. Y. U.'s arch rival, Temple, St. Francis, Dartmouth, Brooklyn College, College of the City of New York, Rutgers, Temple, Princeton, Columbia, St. John's, Georgetown and Manhattan. With the exception of a few weak local teams it reads like the football schedule of a major college.

Howard Cann looks forward to a successful season. Needless to say, he expects to win all games of the most imposing schedule mapped out in years. He has a wealth of material to work with. Should the team come a cropper against a local team which has been looking askance at some of the nice "gates" attracted to the games with a distinct Violet tinge, Cann will have to shoulder the blame for approving such a hard campaign.

PRO TEAM DEFEATS COLLEGE ALL-STARS

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates, National League Professional Football team, slithered through a morass of mud today to a 14-0 victory over a college all-star team.

The Pirates' first score came after Zaneiski, Duquesne university halfback, caught Fullback Zanninelli's kick on his own 24-yard line and fumbled on the next play.

Bray, Pirate halfback broke through the collegians' line, picked up the ball and scampered across. The Pirates' second touchdown was tallied soon after the start of the second half. The professionals blocked Meglens' punt, and Sortet scooped up the ball. He crossed the line standing up.

Interpreting Life

Did you ever stop to realize how much depends on the interpretation of a thing—especially if it is creative? It is the last word, always, in success or failure.

For instance, think of a song, a composition, a dance, a play, a painting, a poem or story. No matter how lovely it is, no matter how perfect it may be when it leaves your hands, it is made or marred by the reader, singer, player, who interprets it for you. If he speaks, or plays, or looks, or sings woodenly, he's only going through mechanics, physical motions. He puts nothing more into it, consequently nothing more comes out of it. And all the hidden fire and passion and beauty that you've so carefully infused into it, stays locked there, wasted, because it isn't being interpreted properly with full understanding. But if the right interpreter comes along, how that same spirit of yours lives and glows with all the meaning and feeling you intended and felt, and how you warm to him because you feel he appreciates what you're trying to do, and so, through him, you know it will be given to the world in an understandable way.

Well, life's a good deal like that, too. It's given to us with all its richness and meaning intact. And it depends on us whether it remains hidden or brought out, whether we make it mean something or just let it be dull and dead and uninteresting.

The child usually accepts life happily because it's new and wonderful to him. The adolescent finds it now gay, now sad, because it bewilders him and he's groping for a real understanding. The adult makes it either beautiful or dull depending on the ability to interpret it properly and pass it on to others with all its power, sweetness and beauty, or with dullness and colorlessness. Much depends on how hard he tries to understand and how he looks at it.

To the old it's often drab and lifeless because they've seen so much of it they've forgotten how much depends on their response, and they're too tired to try any more to understand or pass their appreciation of it on. They even let its jokes fall flat because they don't make the effort to see the point and can't help others laugh at them.

It takes work and effort to make a good interpreter. It takes intelligence and experience and understanding and concentration. And a keen response and appreciation, of course. But aren't all these things worth striving for when they mark the exact difference between expressing the best in creation—and creation—or wasting it. And isn't it better to hunt always for that best so we can help explain it fully to others less blest?

Think it over this Sunday morning!

CAUTIOUS ADVANCE NEEDED

The federal trade commission suggests that congress broaden its powers to permit it to wage war on unfair business practices when such practices adversely affect the consumer's interests.

As things stand now, the commission may attack an unfair trade practice only when such practice injures a business competitor. It points out that an entire industry might conceivably gang up in some trade agreement which would not be in the least damaging to competitors, since all competitors would be in on it, but which would hurt the consumer like blazes.

That the consumer needs all the protection he can get is pretty obvious, and that such law would give it to him is almost equally clear. Nevertheless, the proposal is one which needs a great deal of debate.

To outlaw any trade practice which might be declared unfair to the consumer would be to cover an enormous amount of ground. It could easily pave the way for government control of industry as sweeping as the NRA itself. A lot of careful study ought to precede any attempt at such legislation.

SUPERSTITION PERSISTS

Twenty-two men crowded into the subterranean crypt that housed King Tut, back in 1922, and took a look inside when the seals to the chamber were broken. Since that time, seven of the 22 have died, the latest being Dr. James H. Breasted, one of the world's most famous Egyptologists.

Because of these deaths, there are people simple enough to believe that the ancient curse laid upon despoilers of the tomb is working.

It can be pointed out, of course, that seven deaths among 22 persons in 13 years do not make an unusually high average. It can also be pointed out that Dr. Breasted himself was 70—the scriptural limit of three score years and 10—and that medical science is not in the least mystified about the cause of his death.

But you could point these things out until you were blue in the face and it would do little good. A person who will believe in a 3,000-year-old curse will go on believing in it in spite of all the common sense evidence you can give him.

Science says a man becomes what he eats. We've often wondered how missionaries finally got the cannibals converted.

More Truth Than Poetry

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

CHANCE

If you ever fall foul of a person
Who seems to be dreadfully smart,
And you think that some day
He'll be making his way
In the busy financial mart,
Keep your eye on the young fellow's future,
His words may perhaps all come true.
The chances are strong
That he'll rise right along
And do what he said he would do.

If you ever encounter a blowhard,
Compacted of bluster and gall,
And softly declare:
"He is mostly hot air;
He will gather no prizes at all,"
The lad may make money in millions
Which you fancy that you might have got.
And this goes to show
That you fancy you know
A good many things you do not.

The other man's game appears easy.
He succeeds, though you never know why,
While fate's little ball
Never rolls right at all,
But always goes spinning awry.
Men start in the game with a million
And end in a clod dreary cell.
And that proves to me
(And I think you'll agree)
That sometimes it's darned hard to tell.

A Bright Sign

By BRUCE CATTON

You could work up quite a nice little argument, if you cared, by asking people to say what is the most valuable thing America produces.

There's a wide field to pick from. This country is workshop and granary for half the world—or it used to be, anyway, before world trade went democratic—and it can give you anything from autos to bran muffins with the air of a merchant who handles nothing but the best.

But the things that are raised out of the ground or put together in factories are not one-tenth as important to the country as the people who do the growing and the putting together.

If we are producing the right sort of young people, we don't need to worry much about what farm and factory are producing. That will take care of itself—or, to be more exact, the right sort of young people will take care of it.

Now all this was brought to mind by an ordinary photograph in a newspaper; a picture, if you want the details, of Miss Romayne Tate of Paragould, Ark., and Mr. William Hamilton of Good Hope, Ill.

Miss Tate and Mr. Hamilton seem to be healthy youngsters in their 'teens, or thereabouts, and the picture showed them holding two rather elaborate loving cups—the President Roosevelt trophies awarded them for outstanding achievements as 4-H club members.

Since this world is sinful and human nature is weak, the people who do things that cause their picture to get printed in the papers are not always representative of the finest flowers of civilized society. An ordinary day's grist of pictures will include a criminal or two, a gowking movie actress, some goof who is roller skating backward from Hoboken to Pike's Peak, a newly discovered society female, and a handful of bedsheeted Ethiopian soldiers carrying obsolete rifles wrong end to through the African desert.

To come across this picture of these two 4-H club prize winners was like getting a drink of cool water on a hot and dusty day. For it was a reminder that the country is not, after all, as cock-eyed as some of its happenings seem to indicate.

Health, good sense, and plain, everyday decency and sanity looked out of the page, to reassure us about Uncle Sam's fundamental soundness.

A country that can produce young people like these has little to worry about. It may fall over its own feet trying to devise a farm program and lose a flywheel or two in adjusting its industrial production.

It may bring forth its annual crop of crooners, fan dancers, and half-baked politicians—but as long as it can bring up youngsters like these, we needn't lose any sleep.

It is a country that is going places, after all.

New Deal In Washington

By Rodney Dutcher
(Washington Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—The New Deal came so near suspending collection of AAA processing taxes the other day that it wasn't even funny.

Everybody was for it except Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau, whose chief job is to collect taxes of all types and descriptions. Everybody, that is, except perhaps President Roosevelt, with whom Morgenthau talked before he made his decision.

About 2,000 processing taxpayers have rebelled against the levy and brought injunction suits, which means that 70 per cent of the tax isn't being paid. There are about 47,000 other processors of farm products who pay only 30 per cent of the tax.

At least two-thirds of that 30 per cent are tobacco and sugar manufacturers, who have been paying almost unanimously, but are so relatively few in number that if they were to defy the tax AAA and the treasury would have about 45,000 small processors paying from 8 to 10 per cent of the whole tax.

Plead For "Little Fellow"

Secretary Henry A. Wallace, AAA Administrator Chester Davis, and Solicitor General Stanley Reed agreed that the treasury should postpone collection of processing taxes due Nov. 30 and Dec. 31.

They took the high ground that since "enemies" of the farmer were refusing to pay the tax, those other processors who kept on paying should not be subjected to price-cutting competition from those who were able to cut costs by refusing to pay.

It was recognized, of course, that most of the 45,000 little fellows simply couldn't afford to sue for injunctions even if they wanted to.

The big packers, millers, and cotton mills, able to afford high-priced lawyers, had led the court fight against the tax. If the supreme court knocked out the processing levy, nobody would have to pay. If it upheld it, everybody would have to pay.

Morgenthau Says "No"

Morgenthau turned down the proposal. The treasury took the position that such action would give the appearance of New Deal weakness to the courts and the public and that many small packers, rice millers, and other processors, if they later were compelled to pay three months of accummulated taxes all at once, would be found to have established no reserves for it and that the government would have to take them over or forget about it.

The AAA's solicitude for the little fellow in this instance is touching, but truth compels admission that there was more to it than that.

The move to postpone processing taxes until after the supreme court ruled began only after tobacco manufacturers and sugar refiners brought pressure, complaining that while they didn't want to appear unfriendly to AAA, they didn't like to be taking a rap that other processors were avoiding.

Clay Williams, of the Reynolds Tobacco company, celebrated former head of NRA, even telephoned the White House about it.

One Juicy Victory

Strangely or otherwise, most victories the "little fellow" wins in Washington are likely to be achieved with the aid of some "big fellows" in the background.

For instance, you may have noticed in recent years that your breakfast orange juice was likely to be more sour than it used to be. And you may have noticed that just the other day the department of agriculture decided to bar interstate shipments of oranges which owed their orange color to artificial staining.

The department formally noted the fact that "a very large number of consumer protests against the practice of staining by addition of color has reached the department." It explained that staining had become "well-nigh universal in certain producing sections."

Unquestionably consumers did make considerable demand that the department's food and drug administration stop the practice of coloring oranges to conceal inferiority.

But orange growers in California, declaring that certain growers in Florida were taking unfair advantage of them by use of coloring processes, also had demanded action.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH PLANS $19,461 BUDGET

A budget of $19,461.50 has been tentatively approved for the First Baptist church for the year 1936. The budget will be presented to the church Wednesday night for action on proposed expenditures.

Five general divisions are contemplated in the suggested budget. The first deals with missions, education and benevolence for which there is an appropriation of $5,000.

The Baptist Training union has an appropriation of $415, while the Sunday school calls for an appropriation of $1,060.

For the Women's Missionary union, the sum of $360 is assigned, while for general and administrative expense there is assigned $12,526.50. The chief items in this list are the pastor's salary, which is $4,200, and the educational director's salary which is $3,000.

Lights Of New York

By George Ross

NEW YORK.—When a Broadway show is ailing and someone yells, "Is there a play-doctor in the house?" they generally have to wait until "Doc" George Abbott hurries over in his ambulance. They call him Sure-Cure Abbott around the Rialto because he almost never has lost a patient.

Right now, he is top general practitioner of the show-shops, having nursed to health and happiness such Broadway bonanzas as "Three Men on a Horse," "Boy Meets Girl" and "Jumbo." His weekly income would tinge a movie star's fat contract crimson.

Abbott, a favorite son of Buffalo, is the greatest all-around man in current theatericals. Actor, author, director, producer, scene designer, he has had his fling at all of them and has several million dollars to show for the time he has served Broadway. "Broadway" was the name of a show, by the way, he once co-wrote with Philip Dunning which cleaned up three million dollars in its day. In another show he doctored "Coquette," Helen Hayes had her famous "Act of God" baby. Out of a drama he efficiently treated for a slight case of anemia, "Four Walls," there emerged an actor destined to change his name from Muni Weisenfreund to Paul Muni, whom you all know.

Secret Remedy

What Abbott's particular magic happens to be, nobody seems to know, except that he can pump more lifeblood into a play than any other man. Give him a script that lacks "zowie" or punch and he will take its temperature, pulse and give it the works.

He injects laughs when there aren't enough and peps up the action with his own special speedball. While directing, he clocks seconds instead of minutes so that there must be something happening all the time. In anybody else's hands, "3 Men on a Horse," one of show business's biggest money-makers in ten years, might have easily been a flop. Abbott doctored it, directed it and hired all the players himself.

Talent Discoverer

The players he hires are not star names but, more often actors and actresses getting their first break on Broadway. Part of the special magic Abbott weaves over a pay is his knack of discovering fresh talent.

Two years ago, he found a young lady called Joyce Arling prowling around his front office in quest of a job. He gave her a part in "Kill That Story," one of his minor efforts, and later cast her roles in "Ladies Money" and "3 Men on a Horse" because he thought she had the goods. Now, he's assigned her to a leading part in "Boy Meets Girl" and not only are the papers full of her praise but the movie scouts are begging her to come out to the Baghdad-on-Pacific that is Hollywood. And if your correspondent doesn't miss his guess, this Arling girl will be Hollywood's next camera queen.

Yule Perils

It is about this time of year, when the Christmas shoppers are merrily elbowing one another's ribs on Fifth avenue, that your correspondent requests to be safely tucked away under lock and key, before he starts prowling around the gadget shops.

What earthly use I could have for a sterling silver key that is linked onto a sterling silver chain; a combination chrome and tan pigskin shoehorn and button-hook; a chromium mug-shaped bottle holder to make that needs only water to write 600,000 words before running out of fuel; a magnifying glass that lights up; a chemical weather-forecaster or a carrot-juice extractor—I will never know. But I've never been able to resist the temptation to have them "sent." The distaff in your correspondent's home generally has them "sent" right back.

PITTSBURGH DEFEATS SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA, 12 TO 7

RANDOUR LEADS INVADERS' FAST RUNNING ATTACK

Trojans Escape Shutout By Scoring In Last Minute Of Play

By Brian Bell
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 14.—Pittsburgh had Hub Randour on its side today and his presence meant the football game won by the Panthers from the University of Southern California, 12 to 7.

The fleet back scored his first touchdown of the season after he had gained more than 750 yards this fall without crossing the goal line. The halfback was a constant threat.

Southern California gave the crowd of approximately 35,000 its first chance to yell for the House of Troy when the game had less than a minute to go by completing a pass from the Pitt 39-yard line, Dave Davis to Bill Gainsford, who caught the ball on the ten-yard line and ran on to score.

The Trojans escaped a shut-out in the fifty-ninth second of the eleventh hour when it seemed they never would score. The Panthers' great defensive play had stopped the Trojans a minute before when they took the ball on the one-yard line, and in the second period the home guards had seen the door shut in its face on the five-yard line.

Pitt, too, had its chances but could capitalize on only two. Pittsburgh scored the first touchdown of the game in the middle of the first period when Frank Souchak intercepted a pass in midfield. He found himself surrounded evenly by a mass of Trojans and tossed the ball to Paul Shaw who struggled a few more yards to Southern California's nine-yard line. Three plunges left the ball only a yard from the goal and Frank Patrick plunged over on the fourth try.

The second score for the visitors came after a march of 81 yards. With two dashes of 25 yards by Randour helping their cause, the Panthers moved steadily to within seven yards of Southern California's goal. Randour then helped himself to his only touchdown of the year. Homer Beatty blocked the try for the extra point.

Pitts' sensational goal line stand came just before the Trojans registered their lone marker. Beatty intercepted a pass on Pitts' 33-yard line and a pass from Glenn Thompson to Alvin Kidder placed the ball on the 17. Pitt was penalized five yards for taking too much time out and a pass from Thompson to Cliff Propst placed the ball on the ten-yard line.

Thompson picked up two yards and when Pitt was offside, the ball was placed one yard from the goal. Propst failed to gain. Thompson, too, failed but Pitt was offside. Thompson lost a yard, and gained only one yard in two tries when two yards were needed, Pitt taking the ball.

Pitt kicked out to the 42-yard line and with the ball again in their possession the Trojans demonstrated they could score from 39 yards when they couldn't from the one.

Souchak, a brilliant end, shared the Pittsburgh spotlight with Randour, while Davis was Southern California's best back and Gil Kuhn stood out in the line.

The line-up and summary:

Pittsburgh.	Pos.	Sou. California.
Souchak	LE	Thurlow
Matisi	LT	Belko
Glassford	LG	Preienger
Kliskey	C	Kuhn
Dalle Tezze	RG	Brosseau

MAJOR NEYLAND TO COACH AGAIN

Army Engineer Will Return As Head Coach Of U. Of Tennessee

ATLANTA, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Major Robert Reese Neyland, 43-year-old Army engineer, will return as head coach of the University of Tennessee, it was learned today from unimpeachable sources.

Only minor negotiations with the war department stand between the successful Tennessee coach of the period of 1926 to 1934 and the placing of his signature to a five-year contract at a remuneration exceeding $10,000.

Definite announcement of Major Neyland's acceptance will come Monday or Tuesday, it was learned, and his plans will call for Colonel Paul Parker, director of athletics, serving as line coach and Bill Britton, present coach who succeeded Neyland, being offered the post of end coach.

Other assistant coaches, the source said, will be retained.

Major Neyland, whose teams won 76 games, lost 7 and tied five during his nine-year tenure, will be welcomed heartily by alumni who have been clamoring for his return since Tennessee went through only a fair season in 1935.

The Volunteers dropped five of their nine games this season and almost from the day that North Carolina swamped the team early in the season a howl went up for Neyland's return.

Major Neyland, it was understood, may not retire from an active post with the Army. However, negotiations are practically complete where by he will return to Tennessee.

At the close of the 1934 season Major Neyland was ordered to the Panama Canal Zone for military duty.

By HARRY GRAYSON

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—C. V. Whitney's announcement that Red Rain and Tatterdemalion will not be nominated for the Kentucky Derby again illustrates the chances against winter book players.

It was to preclude what would have been a tremendous play on Red Rain that Whitney instructed his trainer, Tom Healey, to throw the colts out of training at Lexington.

Winter book players annually see huge amounts go up in smoke when the better-liked ponies fail to come to hand.

Chance Sun, winter book favorite of last spring, was withdrawn several days prior to the running of the Derby.

More than a million was lost when C. V. Whitney's Top Flight had to be yanked a fortnight before the derby of 1932, and another $500,000 when Burning Blaze was cut down a week later. There was plenty aboard Jamestown when that splendid animal could not get to the post in 1931.

A lot of things can happen between the end of a 2-year-old's first season and the start of the next.

Red Rain came in for more comment than any other 2-year-old last season, mainly by virtue of his amazing triumph in the Hopeful, in which he came from absolutely last to win with something to spare. The son of Pennant captured the Flash and ran Coldstream to a dead heat in the Saratoga Special.

Had his record not been tarnished in several subsequent starts, you would have heard little or nothing of any other juvenile.

Red Rain showed lameness before being retired for the campaign, and Whitney decided that it was too early to train him for such a strenuous effort as the derby. It was deemed advisable to hold him in reserve for later fixtures.

Winning Futurity
No Recommendation

Now that the first snow has fallen, the hot stove leaguers are once more in session and the next derby victor is being predicted by all and sundry.

"Hope springs eternal in the human breast" was never more true a saying than when applied to those perennial optimists who annually work out on derby possibilities.

The astonishing mortality of derby favorites is no deterrent to these dreamers, who advance as many reasons for their choices as faddists invent for their diets.

Tintagel, of course, led all 2-year-olds, both in money won, and in percentage of good efforts shown. He won six of nine starts, was second once, and earned $75,100. The Belmont Futurity put him on top in money winnings, just as it annually does for its winners.

But who ever heard of the Futurity winner bagging the derby the following May? They just don't, that's all. The chances are against the son of Sir Gallahad III—bred to be a route runner if his sire line counts for anything at all—being any more of a true derby favorite than was Chance Sun, Jamestown, Whichone, or Kerry Patch.

Grand Slam finished next to Tintagel in money earned. This one had his season's record ruined by lameness, but he proved as much of a mud running fool as was Chance Sun. Also, he's bred not unlike Chance Sun, should run any kind of distance, and if he runs soundly won't mind a fast track.

Hollyrood is another that is receiving plenty of attention. He grabbed the Pimlico Futurity in brilliant style. This one is not bred to stay. If he can carry his speed over a distance, he will be the outstanding member of his tribe.

Earl Sande gave out the belief that Jean Bart was the 2-year-old with the best 3-year-old prospects. Perhaps he was thinking of Tintagel's Futurity, a race in which many thought Jean Bart the best, even though he finished third.

Jean Bart won the Spaulding Lowe Jenkins and a couple of other races. He gave evidence of class. That is about all you can expect of a son of Man o' War as a 2-year-old, so he has plenty of backers who see in him a second War Glory.

Snark has his supporters. So have Ned Reigh, Brevity, Coldstream, Bien Joli, Crossbow II, Maerial and others.

Everybody is entitled to a vociferous opinion and nobody can prove him wrong until that first Saturday afternoon in May.

Several companies having buildings in Ottawa, Kan., recently took out earthquake insurance policies.

TOUGHEN TOES FIRST

FIRST TOUCHDOWN MADE BY BRUINS ON 29-YARD PASS

46-Yard Drive Carries Ball Across Goal For Winning Margin

By Russell J. Newland
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 14.—University of California at Los Angeles carved the final chapter of its greatest football season into the turf of Kezar stadium today, with a 13 to 7 victory over a favored St. Mary's college eleven.

Unable to make a first down in the first half of the game, the Bruins nevertheless romped off the field at the half leading 6 to 0.

The second quarter touchdown of the team that finished in a triple tie for the Pacific coast conference title, came from a 26-yard pass, Charles Cheshire, all-coast halfback, riffling the ball to Schroeder, left end.

St. Mary's opened the third quarter with a touchdown, gained from a smashing 80 yard drive, and converted the extra tally to go into a one-point lead.

The tide turned again in favor of U. C. L. A. as the last period opened. With the ball on St. Mary's 46-yard marker, the Bruins drove down in two plays and an offside penalty to chalk up the points that clinched the game.

Cheshire got off his only good run of the day during the scoring splurge. He broke through the Gaels' right side for a 29-yard gain. It put the ball 17 yards from goal.

A five-yard penalty sent the oval to the 12-yard marker, from where Williams, sub fullback, raced over, after faking a pass. Williams had a clear field. He also placed the ball through the uprights for the extra point.

Lineups and summary:

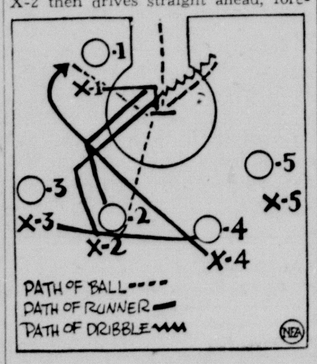
HOOP HITS OF LEADING COACHES

FORCED DEFENSE SWITCH PUTS OFFENSIVE MAN IN POSITION FOR GOOD SHOT

By Lewis Andreas
(Coach, Syracuse university)

In the above sketch of a favorite scoring play of mine, the team designated as "X" is the offensive squad, and has advanced the ball to the offensive half of the court.

X-2 throws the ball to X-1, as the latter slides in behind the foul line. X-2 then drives straight ahead, forcing defensive O-2 back, and then cuts sharply to the right, taking the ball from X-1, and forcing O-1 to switch to cover the man with the ball.



O-2 then switches to cover X-1, and usually switches too far. X-1 steps out to foul line and takes a return hook pass from X-2, who feints shot at basket. X-1 takes short set shot, or passes off to X-4, who has cut for the bucket behind X-3, after the latter has run across to block O-4.

Olla

The girls' home economics club of the Olla-Standard school met recently, with Miss Winnifred Boyd presiding. The entire club took part in the singing of Christmas carols. Miss Zelma gave a reading and Beth Fritz and Cleo Harris spoke on the work of the club. Plans were made for a Christmas program to be given December 27.

Miss Clara Jones has returned from Trout, where she was a guest of Mrs. Ternel Taylor for several days.

REVIEWING THE 1935 SPORTS PARADE

1. BASEBALL ADOPTS 'GAS-HOUSE' TACTICS

Baseball in 1935 saw the rise of Detroit to its first world championship. It brought bitter rivalry that spread from the original "Gas-House Gang" of St. Louis to other ball orchards and even into the post-season classic waged between the Cubs and the Tigers. It witnessed the return of several "old-timers" and many long-absent fans. Goose Goslin (right), an "aging veteran," struck the blow worth $50,000 in the world series. Hank Greenberg of the Tigers (left) and Gabby Hartnett, Cub catcher (center), were named the most valuable players in their respective leagues.

American League Banner Again Hoisted In Triumph After Whirlwind Campaign

Comebacks Of 'Washed Up' Veterans, Night Games, Feature Season

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a series of articles dealing with upsets, comebacks and the crowning of new champions which featured the nation's sports spectacle of the year now closing. The series will appear in the Morning World as they are prepared by sports writers of the Associated Press.)

By Paul Mickelson
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—In a whirlwind campaign featured by comebacks of "washed up" veterans, inauguration of night games, the collapse of the Ruthian experiment at Boston, the complete asphyxiation of the "Gas-House Gang" from St. Louis and the sensational 21-game winning streak of Chicago's Cubs, the American league banner once more was hoisted over the baseball world in 1935.

When Leon (Goose) Goslin ended one of the most bitterly fought—and argued—world series in years by hammering out his $50,000 hit in the sixth game to give Detroit its first world baseball championship, the American league completed a clean sweep of baseball honors. The triumph, coupled with the third successive victory in the annual all-star game at Cleveland, definitely removed the growing inferiority complex from the minds of the "junior leaguers" who hadn't much to cheer about since 1932.

Fans In Comeback, Too

Fans, who made the turnstiles sing some of their merriest tunes since the boom days, got both physical and verbal action for their money from the opening day of the exciting season right down to the instant when the "Goose laid the golden egg" for the Tigers and, so the Cubs said, for gruff Umpire George Moriarty, who drew a $200 fine along with Cubs Woody English, Billy Herman and Bill Jurges for "using vile, unprintable language" during the series.

Buddy Myer

National league fans saw an exciting race down to the final series of the season between the astonishing Cubs and the Cardinals, who almost succeeded again on the strong right arms of the Dean brothers, who captured 47 victories between them.

In the American league, the Yankees took the lead after a free-for-all start, only to succumb to the Detroit Tigers who became invincible after a feeble beginning. The surprising showing of the Chicago White Sox, who fought for the pennant two-thirds of the way and then fell back into the familiar regions of second division, the giant-killing tactics of the St. Louis Browns, and the collapse of Cleveland, which fired Walter Johnson as manager after a series of rebellions and troubles, featured the campaign.

Grove In Great Rally

Dotted all over the baseball landscape were veterans staging spectacular comebacks. Lefty Grove, ranked 63rd among 65 American league pitchers the previous year, led them all with a comeback that gave him the earned-run average title for the year at 2.70 and a record of 20 victories and 12 losses for the Red Sox.

The veteran Buddy Myer of Washington, never before a leading hitter, surprised by winning the American league batting championship by one point over Joe Vosmik of Cleveland with an official average of .349, the lowest mark to win the crown in 27 years.

Over in the National, Catcher "Gabby" Hartnett and Pitcher Charlie Root, "grandpappies of the Cubs," had two of their best years. Hartnett won the most-valuable-player award in the National league. Big Hank Greenberg of the Tigers—tied for home-run honors at 36 by Jimmy Foxx of the Athletics—was adjudged most valuable in the American league.

Two youngsters in the game, however, added thrills, they are 23-year-old Arky Vaughan of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who captured the National league batting crown at .385 after flirting with the .400 mark all season, and young Bill Lee of the Cubs, leading hurler with 20 victories and 6 defeats.

Arky Vaughan

Rookie Hurled "No-Hitter"

Vernon Kennedy, White Sox rookie, turned in the one perfect game of the season, holding Cleveland hitless.

Managers Joe McCarthy of the Yankees and Joe Cronin of Boston, who was sold by his father-in-law for a record price to the Red Sox during the winter trading season, were fined $100 each for stalling in a game on August 5.

Ruth's "blow-up" at Boston and the subsequent debacle of the sad Braves, who lost a record total of 115 games, provided the saddest note of the season. The Bambino, at only 41, appeared to have lost whatever hopes he once held of becoming a major league manager by his action in ripping up a fancy three-year contract.

Cincinnati's experiment with night games was pronounced such a success that other clubs were in a mood for trying the nocturnal contests, which were in the vogue in most of the 21 minor leagues. Prosperity did an encore for the minors.

Several important figures in the baseball world died in 1935. Among them were Frank J. Navin of the champion Tigers, Umpire Hank O'Day, Billy Sunday and Len Koenecke, Brooklyn outfielder, who was slain by a pilot when he became unmanageable in an airplane enroute to Toronto.

MANASSA MAULER IS DOUBTFUL OF BOMBER'S ABILITY

Dubious As Broadway Acclaims Detroit Negro Second Jack Dempsey

By Eddie Brietz
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Joe Louis, the new toast of Harlem, was being hailed as a second Jack Dempsey along Broadway today by almost everybody except the old Manassa Mauler himself.

Still the idol of the fight fans, Jack stopped pumping hands in his Eighth avenue restaurant long enough to give an authoritative lowdown on the Brown Bomber, whose fists are making ring history every time he climbs through the ropes.

Dempsey freely admits Louis is the outstanding heavyweight prospect in years, but he goes a bit slow on the super-man stuff.

"We're not going to know if Louis is really great until we throw him in the ring with somebody who will do a little fighting himself," he said.

"Joe has got to fight somebody who can not only take plenty, but give plenty back. Until a man of this calibre is found we'll not know just how good he is.

"Trouble is, most of the fellows he has been fighting folded up as soon as they were cracked. Joe has yet to meet a yellow who could or would take it long enough to get in a few punches on his own account."

Jack didn't hesitate a minute when asked whether Max Schmeling or James J. Braddock has the best chance of trimming Louis.

"Braddock unquestionably," he said. "Jim can take it and he has a pretty good right hand punch. He knows what to do in the ring and won't fall for any tricks. He's hard to hit. Schmeling can be hit much easier. And he can't punch as well as Braddock.

"I'm not telling you Braddock could lick Joe, but he has a better chance than Schmeling."

Louis, with almost $40,000 in his pocket and a new notch in the handle of his knockout gun, spent a day taking bows before leaving tonight for Detroit. Wednesday he starts for Havana to see what can be done about Senor Isidor Gastanagan, now being fattened up as the next sacrificial offering, December 29.

After that fight Louis will hop to Chicago to meet Charlie Retzlaff, then will take a good rest before going to work for Max Schmeling.

A patched-up Paulino stuffed himself with his favorite olla podrida (Spanish stew) at Pompton Lakes and sang Louis' praises in a never ceasing flow of torrid Spanish between mouthfuls.

There was a general exodus of pugilistic big shots. Ex-Champion Max Schmeling sailed for London tonight with a far-away look in his eyes. Ex-Champion Primo Carnera took off for Italy, secretly delighted that the boxing powers here laughed off his challenge for a return bout with Louis. Primo will return after the holidays. Schmeling is due six weeks before he

BUSINESS HOUSES RAZED BY FLAMES

Early Morning Blaze Wipes Out Roadhouse, Filling Station

Fires of undetermined origin early yesterday morning totally destroyed two business establishments on highway 80 west of here. The Loma Linda, roadhouse just outside the West Monroe city limits, and D. Bagwell's combination grocery store and filling station, seven miles west of here, were burned to the ground.

The Loma Linda, a new building on the north side of the highway, was built last summer at a cost of approximately $1,000, it was reported. The Bagwell store was owned up until last spring by A. G. Pace, who estimated the building alone was worth $500. Both fires occurred around 3 a. m.

Both structures were burned before fire fighting apparatus could be brought into use. The burning of the Bagwell store was not discovered until after sunrise when passers-by saw the smouldering ruins and notified authorities. Loma Linda was burned almost to the ground when firemen were summoned, and Chief E. C. Taylor, of the West Monroe fire department, stated that the building was so far gone when his department was called that they were not able to save anything.

Bagwell, who had living quarters at the rear of the store, and who lived there alone, was said to have closed his store and gone hunting late yesterday afternoon. His store burned while he was away and authorities who investigated the burning of the building said he had not returned early yesterday morning.

The roadhouse was reported owned by O. M. Houck, who could not be located. It was said that the management of the roadhouse had previously operated a like establishment near Jonesboro which was destroyed by fire just before they built the place here.

An estimate of the value of groceries and other accessories destroyed at Bagwell's, or other property damages to the Loma Linda were not learned. Bagwell could not be reached but Pace, who formerly owned the store, was able to give the value of the structure only.

'LIAR' CRIED AT BERRY'S PARLEY

Film Stars Describe What They Want For Christmas

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Dec. 14—(AP)—The things they'd like to get in their Christmas stockings, but don't expect, were described today by some of the movie stars.

There's William Powell. He wants Santa to bring a cash buyer with him down the "neo-classic chimney of my tax laden house." He has been trying to sell it for many months.

"A dog that knows which guests to bite," is the desire of Jeanette McDonald, whose sheep hound recently nipped a number of dinner guests.

It's a big order, but Clark Gable wants a "ship without photographers." He was described as "the darlingest thing" by a girl who said she met him on a sea voyage. Gable said he never heard of her, but was his face red when a picture of them was printed.

"Anything but a cocktail shaker," for Edna Mae Oliver. She is a strict tee-totaller, but jokesters fill her full-fashioned with liquor equipment.

Robert Montgomery wants a "G-man's badge." He's tried all the other kinds, without success, on traffic officers.

Nothing would please Wallace Beery better than "something to change my daughter's mind." Three-year-old Carol Ann wants Santa to bring her an elephant.

Other hopefuls include:

Rosalind Russell—(very homestick)—"A breath of Times Square air instead of this everlasting sunshine."

Charles Butterworth—"A pair of suspenders that won't climb up my back."

Frank Morgan—"Well, what I want is—er, that is—now, drat it, what did I have in mind."

Greta Garbo? She didn't say, but studio executives "tank" she wants to be alone.

LEGIONNAIRES TO RECEIVE AWARDS

Membership Campaign Workers Will Be Given Prizes For Efforts

The L. B. Faulk post will hold its regular meeting Monday night at 8 o'clock at the Legion's memorial home. This meeting will be of importance as it will be the last meeting before Christmas. At this meeting, prizes for the recent membership campaign will be awarded.

The following will receive as prizes beautiful pencils awarded by the state department for the securing of 25 or more members: C. B. Braun, William Perhamus, Harry Stein, Dr. R. L. Wood, Isaac Lemle. The following will receive the gold star for ten or more members: C. B. Braun, William Perhamus, Harry Stein, Dr. R. L. Wood, Isaac Lemle, Jess De Armand. The following will receive the silver star for obtaining five or more members: M. Padget, Sam Rubin, G. Godwin, Isador Liebreich, F. Hammonds, W. Huckaby, and Charles Mitchell.

Final plans will be completed at the meeting for the filling of 38 veterans' Christmas boxes for Ward C at the United States Veterans' hospital at Alexandria. These boxes will be prepared by the local unit of the ladies' auxiliary of the L. B. Faulk post. They will be distributed at the hospital by Mrs. Marion Huckaby, president of the local auxiliary. The auxiliary will also prepare and distribute ten Christmas baskets to families of veterans in Monroe.

India now has approximately 40 motion picture producing studios.

GRASS FIRES

Truck No. 3 in command of Captain J. C. Liles, answered four fire calls in less than two hours yesterday, none of which proved serious. They included a grass fire on the 1100 block of North Seventh street, which was put out with sacks; grass fire at Emerson street in Fairview, and a grass fire at 2207 Marie Place. The two last fires were put out by hand, and were caused by burning trash. A Ford truck, owned by N. C. Shamblin, caught fire as the result of a short in the ignition coils, while parked at Breard and Twenty-Sixth street.

One of the commonest creatures on the Keeling islands in the Indian ocean is a monstrous crab which lives on cocoanuts.

LOCAL FIGHTER READY FOR BOUT WITH WRESTLER

OLD QUESTION OF SUPREMACY TO BE ISSUE IN BATTLE

Butch Martin In Excellent Shape To Meet German Grappler

Can a fighter beat a wrestler, or, vice versa, can a wrestler beat a fighter?

That's a question that's been argued since time immemorial.

There are several instances on record in which a wrestler met a fighter in the squared circle with the fighter lasting but a short while. Only recently Kingfish Levinski, a fighter, failed to get half-way to first base in a bout with Ray Steele, a wrestler. Steele kayoed the former fish peddler before he could get started.

Fight and wrestling fans of northeast Louisiana will have the opportunity of seeing this age-old question settled by Butch Martin, Monroe fighter, and Otto Ludwig, German wrestler, in a semi-final bout next Wednesday night at Roosevelt stadium.

"I just want one good punch at Ludwig—that'll be enough to settle his hash," Martin said yesterday.

Concerning Martin's possibilities of winning the bout, Ludwig told Promoter Charlie Bruscato last Wednesday night at the close of a wrestling program at the stadium that Martin wouldn't have a chance with him in the ring. "Put him in there with me and I'll show the fans he's just a big bluff," Ludwig declared. "All I ask is police protection, and I'll break every bone in his body."

Martin, who gained prominence as a fighter in state high school circles and in rings of northeast Louisiana after his high school days, is in excellent physical condition and weighs 183 pounds. He has been working out at the stadium for two weeks, every since his job as a levee dump truck driver was ended by the completion of the levee, in West Monroe.

Ludwig, a professional wrestler, weights 171 pounds and keeps himself in shape for ring action at all times.

Promoter Bruscato signed the two for a mixed bout after Martin, as a referee, was forced to use rough tactics to break some of Ludwig's holds in the latter's bout with "Bull" Jeffries last Wednesday.

Ludwig was strongly opposed to the referee's methods, and socked and kicked Martin several times during the bout. Martin retaliated and let it be understood in no uncertain terms that while he was in the ring as referee he would be in charge of the situation.

The bout is scheduled for 12 three-minute rounds. Martin will wear five-ounce fighting gloves and will win if he kayoes Ludwig for a ten-count. Ludwig, to win a round, must pin Martin's shoulders to the mat for three seconds.

Promoter Bruscato announced last night that he has signed Vern Clark, clever Seattle youngster, to meet the "Masked Marvel" in the main event. Clark weighs 172 pounds and the "Masked Marvel" weighs 170 pounds.

The first bout will begin at 8:30 o'clock.

TENNESSEE GETS NEW CAGE COACH

Blair Gullion Succeeds Major Britton As Basketball Mentor

(This is one of a series of stories on basketball prospects of Southeastern conference schools).

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Fortunes of Tennessee's basketball team this season are wrapped up in a crew of veterans and sophomores who are learning their basket-looping and floor work from a new coach—tall, broad-shouldered Blair Gullion.

Gullion, a graduate of Purdue university, came from Earlham college, Richmond, Ind., where his teams chalked up a five-year record of 45 victories and 14 losses. He succeeded Major Bill Britton, who gave up basketball to become head football coach at Tennessee.

"Sometimes," said Gullion, "our team looks pretty good in practice, and sometimes pretty sorry. We're still doing a lot of experimenting. The squad shows promise and there's a possibility of developing a good team."

Gullion isn't planning any material change in the Volunteers' style of play, he said.

"We're going to use the same fast breaking offense," he added.

Eight letter men returned this year. Heading the list is Captain Harry Anderson, tall, rangy center from Memphis, and a brilliant player. He is the only senior on the squad. Others are Floyd Marshall and Everett Martin, regular forwards; Tip Masterson, Pete Johnson and Marion Perkins, regular guards; and Eblen and Smith, reserve forwards. Outstanding sophomores are Fisher, center; Rice and Ramsey, forwards, and Krisle, guard.

Gullion believes the Southeastern conference this winter "will be tougher than usual," and predicts "a wide open race."

The schedule:

Dec. 19, Lambuth college at Jackson; Jan. 4, Emory & Henry at Knoxille; Jan. 7, University of Chattanooga at Knoxville; Jan. 11, University of Georgia at Knoxville; Jan. 15, Sewanee university at Knoxville; Jan. 17, Georgia Tech at Atlanta; Jan. 18, Alabama at Tuscaloosa; Jan. 24, Xavier university at Cincinnati; Jan. 25, Kentucky at Lexington; Jan. 31, Georgia at Athens.

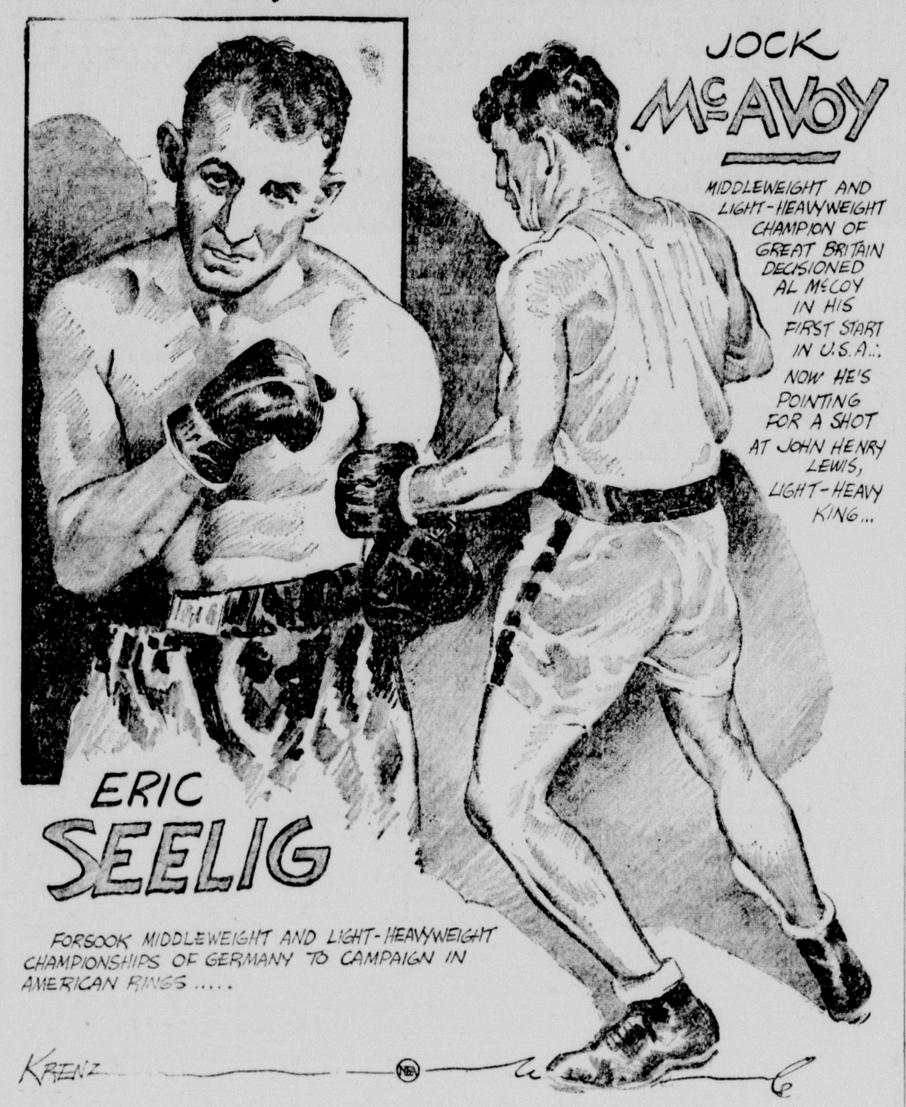
Handy Hands From Across the Sea



Swiss Girls 'Smuggle' Curls

VIENNA, Nov. 30.—(AP)—"Smuggling of permanent waves is giving serious concern to Swiss authorities on the border of Vorarlberg.

Swiss girls slip across the frontier into Austria straight-haired and go back curly-headed. Swiss beauty parlor operators don't like it and their chorus of complaints is creating another "international situation," minor but earnest.

So far Switzerland has imposed no import duty on permanent waves, and legislators admitted that such an impost probably wouldn't be feasible. They shudder to think of the difficulties a tariff of this nature would impose on customs collectors. Border patrolmen, it was urged, have enough trouble going through baggage without, in addition, having to decide whether a feminine traveler's curls are real or artificial, or whether any given specimen is a so-called "water" or permanent wave.

But frontier authorities of the Canton of St. Gallen have been instructed to keep their eyes open and to report names of girls who come back from Austria with a "frizzy" appearance which usually characterizes the brand new permanent wave.

Badly adjusted currency systems are the reason for the traffic in waves. Swiss francs are expensive and go a long way in Austrian beauty parlors.

Members of the Needlecraft club entertained their husbands at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Madden. Card games were played and refreshments served. Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Madden, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Willis, Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Kidd, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Bagwell, Mr. and Mrs. D. F. O'Neal, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Gagley, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. O'Neal, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Colvin and Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Mondart.

The Baptist Woman's Missionary society met in the home of Mrs. J. Lee Hester, who was in charge of the program. The meeting was featured by a talk on the Lottie Moon Christmas offering and by songs and prayers. Mrs. T. B. Alderson was appointed president in the place of Mrs. C. E. Henry, who resigned. The society was divided into two circles, with Mrs. M. E. Kidd and Mrs. C. F. Brewster as chairmen.

A meeting to discuss plans for the erection of a new Methodist church was held at Indian Village. Rev. B. F. Roberts, pastor of the local church, presided. W. A. Willis, acting chairman of the building committee, announced that $250 had been subscribed for the new edifice.

NEW RECORD FOR HIGH HURDLE MAY BE SET AT MEET

Sugar Bowl Carnival Entrants Threaten To Break World Mark

NEW ORLEANS, La., Dec. 14—(Special)—That phantom gentleman of the track, Mr. World Record, stands face to face with oblivion, here December 28, in the Sugar Bowl's first invitational track and field carnival.

Surely, he'll be in imminent danger of seeing split-seconds stripped from his pride, if Sugar Bowl high hurdlers have their way.

With the exception of Percy Beard, America's finest in the thrilling 120 yard race over the 3 foot 6 inch barriers, are coming to New Orleans for the holiday sports pageant. America's best is world's best, at least in a high hurdle race.

It's a race that locks the intercollegiate champion, a fellow who thrice equalled the present mark, and a former world record holder in a struggle that should make Mr. 14.2 run for cover.

Sam Allen, Al Moreau, and Johnny Morriss! Those boys are kingpins in this race against time. All of them, at one time or another, have beaten the record holder, Percy Beard; all have sprinted that gruelling 120 yard stretch in 14.3 seconds or better.

Allen, intercollegiate king from Oklahoma Baptist, is the "comer" of the group; Moreau and Morriss, veterans of international competition, have already reached their peak—and are still at the top.

Sammy threatened to step into select circles in 1934. He did it in 1935 by charging to individual titles in five of the outstanding relays and meets in the United States.

Allen smashed through to triumphs in the Texas Relays, Drake Relays, Princeton Invitation, N. C. A. A. games and Kansas Relays—and in his wake were strewn the figures of Messrs. Beard, Moreau and Morriss.

His time read like this: 14.3, 14.4, 14.3, 14.5, and 14.5. It was 14.3 seconds the day he knocked Beard, Moreau and Morriss into defeat.

Moreau's rise to national prominence is one of the most remarkable in American track records. Out of the Sugar Bowl country of Louisiana—the little village of Marksville—came Al with only the recommendation that he had never broken 16 flat.

Bernie Moore, the L. S. U. coach, who, himself, was little known at the time, saw in Moreau the possibilities of a great hurdler. So he set to work on him. Moore has called Al's form over the high sticks the greatest he has ever seen; but the kid, who still can't shake off a "Cajun" accent, lacked speed at the start.

Al was ready for the big time in 1933, his senior year. He and four other boys drove to Chicago and startled the country by bringing to Dixie its first national intercollegiate championship. Since then his name has had a place in any hurdle talk.

Moreau's greatest season was 1935. He equalled Professor Beard's record of 14.2 in winning the Southern A. A. U. meet; placed second to the flying Allen at Princeton though beating Beard; was third to Beard in the National A. A. U.; and then set out on a barnstorming tour of Europe.

There he consecutively won 12 high hurdle races and one over the low sticks. Over that stretch he raced twice at 14.2 seconds, once at 14.3, five times at 14.4, twice at 14.5 and once at 14.6—and against inferior competition, too.

Morriss has basked in the national spotlight longer than either of the first two. He was nosed out of the Los Angeles Olympic games, broke the tape at 14.3 in 1933 and held the world record until Beard came up with his 14.2 classic.

Johnny, now a professor at a Louisiana high school, was second to Moreau in 1935 S. A. A. U. meet and fourth to Allen, Moreau and Beard at Princeton in his two big meets of the past season.

Allen, Moreau and Morriss are naturally bracketed as favorites in the Sugar Bowl race; but there are two sectional champions and a coupe of other good boys to fill the lanes.

"Red" Phillips, who wanted to race here so much that he offered to pay his own expenses, is Missouri Valley titleholder. Forrest Townes of Georgia rules the Southeastern conference. Billy Wallace, Rice football star, and Howard Smith of Tulane will also dig in December 28.

Since Percy Beard has told L. di Benedetto, A. A. U. official in charge of the meet, that he is through with track, it means that the world's greatest high hurdlers will be in the Sugar Bowl.

BIG BUSINESS AT MAJORS' PARLEY

Baseball business had a very decided uptrend during the annual joint meeting of the major leagues in Chicago, sums ranging from $75,000 for a single player to $300,000 for a group of players changing hands. The $75,000 was spent by Mickey Cochrane, left above, manager and vice president of the Detroit Tigers, who gave that amount to Lou Comiskey, center, president of the Chicago White Sox, for Al Simmons, outfielder. Connie Mack, right, leader of the Philadelphia Athletics, is said to have received $300,000 and players from the Boston Red Sox for First Baseman Jimmy Foxx, and Pitcher Johnny Marcum, with Outfielder Roger Cramer and Infielder Eric McNair said also to be involved in the deal.

Winning Golf

By Lawson Little

I played in my first National Open championship at Merion, Philadelphia in 1934 just after returning from winning the British Amateur at Prestwick, Scotland. I was beautifully on my game and everything seemed to be going right. Then there suddenly occurred, one of those startling reversals of form that are so typical of golf. On the second hole of the seventy-two hole competition the breaks went against me, when my pet and only driver broke.

The second hole is a long par five and I wanted to hit an extra long drive so that I might have a chance to make the green in two. Just as I came onto the ball, the shaft of the club broke and half of the driver went sailing down the fairway while the rest remained in my hands. It was such a sickening sensation that I almost wept. I felt so futile and helpless that I could not do a thing except feel sorry for myself. My high hopes of winning were temporarily as completely wrecked as my favorite club.

All the way around the course I pitied myself and wound up with a miserable eighty-three — altogether out of the running and with a seventy-two to do the next day to qualify for the last thirty-six holes of play. Somehow I managed to get down a fifteen foot putt on the eighteenth green for my seventy-two and I will always contend that this one putt was about the luckiest thing that could have happened for my future golfing career. It gave me the chance to play the last thirty-six holes with Olin Dutra, who really had a reason to feel sorry for himself and didn't. Playing along with Olin and watching him come from behind to win the championship, despite his handicaps, made me heartily ashamed of my own actions. Dutra won without having any good breaks in his favor, in fact he should have been in bed for it was only against his doctor's orders that he was competing at all. His bigness through it all really showed me up to myself and for this I can never thank him enough.

The championship proper was a fine one, as they always are at Merion, and Dutra after being eight strokes behind with 150, came through to win with about the most perfect thirty-six holes of golf I believe I have ever seen. In the morning he was putting for birdies on sixteen of the eighteen greens and failed every time—not from poor putting either, his putts were rimming the hole but they just wouldn't drop. Some days it goes like that. On the other two holes, he recovered for his par once and failed the other time thus making his score 71, one over par. It was a really beautiful round of golf. He picked up five strokes on the leaders Gene Sarazen and Bobbie Cruickshank, but he was still three strokes behind.

His afternoon round was almost an exact duplicate of the morning round—he again hit sixteen greens in perfect figures. One of his second shots was but a foot from the hole so Olin got his first birdie in twenty five holes. Then on the fifteenth, or the thirty-third hole, he sank his only long putt of the day, a fifteen footer for a birdie three. The last two holes he had to finish in one over par each to win the championship and he played them safely, making each hole in the maximum number of strokes he could afford.

Olin Dutra was sick. He played golf good enough to be well down in the sixties for both rounds that day but his putts, no matter how well he struck them, stayed out of the hole yet he never gave up. He was courageous enough to stick in there and overcome an eight stroke lead and win the championship. He certainly made me feel small for allowing the breaking of my driver to run my score up to 83 the first day. Dutra taught me a valuable lesson.

yards. But on the fourth play, an incomplete pass, the referee penalized the Bulldogs to the one-yard line for roughness, and Tampa scored on three plays, the touchdown play being a pass from Rodriguez to Carter.

Tampa gained lots of ground, but it was mostly in Tampa territory. They penetrated Tech's 20-yard line but once. Tech made 15 first downs to Tampa's 14. The Spartans fumbled six times to the Bulldogs once. Tampa tried 19 passes, completed seven for 95 yards, and had two intercepted. Tech attempted 19 passes, five were completed for 130 yards and two were intercepted. Tech was penalized 45 yards and Tampa 10.

The Tech squad will spend Sunday as guests of the Tampa school on a sight-seeing tour of this section. They will leave tomorrow night, arriving in Ruston Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock.

Ever Heard About King James' Old Shoes?

He had worn them for a long time. He knew the quality of their soft leather and their durability. In a word, they were easiest on his feet. That's why he always called for them.

We all have our "old shoes"—things to which we are accustomed and which make life easier by their excellent service. A brand of coffee, special sunfast draperies, a favorite complexion cream, wholesome health foods, a fine make of felt hat—these we ask for again and again. They have a dependable quality that is as important to us as the comfort King James found in his old shoes.

Read the advertisements in this newspaper, and learn more about the things which are part of your daily life. Naturally, you take their quality for granted (advertised products are reliable). But with closer attention to the news in the advertisements, you will be able to effect surprising savings, and find new uses for old favorites.

GOOD FELLOWS FUND BOOSTED

this year to the work that is being done by the Good Fellows of the Twin Cities. The hearty thanks of all Good Fellows goes to these two splendid organizations which are doing so much toward the welfare of the community at large. A letter from H. E. Roll, superintendent of the Missouri Pacific, tells the story of this effort and its results. The letter is quoted herewith in full:

"Dear Good Fellows:

"We have two clubs at Monroe; the Monroe Booster club and the Monroe Women's club of the Missouri Pacific railroad.

"These two clubs are among the finest with which it has been my privilege to be associated and they have that interest in the welfare of their community and its citizens which helps to build a community like the one in which we live. To show their interest in the underprivileged children of this community, they have sponsored and put on certain entertainments for the purpose of raising funds to give to the Good Fellows club and do their part in relieving suffering and at the same time give joy to some youngsters at this season of the year who might not otherwise share in the glad Christmas spirit.

"These entertainments have been entirely voluntary on the part of the two clubs, and their efforts have resulted in the pleasure of handing you $116.50 as a donation to the Good Fellows club, and it is their hope that it will result in as much good and happiness as they feel in giving this amount.

"We wish to express our appreciation for the help that we have received from the Iron Mountain bakery, Bond's bakery, and the City bakery who donated fruit cakes; to the city of Monroe for the services of a peace officer; and for the services of the Phillips Print shop which were donated.

"Sincerely yours,

(Signed) "H. E. ROLL."

Contributions of foodstuffs are among the noteworthy donations during the week-end. The Gatlin Grocery Ritchie Grocery and Strauss & Son have volunteered to supply flour and fruit for the food baskets that will be made up by the committee. Other contributions will be forthcoming early this week. Contributions of children's clothing, sweaters, underwear and stockings are needed. All such contributions will be acknowledged in the columns of the World and News-Star.

No letters of appeal for aid from the Good Fellows fund can be considered after Tuesday of this week. This is necessary in order to permit the committee ample time to prepare the baskets that are to be delivered next Sunday to the Good Fellows families.

policemen, made an investigation.

"When anyone taps on the wall," the doctor reported, "there is a sound from Frank's abdomen. I do not know whether the noise comes from the stomach or the intestines. The number of noises produced always corresponds with the knocks on the wall.

"The whole thing is uncanny. I found that there was no reaction if I held part of the boy's body. I tapped four times near him while holding his hand. I released the hand and tapped another four times. Frank produced eight noises.

"When he makes these noises his whole body and the bed he is lying on shake with vibration."

The boy, son of a farmer, is described as a normal, healthy child.

Cotton

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Cotton futures reacted in today's short session under long liquidation and some hedge selling and the market closed from 7 to 16 points net lower.

Prices were lower at the start on poor cables from abroad and some profit-taking sales after yesterday's advance.

The trade took cotton on the decline but the amount of buying in the market was inadequate to hold prices higher.

December closed at 11.59, March at 11.23, May at 11.11 and July at 11.00 bid. October 1936 showed the sharpest break, losing 16 points to 10.69.

While reports current that peace talk in Europe might result in heavy sales of American cotton abroad these advices had little influence on prices.

For the entire trading period the market was decidedly easier.

Exports today were 37,022 bales.

Cotton futures closed barely steady at net declines of 7 to 16 points.

New York Stocks

By Victor Eubank

(Associated Press Financial Writer)

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Pressure relaxed in today's brief stock market session as a few of the metals oils, motors and specialties recovered moderately.

There were still plenty of skeptics in the board rooms, however, and the sidelines continued attractive for many traders. Dullness marked the two-hour proceedings. The close was steady. Transfers approximated 700,000 shares.

Chartists were far from discouraged with the action of the list. It was suggested that the erratic tendencies of leading stocks in the past week may have been due partly to year-end factors and partly to the necessity for a consolidation after a long advance.

The silver mystery was as far from solution as ever, but it apparently had become less conspicuous as a market factor.

Wheat reacted after its spurt yesterday and cotton pointed lower. Trends in the bond department were indefinite. Some rail liens sagged and Italian obligations were again a bit soft.

Share gainers of fractions to around a point or more included American Smelting, International Nickel, U. S. Smelting, Chrysler, Case, Westinghouse, Atlantic Refining, Houdaille-Hershey, Marlin-Rockwell, American Telephone and Western Union.

Continental Can came back about 2 points and American Can rallied around a point. American Type Founders preferred got up about 6 points on optimism over the company's reorganization plans, the rails and steels were narrow. American Tobacco "B," Public Service of New Jersey and Eastman Kodak were rather heavy.

No business was done in London in bar silver because of the continued lack of buying orders from the United States and, dealers said, because offices were open only a half day on Saturday. Silver futures in Montreal were mixed.

A little more selling of American securities from abroad was reported by brokers with foreign connections. There was also some liquidation during the past several sessions for income tax purposes, but this was not viewed as especially important.

The Italo-Ethiopian peace muddle continued to keep financial circles watchful and wary.

Commission house analysts were still expecting considerable irregularity in the equities market. It was pointed out though that in each one of the past six years the pre-Christmas decline was culminated some time between December 17 and 21. In these years reinvestment demand usually began to make itself felt during the latter part of the month.

Chicago Grain

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Wheat suffered a fall of more than two cents a bushel here early today in brisk trading. Downturns of wheat quotations at Liverpool, together with uncertainties relative to possible devaluation of the Argentine peso had an unsettling effect.

Opening irregularly at 2 cents setback to 1-8 cent advance, May 98 1-2 to 1.00, Chicago wheat futures soon rallied somewhat but showed all around losses. Corn started 3-8 to 1 1-4 off, May 60 1-2 to 5-8, and for the time being altered little.

Wheat closed unsettled 3-8 to 2 1-2 cents under yesterday's finish, May 98 7-8 to 99, corn 5-8 to 1 3-8 down, May 60 1-4 to 3-8, oats 3-4 to 1 cent off, and provisions at 5 to 12 cents decline.

Sugar

NEW YORK, Dec. 14—(AP)—Raw sugar was unchanged today at 3.10 for spots with no sales reported.

Futures held steady during the early trading on covering by commission houses but reacted under renewed December liquidation and hedge selling in later deliveries. March sold off from 2.10 to 2.09 and September 2.23 to 2.21, or two points net lower with the market closing at the lowest.

Refined was unchanged at 5.00 for fine granulated with only a moderate inquiry.

ELLENDER AVERS PENSION U. S. JOB

simply told you he is going to do it, and not how he is going to do it. Huey Long and I talked about this old-age pension problem a lot. We were convinced that it would take $1,500,000 a month to pay it. In other words we would have to raise $18,000,000 a year.

"To have the state furnish so much and the parishes so much would not work well in poor parishes like Beauregard. You couldn't do it. Senator Long always felt that the federal government would have to handle the problem.

"The government would have to make the pension the same in every state. It would have to be the same in poor states like Mississippi as it would in richer states. We could not handle payments to old people who would want to move here from other states. And so, my friends, that's why Senator Long made old-age pensions a national issue."

The machine candidates also spoke today at Leesville, Pitkin and Hornbeck. Speakers included Judge Richard W. Leche, machine candidate for governor; Earl K. Long, candidate for lieutenant-governor; Gaston L. Porterie, for atterney-general; T. H. Harris, superintendent of state education; A. P. Tugwell, for state treasurer, L. B. Baynard for state auditor, Lucille May Grace for register of the state land office and E. A. Conway for secretary of state.

At some of the engagements J. Hugo Dore, candidate for reelection as judge of the circuit court of appeal, and John S. Patton for public service commissioner, appeared with the machine ticket.

All of the candidates paid tribute to the late Senator Long and pledged themselves "to continue his work."

"You are looking at 252 pounds of Huey Long candidate, Judge Leche told his audiences. He declared that the Home Rule candidates, whose slogan he said is "Long Is Now Dead, Let's Kill the Things He Stood For," are changing issues every day and have "about run out."

"But we are not going to let them do that," Judge Leche asserted. "They fought everything that Senator Long provided for your benefit, but we are going to repudiate them at the polls. They have been changing names just as they change issues. Now they call themselves the Home Rule ticket. I call it the home-brew ticket. But let me tell you, you can put any label on that bunch of repudiated politicians and they will smell the same and just as strong."

Judge Leche spoke briefly at all of the meetings, telling stories and adding that his listeners could read printed copies of his opening speech, which contains his full platform.

Earl Long also spoke briefly today Almost without voice, he said he had been "putting on too much steam" and had gotten hoarse. He said the Home Rule candidates' "promises to give you this and that" contained "not a word of truth," and the people would not be able to get any relief out of them. He asserted that he could point to a million things that his brother, Senator Long, accomplished for the people, and not a one hurt the people.

Mr. Patton said that his opponents are "attempting to make capital of the fact that Earl Long at one time opposed his late brother. He declared the truth was that Earl and Huey Long "broke" because of Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley.

"When Huey went to Earl and told him that he was throwing that buzzard Walmsley out of the window, Earl and Huey shook hands," Mr. Patton declared.

Mr. Porterie said that the state government for the past eight years has been engaged in a "practical means of sharing the wealth," citing the provision for homestead exemptions. He had several members of the audience at De Ridder to rise and tell the amount of their taxes last year and show the reduction that had been granted this year.

Mr. Harris, Mr. Baynard and Mr. Ellender at earlier meetings in the day said that they had read in Texas newspapers that President Roosevelt had praised Senator Long's educational program in Louisiana. "If you saw that in the Times-Picayune or the New Orleans Item at all, you saw it on the 45th page," Mr. Ellender said at Leesville.

CALDWELL VOTERS REFUTE GOV. ALLEN'S STATEMENT

COLUMBIA, La., Dec. 14.—(Special)—Resentment of a statement made by Governor O. K. Allen, in a speech at Logansport Thursday night brought out a sheaf of affidavits from leading citizens of Caldwell parish today, who declared that, by actual count, at least 625 persons were present at the Home Rule meeting held here Wednesday night. Governor Allen had declared in his Logansport speech that "only 200 persons had attended the meeting at Columbia and half of them left before the meeting was over." The affidavits said that "not over 12 persons left the meeting, and most of them returned."

Another statement made by Governor Allen that "a group of Caldwell citizens had waited on Cleveland Dear and told him to take off his cloak of assassination," was characterized as "pure fabrication." No incident of the kind occurred at Columbia, it was declared.

All of the affidavits, taken before a notary public, were made individually by a number of those attending the meeting. A typical example follows:

"Before me the undersigned authority personally appeared W. D. McSween, W. E. Hendricks, and S. A. Myers, all being duly sworn, depose and say: That we all attended the meeting held by Cleveland Dear and his associates at Columbia high school auditorium, Wednesday night, December 11, 1935, beginning at 7 o'clock p.m., and we sat through the entire meeting and that to the best of our knowledge there were approximately 600 people who attended said meeting and that only about 12 people walked out and a portion of them returned before the meeting adjourned.

(Signed), W. D. McSween, W. E. Hendricks, S. A. Myers.

"Sworn to and subscribed before me this 14th day of December, 1935. (Signed), C. H. Hester, Dy. Clerk, ex-officio notary public."

Others signing the affidavits included D. J. Critchett, F. Cruse, Fred H. Mecom, M. D., James T. Henderson.

Young Democrats Of State Urged To Hold Dinners On Jan. 8

Albin P. Lassiter, president of the Young Democrats of Louisiana, announced, Saturday that pursuant to a request received from James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee, groups in this state as well as similar ones throughout the nation, will observe January 8, as "Jackson day."

Plans for Monroe contemplate the holding of a big banquet at a local hotel when prominent speakers will appear and a general program will be held.

President Lassiter stated that he is desirous that all clubs of Young Democrats of Louisiana observe the day in suitable manner which will comprise the actual send-off of the presidential campaign of 1936. He said that he is expecting that such dinners held in Monroe, Shreveport, New Orleans, Lafayette, Lake Charles, Opelcusas, Baton Rouge, Alexandria and other cities and towns.

One of the features, he stated, will be an address broadcast by President Roosevelt which will be received during the holding of the banquets in the various cities of this and other states.

Announcement of the program here will be made in the near future. Mr. Lassiter has just returned from New Orleans where he made tentative plans for the holding of the proposed banquets.

BOXING BRITISH!

LONDON—(AP)—The fine art of boxing, laments the critics, seems to be passing to the United States.

Tommy Loughran's recent fight here brought a wail.

"It hurt just a little," comments one writer, "to see the oldest and best English boxing style revived by a man from America."

Popular Play Will Be Major Production Of Little Theater

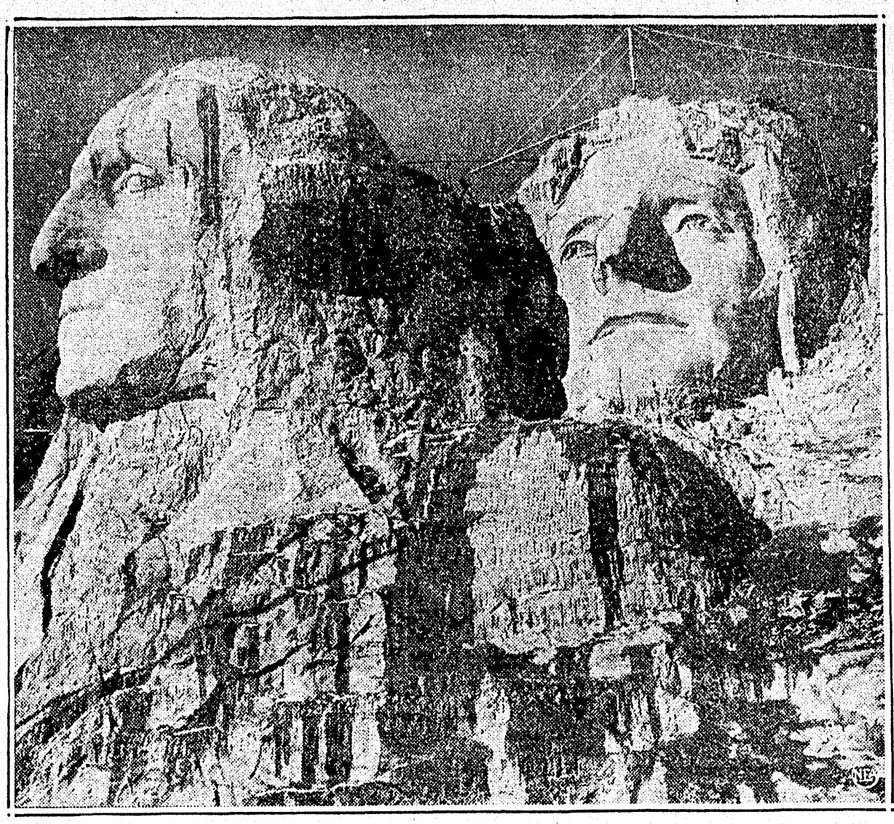
"The Dover Road" will be presented by the Little Theater at the Northeast Center of Louisiana State university at 8 p.m. Tuesday night. Rehearsals have been in progress under the direction of Mrs. Blanche Oliver for many weeks, and the cast is said to be well able to support the various parts, some of which are of difficult nature.

Those who will participate are Frank Breese, Owen McCleary, Nita Shields, Louise Guerriero, Suzanne Kellogg, J. B. King, Sybil Thompson, Ulmer McDonald, H. C. Wroten and Eileen MacKinnon.

It has been the intention to mail out membership cards to all who are members of the Little Theater last year so that they can pay for these at the door and thus obviate long delays in their issuance. Those who fail to receive their cards are asked to attend the play and purchase their membership tickets at the play.

There will be no membership campaign, the public being asked to buy their tickets Tuesday night which will entitle to admission to all work shop and major productions throughout the season.

TWO STATUES NEAR COMPLETION



Flecked with snow like the hair of men in the winter of life, the likenesses of George Washington (left) and Thomas Jefferson gaze from the lofty eminence of the colossal Mt. Rushmore memorial across the far-flung Dakota horizon. The last five months of work by Gutzon Borglum, noted sculptor, and his staff of stone cutters, nearly completed the two statues, largest in the world.

Scientists Flay Carrel's Ideas About Spiritualism

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Scientists of the midwest ganged up today on what they called the spooks conjured up in the east this week by Dr. Alexis Carrel.

"There are no ghosts," the midwesterners insisted.

They were surprised and disturbed at the Rockefeller institute researcher's statement that "we know positively that clairvoyants are capable of perceiving past and future events."

Denials came quick and sharp.

"No reputable psychologist" believes in spiritualism, Dr. A. R. Gilliland, of Northwestern university, declared.

"Spiritualism and particularly mental telepathy has not been proved," said Dr. Harvey Carr, University of Chicago psychologist.

"Positively not," Dean Stevens, Northwestern psychologist exclaimed: "There has never been a study that gave any positive evidence. The whole weight of science is against it."

Pointing out that Doctor Carrel was a medical man invading the mental field, Dean Stevens deplored the tendency of men to be "so very exact in their own field but so very careless in any other field."

Dr. M. B. Visscher, professor of physiology at the University of Illinois, advised the world to take Doctor Carrel's words "with a grain of salt."

The physiologist said the Carrel statement was "very bad" because of the New Yorker's "great prestige."

The anatomist's viewpoint was supplied by Dr. Leslie Arey, of Northwestern. Said he:

"We haven't any reason to think it (spiritualism, mental telepathy or clairvoyance) should be so. There is no mechanism for it that you can put your finger on. But that does not mean we should just rule it out."

Dean David J. Davis, of the University of Illinois Medical school, said he didn't know of any scientific evidence of clairvoyance.

A "little evidence" on the spiritualist's side of the question was pointed out by Dr. A. C. Ivy, head of Northwestern's physiology department.

At Duke university, he said, Dr. William McDougall conducted experiments with marked cards and obtained results "beyond the element of chance." The experimenters also found a horse, however, which they said could do mind reading.

The Duke studies were discounted, other scientists said, because they were never duplicated elsewhere. Further, an extensive study at Stanford university showed "absolutely negative" results.

oppose the candidates of the state machine in this election was discussed.

"It is ridiculous to say that a murder plot would be discussed among 300 men. I do not believe that 'Oily' Oscar believes the charge that he is making in the interests of the candidates of the state machine, but if he does, let him do his duty.

"The state machine controls the attorney-general of Louisiana and the state machine controls the district attorney of New Orleans, where 'Oily' Oscar says the murder plot was hatched. If there was a plot, why doesn't 'Oily' Oscar have the attorney-general or the district attorney prosecute somebody?"

Congressman Dear criticized what he described as "the memorial mockeries" that are being held in various parts of the state "by such men as Paul English, a former entertainer in a night resort."

"They have no respect for the man they pretend to memorialize," Congressman Dear said. "They, under the guise of holding a memorial meeting, hold political meetings, and tell the members of 'Share-Our-Wealth' societies that they have to vote for a political machine dominated and ruled by Bob Maestri of New Orleans.

"If you people of the country parishes don't know who Bob Maestri is find out before January 21. Bob Maestri is the ruler of the lower section of New Orleans and the boss of the professional gamblers of New Orleans, St. Bernard and Jefferson parishes.

"Bob Maestri is the man who is trying to run the 'Share-Our-Wealth' societies today. I do not believe that the honest, sincere members of the 'Share-Our-Wealth' societies in the county parishes are going to turn me down—a man who has come up honestly from a small farm—for a political machine controlled by a man like Bob Maestri."

The crowd that filled the courthouse at Many and overflowed on the surrounding lawn cheered Congressman Dear when he declared that public officials who were guilty of state-owned land steals would be prosecuted in any other state in the American union.

"It is my opinion," Congressman Dear said, "that the United States will not permit 'Oily' Oscar Allen to become a member of that body if he ever appears to take his seat.

"Oscar Allen, as governor of Louisiana, signed away to Lieutenant-Governor Jimmy Noe leases on state-owned oil lands in Ouachita parish for which the state did not receive a dime. These same leases were sold by Jimmy Noe's Win or Lose Oil company for $320,000.

"Out of this $320,000 Governor Allen and Lieutenant-Governor Noe took $87,500 and purchased 11,000 acres of oil lands in Bossier parish. What was left of the $320,000 was divided up into checks, made payable to cash, and they were cashed without being endorsed.

"One of these checks was for $62,500 and Lieutenant-Governor Noe deposited this check in his bank in Monroe. Another check was for $50,000 and another for $24,000. I challenged Oscar Allen to deny that he got the $24,000 check, and he remains silent. I again defy him to deny that he got this $24,000 check. I do not believe he will ever answer."

Congressman Dear asserted that the officers of the Win or Lose Oil company were Lieutenant-Governor Noe, president; Seymour Weiss, head of the New Orleans dock board, vice-president, and Earle Christenberry, secretary.

"Earle Christenberry introduced Dick Leche, the state machine's candidate for governor, when Leche made his first speech of this campaign," Congressman Dear said, "and Earl Christenberry is the manager of Leche's campaign and the campaigns of the other state machine candidates.

"Leche says he approves the acts of 'Oily' Oscar. I don't doubt that he does—Earle Christenberry is his campaign manager, and Dick Leche was private secretary to Governor Allen before Allen appointed him to a judgeship in the city of New Orleans."

Congressman Dear declared that "this is the kind of gang of machine politicians that go among the poor people of Louisiana talking 'share-the-wealth.'"

"This gang of machine politicians," Congressman Dear continued, "has never shared a dime with the poor people of Louisiana. This is the same gang of politicians who refused to pass an old-age pension law, or to create a social welfare department to take care of the widows, sick mothers and orphans of our state.

"This is the same gang of machine politicians who have refused to lift a finger to help the farmers and the unemployed men and women of our state. Instead of trying to do something for the hungry people of Louisiana, this gang of politicians was fighting to keep $60,000,000 of federal money away from the unemployed of our state, and they succeeded in keeping out this public works administration money that would have paid union wages to the unemployed.

"This gang has found millions of dollars for the politicians, but not one cent for our unemployed, for our old people or for widows, sick mothers and orphans.

"This is the gang that parades dozens of bodyguards around the state to stick guns in the backs of 70-year-old men who violated no law. It is time in Louisiana when men should say whether they are men or jelly fish."

Congressman Dear asserted that there will be "no army of bodyguards rushing about the state intimidating law-abiding citizens when I am governor."

"When the Home Rule candidates take office," Congressman Dear said, "they will not need bodyguards to bludgeon the free people of Louisiana into submission."

Congressman Dear denounced Attorney-General Gaston L. Porterie for "failing to do his duty."

"Instead of prosecuting public officials who ought to be prosecuted," Congressman Dear said, "Porterie and his gang of state machine politicians have the gall to come before the people and ask for their votes."

"This is the same Gaston Porterie," Congressman Dear continued, "who used all the power of the attorney-general's office in an attempt to prevent the prosecution of 513 election crooks in the city of New Orleans—the election crooks who were pardoned by a legislature controlled by the state machine.

"'Oily' Oscar Allen signed the bill which pardoned these election crooks when Porterie was unable to save them from prosecution and conviction."

The issues confronting the people of Louisiana today, Congressman Dear said, "are as great as those which were foced by our fathers when they arose and drove the carpet-baggers from our state."

"The moral issues before the men and women of Louisiana today," Congressman Dear continued, "are as great as when our fathers drove the lottery out of the state. I do not believe the men and women of Louisiana are going to vote for state machine candidates who were selected and who are controlled by Bob Maestri and the professional gamblers of New Orleans, St. Bernard and Jefferson parishes."

Congressman Dear announced Earl Long, candidate for lieutenant-governor on the state machine's ticket, for "lying about my labor record."

"Earl Long said that my labor record in congress was the lowest of any member of congress," Congressman Dear said. "This is a deliberate lie. My labor record in congress is 100 per cent, and I invite any man or woman in Louisiana to write William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and ask him for my labor record.

"This state machine gang also has been spreading false propaganda against my record in congress on the soldiers' bonus. I am a World war veteran, and I voted for the soldiers' bonus, and I voted to override the president's veto.

"This state machine gang cannot tell the truth. Day in and day out they resort to falsehoods in an attempt to fool the people."

Congressman John N. Sandlin, candidate for the United States senate in opposition to Allen J. Ellender, also challenged Governor Allen "to have me arrested and prosecuted if he believes I had any connection with a murder plot."

"I know nothing of any murder plot," Congressman Sandlin said, "and I challenge Governor Allen to have me arrested and charged with any connection with any plot."

Other Home Rule candidates who spoke in Natchitoches and Sabine parishes today are Clement M. Moss, for lieutenant-governor; Philo Coco, for attorney-general; Francis Williams, for secretary of state; E. H. Fisher, for state superintendent of education; William T. Mayo, for state treasurer; Wilfred Begnaud, for state auditor, and Jules Carville, for register of the state land office.

Mr. Coco pledged himself to investigate "all frauds connected with the leasing of state-owned oil lands when I am attorney-general."

WED WITH DEATH IN CHAIR FACING BRIDEGROOM

The phrase, "Until death do us part," came with tragic import in the wedding ceremony of this couple, with the bridegroom in the shadow of the electric chair. His wrists handcuffed, John Collins, convicted of a holdup murder in Laurel, L. I., slipped the wedding ring on the finger of Anna Downey, his 18-year-old bride, and then was led back to his cell in the Queens county jail at Long Island City. Officiating was Municipal Judge William H. Robinson, right.

GREAT BRITAIN PUTS PRESSURE ON SELASSIE

(By Associated Press)

Diplomatic disclosures bobbed up Saturday to embarrass further the British government, already on the defensive for its part in the peace plan it worked out with France.

An official foreign office "white paper" disclosed:

1. That Great Britain instructed its minister to Addis Ababa to use strong pressure upon Emperor Haile Selassie to have him accept the peace plan.

2. Britain hinted to Premier Mussolini that if he would negotiate over the formula a threatened league oil sanction would be called off.

The plan found few friends except in official London and Paris circles.

Even Premier Mussolini who, league officials estimated, would receive direct or indirect control of two-thirds of Ethiopia under it, was cool.

Il Duce asked for "clarification" of the formula and indicated he would give his answer after a midnight meeting of his fascist grand council next Wednesday.

Peace hopes in Rome slumped badly.

Guns on the African front were relatively quiet but a tragic accident killed an American missionary in Ethiopia.

Dr. Robert W. Hockman, 28, formerly of Wheaton, Ill., died when an unexploded Italian bomb he was handling Friday at Daggah Bur went off. These bombs were his hobby.

A significant diplomatic development was the disclosure that Great Britain has begun negotiations with Germany for a closer relationship.

Tales instigated in Berlin by the British ambassador with Reichsfuehrer Hitler were said to center about the possibilities of limitations of armaments and a mutual aid air pact among signers of the Locarno treaty, mainly Germany, France, Italy and Britain.

L. L. MURRELL TO TAKE POST AT PALACE STORE

L. L. Murrell of Beaumont, Texas, will arrive today to take charge of the first floor at The Palace, a post until recently held by William Grasse, who resigned to accept a position in Hattiesburg.

Sig Masur, president of The Palace, announced that Mr. Murrell comes here with the highest recommendations and is thoroughly competent to fill the place, and will be glad to meet the public at his new post which he will assume tomorrow.

He Grew Worse Each Day Until He Began Gly-Cas

Mr. Mahoney's System Had Filled With Poisons; Weak, Run Down; Rheumatism, Bladder Trouble Made Life More Miserable—Then Gly-Cas Amazes

"I know Gly-Cas will give satisfactory results wherever it is given a fair trial," said Mr. W. M. Mahoney, 68 years of age, 525 Grand Ave., Monroe, well known Railroad Man of this vicinity, recently in a surprising statement reaching the Phoenix Drug Co., 348 DeSiard Street, this city.

MR. W. M. MAHONEY

"For many years I had suffered continually with what medical authorities diagnosed as "asthma" and I was in a terribly weakened and run-down condition," said Mr. Mahoney. "I felt almost too miserable to accomplish anything I would undertake to do. My work in superintending building of bridges and railorad beds naturally exposed me to all kinds of weather which aggravated my health troubles continually. My work caused me to eat at different places where it was impossible to select the proper foods until I developed a severe case of constipation and a torpid liver. My kidneys then became weakened and caused me no end of distress, and I finally resorted to the use of strong medicines to get relief—but met only with repeated failure. As I continued to suffer rheumatism settled over my body and my bladder gave me considerable trouble over which I had no control. It was so discouraging and I had about given up hope of ever getting well again when I began to hear so much praise for this new Gly-Cas I decided to put it to a REAL TEST in my own case—and found it wonderful.

"I was actually amazed at the quick thorough action of this new Gly-Cas in my stubborn case," continued Mr. Mahoney, "my kidneys, liver and bowels are now properly regulated and they have eliminated those poisons which had collected in my system for years. All the rheumatic pains have gone entirely and that intense suffering of years has disappeared. I sleep well at night, my appetite has returned and I now really enjoy my food, feel fine and have renewed energy. To all those sufferers who have not yet given Gly-Cas the opportunity to help them I would recommend that they not hesitate any longer for the merit of this new remedy has been proven beyond all doubt."

Gly-Cas is sold by Phoenix Drug Co., 348 DeSiard St., Monroe, and by leading druggists in surrounding towns.

If nothing happens to disturb the "smooth course of justice," Mrs. Tilford will be hanged by the neck until she is dead next Tuesday. She may deserve it, although only the Angel Gabriel knows about that, but nine children born to her do not deserve it.

THE AUTOMOBILE industry is "rejoicing in its strength," and that means general improvement. Mr. Harlow H. Curtice, of Flint, Michigan, makes automobiles and announces that during the last three months the number of his employes has averaged 13,563 against 6,962 for the same period a year ago. His payrolls are highest since 1929; his employes were paid during the three months mentioned, a total of $6,371,727, against $2,391,438, for the same period last year, an increase of 166.4 per cent. Such figures mean "better times."

NEW BUSES ARE EXPECTED TODAY

Big Carriers Are Being Driven Through To City From Lima, Ohio

The large new buses ordered for the municipal street railway from a plant in Lima, Ohio, will arrive in Monroe some time today, it was announced Saturday. Four bus drivers and a mechanic, together with John Brothers, superintendent of the local street railway, left earlier in the week for the Ohio city to drive back the new buses.

Word was received here that plans contemplated the return by way of Louisville, Nashville and Meridian. A wire stated that they were in Louisville at 9 a. m. Friday and that that night would be spent in Nashville and Saturday in Meridian. They are expected here sometime in the middle of the afternoon today.

The buses are of large size and much more modern than those now in use. They will be placed on the run out DeSiard road and on the north side where the traffic is the heviest.

Much of the "morocco leather" goods on European markets comes from Kano, a city in northern Nigeria, British West Africa.

City Briefs

A charity ball will be held on Cherokee terrace, Hotel Frances, on December 21 by the Ouachita Business Men's club. Music will be furnished by Alec White's orchestra. Net proceeds will be used to provide Christmas baskets for the underprivileged.

All third and fourth grade teachers of the Ouachita parish schools were given special demonstrations in their various studies at the Ouachita parish grammar school Saturday morning.

A large Christmas tree was placed in the lobby of Hotel Virginia Saturday. A myriad of little incandescent globes with gay colors adorns the tree which is surmounted with a large star of the east. The tree is receiving much favorable comment from all who chance to visit the hostelry.

With added trucks and clerks, the Monroe postoffice is prepared to handle with speed and accuracy the biggest Christmas business thus far in the history of the new building. The peak of business is expected to be reached some day during the middle of the present week. To facilitate business the office will be open Saturday afternoon of this week.

Mayor C. C. Bell of West Monroe, and S. H. McCalry, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of Monroe and West Monroe, are in New Orleans attending the sessions of the national rivers and harbors congress. Ceremonies in connection with the opening of the Bonnet Carre spillway bridge also comprised part of the celebration.

The city schools will close for the holidays on Friday, December 20, and will reopen on January 2, according to announcement made Saturday by E. L. Neville, superintendent. The parish schools will close also on Friday but are to reopen on New Year's day. The Northeast Center of Louisiana State university will close on Wednesday of this week and will reopen on January 2.

A nominating committee composed of Fred Williamson, Lucyle Godwin and Mrs. E. P. Cudd was named Friday noon at the meeting of the Council of Social Agencies. They are instructed to prepare names on which the membership will vote at the January meeting for new officers for the coming year. Final plans were formulated at the luncheon for the disbursement of toys to underprivileged children at Christmas time.

The educational project of the WPA will be resumed throughout the fifth district shortly after Christmas, stated A. P. Lassiter, director, on Saturday. This will mean the reemployment of many teachers in the 14 parishes inclusive of Ouachita, in the near future. They have not been employed in this line since last summer when the project was called to a halt.

Miss Johnnie Tucker, of this city, was reported convalescing yesterday at the Vaughan-Wright-Bendel clinic, following an operation performed Friday.

The Library club of the Northeast Center of Louisiana State university its sponsoring a "stunt program" Monday at activities period. Each club at the college will be asked to present a "stunt" which must not require more than five minutes to complete. The club that stages the best program will be awarded a prize. There is said to be a lively interest among the clubs as to which will put on the best program.

The Masonic lodge in West Monroe, known as F. & A. M., No. 419, held its annual election the past week which resulted as follows: J. L. Warren, worshipful master; Ford Hines, senior warden; L. L. Wood, junior warden; F. C. McConnell, secretary; F. G. Thatcher, treasurer.

Mrs. J. G. Bell and Mrs. J. Wilder spent Saturday in Gilbert, where they visited friends and relatives.

The meeting scheduled to be held this afternoon at the L. B. Faulk post's memorial home by the members of the Sons of the American Legion, has been postponed, it was announced Saturday night.

Nobody enjoyed more than the babies themselves the assortment of strange equipment the movie men brought with them or the bustle and excitement of becoming movie stars before their second birthday.

FRANK CLINE TO TAKE PRISONERS TO ANGOLA

Deputy Sheriff Frank Cline will leave this morning for Angola, where he will take the following prisoners to the penitentiary, convicted and sentenced during the last session of the criminal district court here: J. K. McKeller, found guilty of breaking and entering in the night time, two years; Harrison Davis, convicted of murder, life imprisonment; Sam Lewis, convicted of larceny of a yearling, six months; John Pierce, convicted of possession of stolen property, eight to 24 months.

FIREWORKS ARE CAUSE OF BLAZE SATURDAY

Children playing with fireworks were responsible for a small fire yesterday at 717 Jackson street, occupied by J. T. Deal. Trucks 1, 2 and 6 answered the call.

A Chevrolet truck caught fire at Jackson and Plum streets, due, it was reported, to the owner striking a match close to the gasoline tank. The blaze was quickly put out, without damage to the truck.

NEGRO IS CAPTURED

The alertness of Officer J. M. Busby resulted in the speedy capture of Alonzo Claburn, negro, of Farmerville, who, it was reported, had driven off with a truck belonging to A. Keller & Son, 215 North Second street. The alleged theft of the truck was bulletined to the police and Busby made the arrest as Claburn was crossing the traffic bridge. The negro is being held in the city jail. He is said to have told officers that he "just wanted to ride to Farmerville."

The $7,000,000 fortune of Johns Hopkins, a Baltimore merchant, was divided between the university and hospital which bear his name.

Newsmen Hurl Barbs At Annual Gridiron Dinner

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Six Herbert Hoovers from whom to choose a Republican presidential candidate and a Harry Hopkins who took over control of the tides from the moon were paraded before President Roosevelt and a distinguished group of guests tonight by the Gridiron club.

In the semi-annual dinner of the famed dining club, Washington newspaper correspondents whetted news events into good humored barbs which they flung with impartial hand at those who hold the reins of the nation.

Most of those who figured in the pointed drama and song were present to see themselves marched across the stage. From the scene of the merriment emanted a report that President Roosevelt and Norman Thomas spoke. But there are no reporters at Gridiron dinners.

Some of the dramatic skits showed: William Randolph Hearst, Arthur Brisbane, Colonel Robert R. McCormick, the Chicago publisher, Charlie Chaplin, James Cagney, William Powell, Aimee Semple McPherson and J. P. Morgan moving to a desert island in their hunt for a tax free refuge.

American Liberty league lawyers who became mistaken for nine buggy drivers that turned out to be the supreme court.

Attorney General Cummings and Secretary Roper singing the touching story of "Franklin and Johnson" who were "buddies" and how "Hugh" was "our pal but he done us wrong."

White House secretaries Early and McIntyre, dubbed 'Early and Late," recounting famous news events at which they had failed to function and agreeing that the president had asked "where is my secretary-at?"

The Schechter brothers of Brooklyn taking their famous NRA chickens to the Olympic games with Ogden Reid, publisher of the New York Herald-Tribune, presenting a rooster to them to perpetuate the Schechter strain.

Harry Hopkins talking over with the Man in the Moon his plans to boondoggle there.

"Nellie, the beautiful stock model," striving to save her little subsidiaries from Jam M. Landis and the securities act, and wailing for fear her "pretty ones" may "die to carry Nebraska" for the "Squire of Hyde Park."

The Republicans striving to stage a new 'G. O. P. Follies" in "Tugwelltown" with six Herbert Hoovers as potential stars and explaining in song that:

"It will not make any difference when we come.

"When they're in the G. O. P., they all look alike to me."

5,000 EXPECTED AT CHURCH MEET

Methodist Young People Will Attend Memphis Conference

Methodist young people from all parts of the United States will assemble in Memphis, Tenn., 5,000 strong for a conference planned by the general board of Christian education, December 27-31. Monroe, West Monroe and many cities and towns of northeast Louisiana will send large delegations. The three-fold purpose of the meeting will be to guide youth to a personal relationship with the great leader of all Christianity, to arouse youth to the idea that in this alone is the salvation for the woes of the present day world, and to launch a program for united action by all young people of the Methodist denomination.

Some of the best speakers in the country will appear on the program, many persons occupying positions of national and international leadership. The list includes Y. C. Yang, president of Soochow university; Toyohiko Kagawa of Japan; Senator Gerald P. Nye; Allan K. Chalmers, Mrs. Induk Pak of Korea; Kirby Page, Regina Westcott Wieman; Willis A. Sutton, Mordecai Johnson, E. McNeill Poteat, Jr., Charles Gilkey, Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes and others.

From the start of the convention to its close, there will be something doing all the time. It is said that Memphis hotels will be taxed to the limit to accommodate the anticipated 5,000 persons at the convention.

COMMERCE GROUP TO END PRIMARY TODAY

All ballots in the primary election for members of the senior and junior boards of the Chamber of Commerce of Monroe and West Monroe must be received by midnight tonight, stated S. H. McClary, secretary.

After the primary ballots have been received, a new set of ballots will be sent out for the holding of the election proper.

When both senior and junior boards have been named, each meets and elects its own officers to function through the year.

INDUSTRIAL AND REVIEW OF THE TWIN CITIES

Oldsmobile Official Discusses Important Problem Of Traffic Safety

"Motoring safety, very much on the public mind, can be attained only in one way—the building of the safest possible cars by the manufacturer and the temperate use of their power and speed by the motorist."

This was the statement of C. L. McCuen, Oldsmobile president and general manager, in discussing the important problem of traffic safety.

"The mere passage of laws is not the answer to the problem which concerns us all so deeply," he said. "There must be a full measure of cooperation on the part of the man who makes the modern motor car and the man who drives it.

"The manufacturer must build into his product those important and proved safety devices which will aid a motorist in avoiding an accident. He must have brakes strong enough and sure enough to stop his car in the shortest possible time. He must enclose the passengers in his cars in walls of steel, above, below and on all sides of them. He should add the further protection of safety glass. He must make his car easy to steer, easy to manipulate in any emergency.

"And the motorist must take full advantage of these safety devices. More than that, he should drive at all times with extreme caution, traveling at slower speeds at night than he does in the daytime.

"He must know what to do on all kinds of roads and in all kinds of traffic. He should realize that pedestrians cannot move as quickly as he is moving, and therefore should anticipate situations which might cause trouble.

"There are certain definite precautions, familiar to most motorists, to take when driving on icy streets, on gravel roads, in snow and sleet and rain. Periodical checking of brakes, tires, lights, horns, windshield wipers and steering apparatus should be made by every motorist. A defect in any of these might well cause an accident.

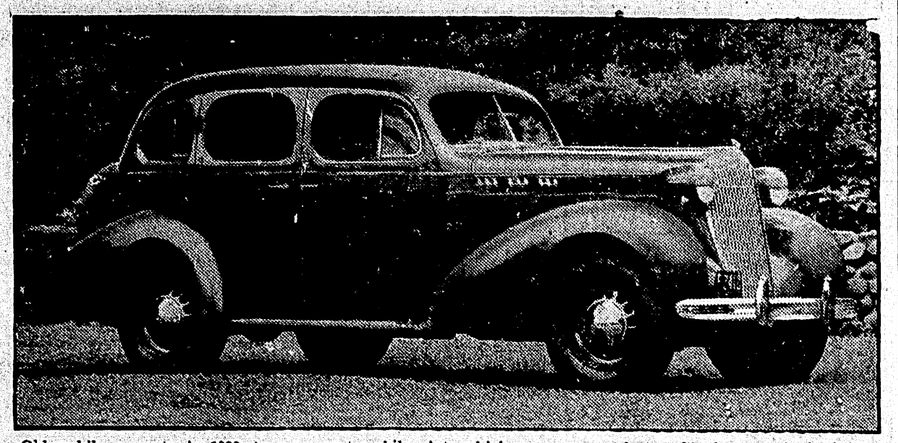
"No motorist deliberately invites an accident. But by failure to keep his car in condition, to abide by the traffic regulations of the state and city in which he lives, by forgetting for a brief moment his caution, he may well extend just such an invitation.

"The manufacturer is trying to do his part. Special engineers are assigned to test cars for their safety, to devise new ways to give added protection to the people who drive them.

"Each year finds more rigid frames, greater over-all strength, more powerful and quicker acting brakes—a hundred and one things which mean additional safety to the men and women driving on the country's highways today.

"Through the cooperation of both the manufacturers and the drivers, the accident toll on the highways can be sharply diminished. It surely is worth the effort."

THE CAR THAT HAS EVERYTHING



Oldsmobile presents, in 1936, two new automobiles into which every proven feature has been engineered. These features include all those advantages which add to the comfort and safety of the passenger as well as the economy and performance of the motor. Important among the 1936 Oldsmobile features are livelier power, increased luxury and comfort, super-hydraulic brakes, center-control steering, solid steel "Turret Top" body by Fisher, knee-action wheels, smoother performance, increased all-around economy and safety glass as standard equipment in all models. The model pictured above is an Oldsmobile Six Four Door Touring Sedan.

CENTRAL SHOWS NEW DUAL-10 TIRE

Demonstration Is Made On Wet Pavement To Show Unusual Gripping Ability

An unusual demonstration of the new Dual-10 tire which is a product of the General Tire company was given by the Central and Circle "S" stations.

The demonstration was made on Jackson street near the Barkdull Faulk school on a stretch of wet pavement by W. D. Ross of the Central Service stations. The new Dual-10 tires were mounted on a 1936 Chevrolet from Lee-Rogers Chevrolet company.

The new type tire has unusual gripping ability which is due to the softness of the tread and carcass, and softness of the vanes of the tread itself. In the local test the car traveling at a speed of 40 miles per hour was stopped straight in its tracks on the wet pavement in a distance of about 35 feet. It did not swerve sidewise, which is an added safety to drivers knowing that a car can be stopped within the confines of its own traffic lanes.

Showing that the new Dual-10 tires hold to the lanes, the car was driven around a corner on the wet pavement at a speed of 35 miles per hour.

The tread wipes the pavement clean of moisture allowing it to take hold and bring the car to a complete stop.

A comment of a local man was that it was the first time that he had ever seen that would not skid sidewise after locking all four brakes.

The name, Dual-10, was given to this new tire because of the ten points or features that it possesses.

The tire uses standard rims and does not necessitate the purchase of special equipment.

Introduction of the tire into this territory was made by the sales manager of the General Tire company in a special meeting in Memphis, Tenn.

Demonstrations will be made to persons interested by the Central and Circle "S" Service stations.

The Tunguses of Siberia have no general name for the reindeer, although they have specific names for "tame reindeer," "wild reindeer," "young reindeer," etc.

NASH OPERATES NEW AUTO SHOP

Seat Coverings, Upholstering, Duco Painting And General Body Work Are Done

C. L. Nash has opened the Nash Top and Body shop at 412 Walnut street in the rear of the North Louisiana Motor company.

Mr. Nash was formerly associated with the Monroe Top and Body company and the Monroe Body and Radiator company. He opened this new shop under his own management a little more than a month ago.

The new top and body shop will feature upholstering, Duco painting, and body and fender work.

Rebuilding of all major wrecks is part of their main work. Every tool that is needed to repair these jobs will be found in the shop. Rebuilding of burned automobiles is also done by the Nash Top and Body shop.

Mr. Nash's establishment is completely equipped to fit seat covers and his experience in this line is exceedingly valuable to his many customers.

Duco painting jobs are turned out by the local concern and bodies of the cars are refinished with skill.

The shop is conveniently located four blocks from DeSiard street. Cars may be left there during the day and they will be delivered at any time desired. If you wish the Nash Top and Body shop to call for your car you may telephone 729. When the work is finished your car will be delivered.

For any car work an invitation is extended by Mr. Nash to pay a visit to his new shop.

SEYMOUR AGENCY GIVES ADVICE FOR SAFETY IN DRIVING

In launching a campaign on safety while driving automobiles, several Monroe firms gave certain precautions that should be observed. Traffic accidents have become too frequent on our roads and highways due to carelessness in driving or carelessness in having the car properly equipped to meet emergencies.

The Seymour Insurance agency in the Bernhardt building is giving its support in this campaign, E. J. Seymour of the agency said.

"Our agency recognizes the fact that there have been too many accidents, too many lives lost, and too many people injured in the past number of years," Mr. Seymour continued.

"Automobiles should be checked from time to time as to brakes, steering gear and tires. It is a proven fact that good tires have averted many an accident. Brakes should respond immediately to bring the car to a halt.

"Careful driving should be adhered to at all times and drinking while driving should be avoided.

"In this campaign we hope to make people more safety conscious, and decrease the number of accidents on our streets and highways."

Gathering Of Families For Christmas Is To Start Shortly

Few Gatherings Are Scheduled Christmas

Several Monroe Homes Are Noted For Open House Celebrations; Most Observances To Be Family Affairs

By Eve Bradford

The Christ Child's gentle message, "Peace on earth, good will to men," will soon hover over the city like a soft amen. Very soon now the beautiful symbols of Christmas will come to gladden our lives—crimson holly, fragrant pine, altars gleaming, soaring incense, belfries singing, the laughter of children, horns tooting, steaming plum pudding, gayly-wrapped gifts, carols and, above everything else, our loved ones all together again.

"Home for Christmas"—the sweetest words in all the world today. Yes, they will all come trooping home this week. The airways will fly extra planes, Pullmans will be crowded with students and highways will be dotted with automobiles carrying precious cargoes. Like homing pigeons they all find the Christmas fireside. There is not much variation in the quality of Christmas in homes of high worldly station and just ordinary homes. In the stately colonial home, the modest New England farmhouse, the old Kentucky home, the plantation mansion of the deep south, the cottage among the sycamores on the banks of the Wabash or the little gray home in the west, the day will be distinctly a family one. Simple affection will rule and stronger than ever will become the tie that binds.

Most homes in Monroe will be en famille, but there are a few where society will gather, as is the custom every year. The Abe Arent menage swarms with friends all day and many a glass of sparkling vino of Abe's favorite brand is lifted to the genial hosts who open wide their door to a gala open house.

Oceans of egg-nogg and hot Tom and Jerry has long made the R. L. Woods open house on Christmas day ring merrily down the corridors of time. The pot-pourri of talk reaches crescendo along about one o'clock, noon, when the festivities are supposed to be over.

We haven't as yet received our annual invitation to the Charles Reid's open house Christmas day, but no doubt they will not alter the custom. Their entertainments are always charmingly informal and rendered exceedingly interesting by the presence of their lovely children. Charles, Jr., is the ideal movie type, with his mother's beautiful brown eyes and his father's sang froid.

We didn't have to use opera glasses to spy on the activities of society last week. They were out en masse at the dinner party at the Virginia hotel, where that gallant company of Alexandria Rotarians dined and wined their Monroe colleagues to the queen's taste. Rook Harrison swept past us on the arm of that good-looking husband of hers. She wore an intriguing little gold veil over a red rose adorned turban. A long, floor-length black skirt and a silver lame blouse completed a most distinctive toilette. When A. V. Miller addressed the assemblage, no doubt he was inspired by the presence of his beautiful wife, Patty, who wore a smart black model with shaggy white chrysanthemum at her throat and close-fitting hat with a flaring veil. The years have touched lovely Patty Miller very, very lightly. The only way you can reckon time is when she talks about her son, who is a student at Tulane university. Otherwise she is still the lovely golden-haired girl. At one end of the long dinner table Edgar Florsheim presided with a handsome attorney from south Louisiana. They were so deeply engrossed in the art of brew a cafe broule, the address of the speaker went quite over their heads. The concoction was ladled carefully into glasses and passed along the board. It must have rivaled the stuff brewed by the gods, if one can reckon by the smiles of satisfaction on the faces of those who sipped. My word! but Clarence Faulk has fairly grasped the bull by the horns so far as age is concerned. He talked glibly the other night of voyaging about on the China Clipper. A few years ago he went back and forth about his business with never a "flighty" thought. Today he cannot fly high enough and is restless when his feet touch terra firma. The man never grows old who "lives in thoughts, not breaths, in feelings, not in figures on a dial." Vivian Harper was looking unusually well in a King's blue, rhinestone-studded model with wide-brimmed blue hat that matched her eyes perfectly. Mabel Wallace, vibrant and animated as usual, brightened the corner of her table, where she sat with that extremely likeable person, her husband, Charlie Will Wallace. Mable was sartorially perfect in a cocktail frock of black with a chic little black hat. Suzanne Hirsch, who assured us she would positively remain at home now until after the holidays, wore a fascinating little black satin hat with little ostrich feathers standing upright on the crown. Her silver blouse and black skirt was the very essence of style. Saw that good-looking Allen Norris bending low to catch whatever it was his dinner partner, Elizabeth Cosper, was saying. Mrs. Aubrey Haas, always lovely and always so friendly, was wearing a rust-colored dinner frock. Aubrey waxed poetical and oratorical down at the speaker's table.

Christmas presents are not the only gifts being selected these days. Saw Mrs. P. A. Poag selecting a glamorous evening frock for that equally glamorous daughter, Margaret, who will breeze into town this week from Whitworth college. When Jane Dawkins arrives from Mary Baldwin college, she will find some breath-taking frocks ready to be donned. She will take part in the wedding of her brother, Benjamin, who walks altarward on the first on January.

There is one person in Monroe who will draw one long sigh of relief when the new T. B. sanatorium is built. Mrs. G. B. Cooley's dinner hour varies like the wind and she never knows when Bert is going to drop the Weto's anchor. He never misses a day steaming up the river to Pine Top on board the Weto. Dinner, necessarily, has to wait until he returns and sometimes it is far into the night. However, Mrs. Cooley's is long suffering, as her heart strings respond to the music of the pines in this breeze-swept spot where the new sanatorium is being erected.

With pansies blooming in the T. O. Bancroft yard and pink japonicas unfolding their petals in the Allan Sholars yard, it is hard to believe that Mr and Mrs. L. B. Ferguson are buried under ten feet of snow up in Canada. They will dig themselves out, however, in time to reach home for Christmas. The X-ray hands of the famous nerve specialist Mr. Ferguson has consulted are doing wonders for him and many there are who hope a permanent cure will be effected.

Lights gleam again from the J. W. McWilliams home. And it is about time. We have missed Mrs. "Mac," whose presence is absolutely necessary to perfect our design for living. A summer in Wisconsin and a few leisurely months spent in the bosom of her family in Memphis sends her back home, glowing and happy and eager to welcome friends in that big house of hers. The walls still echo with the merry days of yore when life in Monroe was lived on a broader scale.

Defies Superstition

Friday, December the thirteenth, may have meant another unlucky day for you, but to Jacquelyn Walker, lovely little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Walker, Jr., it was one of the happiest days of the whole year. She reached the interesting age of six on that day; and just to prove how lucky the number thirteen can be, she invited thirteen intimate friends to her home to share the festivities.

The entire afternoon was devoted to the playing of games, with the cutting of the birthday cake a happy climax. The tea table was laden with delicious tid-bits, served with ice cream. Christmas favors were distributed before departure

Pocketbooks Influenced 1935 Fashions With Double-Duty Styles Taking Lead

By Adelaide Kerr
(Associated Press Fashion Editor)

PARIS, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Pocketbooks and budgets greatly influenced 1935 fashions.

Though costly and luxurious furs, fabrics and jewels were shown, in the heart of the mode appeared scores of costumes which enabled women to be well dressed inexpensively.

Simpler day frocks on which a change of accessories could work magic, less ostentatious use of furs, and the dinner suit, ready for all sorts of after 5 o'clock engagements were among "count the cost" trends.

Another trend was the linking of fashions to current news instead of historical periods. Once the Regency and Renaissance modes were launched designers turned to the 1935 map.

A gold braided, double breasted military mode stepped in. The Italian Renaissance faded into fascist fashions and China, Russia, Spain and Greece influenced the mode.

Drapery appeared on the bodies of day frocks and in huge scarfs and swathed hiplines of evening gowns, making 1935 "Drapery Year."

The silhouette changed. Curves came back. Busts, slender waists and molded hips appeared. Skirts were shortened for both day and evening—slightly widened in the spring, very slim this winter. More trousered skirts were seen than in any previous year.

Shoulders were broadened, though not squared, and sleeves were struck by inflation. Necklines climbed high by day and were cut to nude, darting decolletes by night.

New rough-surfaced and shiny fabrics appeared. Black took the center of the color stage and held it. Pleats came in. Trains went out. Elaborate belts increased in importance. Huge fur and colored suede gloves were shown. Scores of tricky accessories from jeweled clips to metal padlocks appeared on frocks.

Heads and feet saw changes too. This was the year of "crazy" hats with feathers much in the mode. Veils grew increasingly important. "Something on the head" became almost an edict for evening.

The spirit of 1935 fashions is reflected in this black crepe frock by Lelong. It is one of the practical "after-5-o'clock" models which can do duty for cocktails, dinner or the theater and is cut on simple lines. Horizontal body drapery molds it to reveal the figure's curves and the slender skirt is finished with a softly draped back. It has the high neckline and inflated sleeves of 1935. Finally it is accented by a jeweled silver ornament. Louise Bourbon designs the eccentric hat of black felt topped with two swirls of black paradise feathers.

Miss Genevra Washburn will arrive home from New York City early next week to spend the Yuletide with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Washburn. Other members of the family arriving for the holidays will be Mr. and Mrs. Edmundson Parkes and children of Houston and Mr. and Mrs. William Gladney and children of Bastrop.

Sopie Odom is a patient in the Riverside sanitarium and will be glad to have his friends call.

Little Theater Notes

What a joy it would be if every household could boast as efficient a staff of helpers as those who comprise Mr. Latimer's staff in "The Dover Road!"

The maids and footmen do not have very much to say, as is certainly proper in a well-ordered establishment, but do they have plenty to do! We'll say so! And so will you, when you see Nita Fields, Eileen MacKinnon, H. C. Wroten, and Ulmer McDonald in our play Tuesday night at the auditorium of Northeast Center of Louisiana State university. Quiet, efficient, and quick are these four, and having made their mark by "doing," there'll come a time, and that very soon, when star parts will be found for them.

The successful production of a play depends almost as much on those who help with the properties, scenery, costumes, etc., as it does on those actually taking part. Jackson Purdy, Sazanne Hirsch, Charles Stubbs, Maude Stubbs, Frances McHenry, Ulmer McDonald, Louis Guerriero and Suzonne Kellogg have worked like Trojans in helping make the setting a success.

Cynthia Lee Love has the difficult role of prompter and general assistant, and excells in it.

To Mr. and Mrs. Neville, Miss Kate Key, Henry Gibbs, and Mr. Pittman, of Central Grammar school, to Dean Colvert and the boys of Northeast Center of Louisiana State university, to Delly Swayze, the News-Star—World, radio station KMLB, and the many friends who have loaned us furnishings, and helped in other ways with our production, we extend our heart-felt thanks.

And now to the citizenship of the Twin Cities, we make an appeal for encouragement by a large attendance at our play. We have worked very hard. Please do not disappoint us!

Entertains Club

All the symbols and beautiful colors of the Yuletide were employed by Miss Maible Hood when she entertained members of her Tuesday Night Bridge club with a typical Christmas party. Crimson poinsettias adorned the reception suite, where the card tables were covered with crimson. The score cards were miniature Santa Clauses.

Handsome toilette articles wrapped in novelty crimson paper were presented to Mrs. Herbert Rinehart and Mrs. W. C. Feazel for high scores.

The serving of a luscious supper course concluded the many courtesies extended by the hostess to Mmes. Bluett Poimboeuff, W. C. Feazel, Otto Miller, Roy Lee, Edward Harper, Jr., Herbert Rinehart, Sam Humphries and Marie Frazier, and Miss Katherine Averette.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. King had as their guest for the past week-end Mr. King's mother, Mrs. J. F. King and Miss Vera White of Sykes.

Charles McGuire, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman McGuire, has been critically ill for the past week.

'CHRISTMAS SEAL'

Miss Fay Bennett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Bennett, Bastrop, representing the girl on the Christmas seals this year. Miss Bennett appeared before civic clubs and other organizations of Bastrop in the interest of of the Christmas seal campaign of the Morehouse parish Tuberculosis and public health association.

Mrs. Amos Hood, who has been a patient at St. Francis sanitarium for the past two weeks, has recovered sufficiently to be removed to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hawkins, 200 Clayton street, West Monroe.

Program Presented

Members of the Lucie Love Music club were charmingly entertained Friday afternoon in the home of Betty Gene Greenwell on Stubbs avenue, with Mignon Griffing co-hostess.

A short program of Christmas music was presented as follows:

"Silent Night," Joan McDuffie.

"O Holy Night," Jean Tabb.

"The Bells," Jean McCormick.

Other piano numbers presented were:

Duet, "A Little Journey," Ann Buckley, Mrs. Tabb.

"Floating Along," "Waltz of the Raindrops," Ramona Daugherty.

Duet, "To and Fro," Mary Evelyn Booras, Mrs. Tabb.

Mrs. Greenwell read a very interesting paper on the origin of musical instruments.

Dinner Party Given

A beautifully planned dinner party at the Monroe hotel brought together members of the W. B. A. No. 26, with several national officers, Mrs. Pearl Croy, vice-president and director, of Birmingham, Ala., Mrs. Jennie Little, supreme captain, of Port Huron, Mich., and Mrs. Lucile Sharpe, managing deputy, of Birmingham, the guests of honor.

During the serving of the delicious five-course dinner, several clever entertainers were introduced. Outstanding was the brilliant song and dance number contributed by Miss Sue Cobb, dance pupil of Clarice Roan.

Members attending the banquet were Mrs. A. J. New, Mrs. Meddie Franklin, Mrs. Clara Cash, Mrs. Lettie Cash, Miss Clarice Roan, Mrs. Julia Clawson, Mrs. Gladys Poulon, Miss Sue Cobb, Mrs. Roberts, Mrs. Estelle Brantley, Mrs. Thelma Jones and Mrs. Asa Belle Cash.

TECH GRIDSTERS TROUNCE TAMPA SPARTANS, 37 TO 7

FLORIDA ELEVEN GIVEN ITS WORST DEFEAT OF YEAR

Bulldog Machine Starts Clicking Brilliantly Late In First Quarter

By George V. Lofton
(Sports Editor Of The World)

PLANT FIELD, Tampa, Fla., Dec. 14.—(Special)—Coming with a rush after a slow start, Louisiana Tech's Bulldogs added a fitting finale to their most successful season today by trouncing the Tampa university Spartans 32 to 7. It was the worst defeat of the season for the strong Florida eleven, which was at its peak today.

The Techmen knocked at the door three times in the first quarter before they started clicking, but from then on out it was just a question of what the score would be. They outclassed the Spartans in every department of play. Coach Eddie McLane used every player he had with him and the smartly coached Technicians delivered in sensational style.

The Bulldog attack reached its peak in the third quarter when W. H. Hinkie of Dubach scored two touchdowns in five plays after he was sent in as a substitute back.

Tech scored its first touchdown just before the first quarter ended. After penetrating deep into Tampa territory three times, they took the ball on Tampa's 48-yard line. A pass from Hanna to Hasha gained 28 yards, and on an end-around play, Phillips made 17 yards, advancing to the Tampa three-yard line. Herbert Massey of Tallulah carried it to the six-inch line and then Don Darling took it over. Hewitt was rushed in to kick but his attempt to add the extra point was wide.

Midway in the second quarter Tech scored again. Darling recovered a Tampa fumble on Tampa's 26. Phillips was able to gain but one yard on an end-around, and then Carroll was smothered for a six-yard loss. However, on the next play Carroll passed beautifully to Hasha for a touchdown. This time the Bulldogs added the point with a pass from Darling to Phillips.

Early in the third period, Hanna, whose kicking was one of the outstanding features of the game, kicked out of bounds on Tampa's one-yard line. The Spartans booted right back and Hanna took the kick on the 40, returning to the 34. A five-yard penalty for offsides gave Tech five more yards, and then Hanna slipped through right tackle for 15 yards to the Tampa 14. Hinkie was sent in for Cotten and after failing to gain on the first play, He scooted around left end of 14 yards and a touchdown on the next attempt. Hewitt kicked the extra point.

Taking the kick after the touchdown, Tech worked the ball to Tampa's 40, and then a pass from Hanna to Beckett was good for 30 yards, when it was ruled completed because of interference. Hinkie lost six yards and then Tech was penalized 15 yards for clipping, but on the next play Hanna faded back and passed to Hinkie, who took it in on the 20, and scampered through to another touchdown. Hewitt's kick for extra point was wide.

Tech's final score came early in the fourth period with two runs by Carroll and Massey featuring the drive. Taking the ball on their 33, Carroll slipped through tackle for 16 yards and then Massey picked up 20 through a similar hole. Massey added 12 more and then Carroll gained 12. A pass from Carroll to Hasha was incomplete, but on the next play, Hewitt tossed to Hasha, who made a spectacular catch in the end zone for the touchdown. Brooks' kick for extra point was blocked.

Tampa's only score came in the fourth period as a result of a penalty for unnecessary roughness. With the ball on Tech's four-yard line, the Bulldogs repulsed three Spartan thrusts, shoving Tampa back seven

DIXIE OFFICIALS POSTPONE ACTION

Questions Of Subsidizing And Increasing League Are Deferred

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Postponing action on both of the major controversial questions—proposals to outlaw financial inducements to athletes, and to increase the size of the league—the Southern conference today lifted its ban on radio broadcasting, cleaned up a few minor odds and ends and then called it a day.

By its action the conference indicated, however, that it would pry the lid off the dynamite can at a meeting here February 7 and 8 when both the subsidization questions and proposals to take new schools into the league will come up for final consideration.

Chairman Charles P. Nash of the conference committee on colleges emphasized that at the February meeting some final word should be given to the petitioning colleges which have been hanging around for years, hoping for an approving nod.

From a source close to the committee, it was learned that this group was prepared to recommend for membership William and Mary college and the University of Richmond in Virginia, Wake Forest and Davidson in North Carolina and Furman and The Citadel in South Carolina.

This same source said no mention was made of two other petitioners, Centre in Kentucky and Presbyterian in South Carolina. These colleges made their bids after the other six had placed their petitions before the organization.

By a constitution amendment a year ago, the conference provided that the membership might be increased from ten to sixteen and barring another constitution change no more than a half-dozen members could be taken into the group in February.

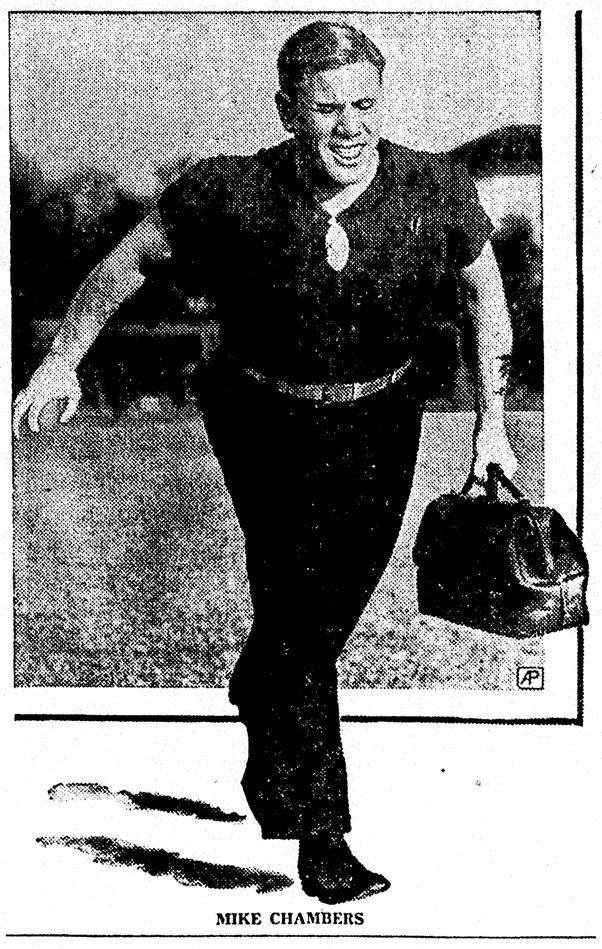
FIRST AID RUSH



MIKE CHAMBERS

Hefty Handler Of Tigers Has Team Ready For Bowl

Trainer Brings L. S. U. Grid Squad Through Season Uninjured

BATON ROUGE, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Time out. A Louisiana State grid player is hurt and prostrate on the field.

A broad-shouldered, white-jerseyed figure dashes out on the field.

He picks up the injured player, a burly lineman, throws him across his shoulders and runs with him back to the sidelines about as fast as he dashed out.

"What-a-man!" usually hums through the stands.

He Keeps 'Em Fit

It's Mike Chambers, the reddish-haired, pleasant athletic trainer who brought Louisiana State university, winner of the Southeastern conference championship, through a great football season without a player being lost through serious injury. They are ready, too, for the Sugar Bowl clash with Texas Christian at New Orleans on New Year's day.

It has been a season of one hard, bruising game after another; no chance for players to rest up in "breathers," and with three successive weeks on the road making it harder.

Taking the job left by Frank Wandle, who went to Yale, Chambers has won high praise in his first year as trainer at L. S. U. A native of New Orleans, he previously coached at Illinois, Ohio State, Iowa State and Georgia Tech and helped with Olympic athletes.

When the football season got under way, the burning question at Louisiana State was whether Abe Mickal, the great triple-threater, would regain physical condition after successive ailments.

'Irons Out' Injuries

Chambers brought Abe around so well that the latter played his finest. At the same time he kept such men as Rukas, Stewart, Barrett, Reed, Morton and Coffee playing from week to week by ironing out injuries.

Mike's habit of slinging an injured player over his shoulder and trotting off the field with him always gets a hand.

He doesn't do it with any "rabbit backs"—the Bayou Tigers are a hefty lot, and he picks up anyone who happens to be hurt.

Once he shouldered Roy Knight, 6-foot, 6-inch, 225-pound center, and cantered to the sidelines with him.

And it's a dead cinch that Mike will have the Tigers in perfect condition when they play in New Orleans' Sugar Bowl.

AVOID QUESTION OF SUBSIDIZING AT S'WEST MEET

Conference President Says There Is No Discussion Of 'Loosening Up'

By Bill Parker
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

DALLAS, Texas, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The Southwest conference faculty representatives held their annual meeting here today and avoided the question of legalizing athletic scholarships and financial aid to athletes.

President E. W. McDiarmid of Fort Worth, who presided, said there absolutely was no discussion of such a matter as "loosening up" conference rules to make things easier for athletes, and that the Southwest conference would continue to abide by its present constitution and by-laws. It had been rumored that the Southwest would take action similar to that of the Southeastern conference and recognize athletic value, but McDiarmid said the idea was never entertained.

The adoption of a rule limiting Southwest conference football teams to 10 games a season was one of the highlights of the meeting. The rule has no effect on present contracts, McDiarmid explained that exceptions could be made on post season games such as the Rose and Sugar Bowl affairs.

It was announced that every conference member except Arkansas would participate in next year's baseball championship race, and that each team would be required to play 15 conference games, two at home and one abroad or vice versa. Baseball practice cannot start before March 1 of each championship year. Southern Methodist and Rice are coming back into the baseball race after an absence of several years.

DOWN BULLDOGS OF BATON ROUGE BY SCORE 20-14

12,000 Fans See Game; Victors To Play Byrd For State Crown

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Jesuit High school of New Orleans defeated the Baton Rouge Bulldogs 20 to 14 before a crowd of 12,000 fans here today for the south Louisiana championship.

The victor will meet Byrd High school of Shreveport for the state championship. The game will be played next Saturday at a site yet to be determined.

Co-Captain L. G. Friedrichs, attempting to make an end run, was about to be smothered and passed for the final and winning score.

Score by periods.

Jesuit	0	14	6	0	—20
Baton Rouge	0	7	0	7	—14

Jesuit, scoring touchdowns—Friedrichs, Derbes (2) passes from Friedrichs. Point after touchdowns, St. John Smith (placement), Hooper (pass from Friedrichs).

Baton Rouge, scoring touchdown—Wax (pass from Baker), Baker.

Point after touchdowns, Harrison 2 (placements).

First downs—Jesuits 11, Baton Rouge 8.

Penalties—Jesuit 15, Baton Rouge 0.

Passing put the Jesuits into position for their first score early in the second period after they got the ball on the Baton Rouge 47. The line failed to yield and the Jays took to the air, Friedrichs snagging a 17-yard pass from co-Captain George Antonini, on the Baton Rouge 21.

Freidrichs dropped a lateral to Antonini and George ploughed to the Baton Rouge 7. After two thrusts at the line, the ball was given to Friedrichs who went over for the score.

Baton Rouge came right back with a bang and taking the ball on their own 40 carried it over in four plays to tie the score. Wax carried the ball over on a pass from Baker.

Friedrichs passed to Derbes for the next score and flicked another toss to Hooper for the 14th point.

Early in the third period, the Jays got the ball after a blocked punt on the Baton Rouge 19. Friedrichs started to make an end run and finding himself about to be smothered passed to Derbes who went over for the score.

Baton Rouge turned the tables on the Jays in the fourth, and after blocking a punt on the Jay 35 yard line, the Bulldogs bucked through on a series of line plays to a touchdown.

Lineup:

Jesuit	Pos.	Baton Rouge
Hooper	LE.	Harrison
Kirn	LT.	Lambert
Taylor	LG.	Smith
Elder	C.	Monget (c)

Antonini (c-c)	LH.	Wax
Bordes	RH.	Harris
Smith	FB.	Justice

Officials—Pete Leonard (Marion institute), referee; Dutch Luchsinger (Tulane), umpire; Jess Hair (Louisiana Normal), headlinesman; Mike Donahus (Auburn), field judge.

FERRIDAY GRID TEAM PLAYS BENEFIT GAME

FERRIDAY, La., Dec. 14.—(Special)—A large attendance is expected in Natchez Sunday afternoon to witness the second of two football contests between the Ferriday Wild Cats and the Natchez Tigers for the benefit of the "F" club of Ferriday High school and the Natchez Democrat's Poor Children's Christmas tree fund.

Ferriday won the first game at Ferriday last Sunday, 12 to 7, in a thrilling encounter. Natchez is determined to even the score and both squads have been working out since Monday for the game.

TED TURNER WINS MEDALIST HONORS IN MIAMI MEET

New Jersey Golfer Blazes Down Course To Post Three Under Par

By J. P. McKnight
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

CORAL GABLES, Fla., Dec. 14.—A slender, quiet golfer, Ted Turner, of Pine Valley, N. J., came blazing unheralded through the dusk today to post 68, three under par, for the first round of the $10,000 Miami Biltmore Open and seize medalist honors.

Racking up four birdies in his brilliant round, which came within one stroke of equalling the course record Willie MacFarlane set in 1933, Turner barely nosed out Horton Smith, Oak Park, Ill., and Frank Moore, young Chicago professional, who had 69's.

One stroke back of Moore at subpar 70's were four other comparative newcomers to the top flight—Bruce Coltart, 25, Woodcrest, N. J.; Frank Walsh, veteran Chicago professional, who won the Illinois championship this year; Clarence Clark, Bloomfield, N. J., and Byron Nelson, Ridgewood, N. J.

A number handed in cards matching par as the afternoon drew to its close in increasingly wintry weather, with one-fourth the field still on the course.

They included: Bob McDonald, Chicago; Paul Runyan, White Plains, N. Y.; Al Nelson, Hopewell, N. J.; Ralph Kingsrud, Fargo, N. D.; and Bert Montressor, Decatur, Ill.

Johnny Revolta, P. G. A. champion and top heavy favorite to add to his winnings in the south Florida round of winter tournaments, blazed through the first nine in 33, two under par, only to slump coming home and take 39.

At 72 he joined such noted golfers as Henry Picard, Hershey, Pa., Al Watrous, Detroit, Mich., and Zell Eaton, Oklahoma City, former crack amateur, who joined the pro ranks last week. Eaton slipped after starting with three straight birdies.

ON THE SIDELINES

by Edward J. Neil

Another champion of the football player who serves an alma mater not widely known beyond her own outskirts offers a scheme for recognition of the unsung heroes of the gridiron.

The recognition-to-the-deserving plan, as offered by Lewis C. Frank, Jr., of the American University News Service in Washington, D. C., seems to have a lot of merit—if it can be put into practice.

He proposes that, since many individuals arise and shine in the ranks of the so-called small-timers, a "little all-America" squad be selected and pitted against one of the leading professional teams each fall.

Calls On College Editors

Frank, explaining a letter to 150 college newspaper editors in which he unfolds the plan, says:

"Each year the smaller colleges are finding it more and more difficult to obtain recognition at all in the field of athletics.

"The football fan, wanting, of course, to see the best football machines, pays his dollars to watch the representatives of the larger universities in action. The small colleges, not interested in commercializing athletics or lacking the initial capital to do so, naturally find themselves neglected. However, while these smaller schools lack the all-around good teams that the larger universities own, they do possess some of the best individual talent in the country.

"Numerous are the boys who have spurned lucrative offers from these larger schools in order to attend universities where their education will be the prime interest, yet they do deserve some recognition for their football prowess. Then, too, you have probably noticed that the professional teams use the small institutions as constant sources of excellent material.

"Now, the plan I proposed to these small college newspaper editors was for the selection of an all-America small college football squad, which squad would meet one of the leading professional elevens in an annual game late each autumn. To the professionals it would mean an excellent opportunity to scout the cream of the small college crop, and to the small schools and their individual players it would afford deserved recognition and publicity."

Feeling that the honorable mention roster that accompanies the big-time all-America might not do full justice to the boys along the by-ways of the football world, Sports Editor Alan Gould of The Associated Press set the wheels in motion last year for the selection of a "Little All-America."

Some of the best football players at large do their gridiron roving, passing and punting, no doubt, in the remote pastures, with mere handfuls of spectators to watch them. But usually they DO NOT MEET the big-time teams, except in "breathers." A great back behind a leaky line isn't likely to win himself much acclaim when he does get the opportunity against the big-timers. Nevertheless, he may have been a great back at a large school.

This leads to the inevitable impasse (ahem) and so bring on your Little All-America.

EAGER T. C. U. FROGS BEGIN WORK MONDAY

FORT WORTH, Texas, Dec. 14.—(AP)—They aren't due to resume training until Wednesday but those love-to-play football Frogs of T. C. U., will of their own accord, start practice Monday afternoon for their Sugar Bowl game with L. S. U. in New Orleans New Year's day.

Turned loose after the game with Santa Clara in San Francisco Dec. 7, the Christians enjoyed less than a full week of holiday before they became anxious to start preparing for their final test.

Jimmy Lawrence, co-captain and ace halfback, is the Frog who started "talking it up" to get an early start, and the others quickly agreed.

PROCITA WINS CUE TILT WITH RUDOLPH

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Joe Procita of Gloversville, N. Y., scored the biggest upset of the world's pocket billiards tournament tonight by defeating Erwin Rudolph of Cleveland 125 to 89 in 21 innings. It was the first defeat in four matches for Rudolph, winner of the 1934 tournament and a strong favorite in the current event.

'UNFAIR RULING' ON ATHLETES IS NOW CORRECTED

Coaches Express Opinions On Change In Southeastern By-Laws

By Kenneth Gregory
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

ATLANTA, Dec. 14.—Action of the Southeastern conference in opening its doors to athletes for financial assistance was generally interpreted today by football coaches as removing discrimination and guarding against hypocrisy.

"The move of the conference," said Coach William A. Alexander of Georgia Tech, dean of Southeastern football pilots, "in legalizing scholarships and jobs to athletes does not mean that the conference is going into the market for football players."

The adoption of an amendment to the Southeastern's by-laws that placed athletic ability on a high plane in determining student values, was generally interpreted by the coaches as correcting a "very unfair ruling that had been in force in the conference."

Prior to the Southeastern's action athletes were forced to sign a paper acknowledging they had not received any assistance whatsoever.

"In former years," said Coach Alexander, "an athlete was ineligible for scholarships or jobs that were open to other students.

"It is hoped that the new rule will result in taking care of worthy students who happen to be athletes rather than throw them on the alumni or the town as in past years."

There was mention by a source close to the conference that some institutions might take advantage of the ruling that brings scholarships and financial assistance to athletes "into the open" for the first time since the Southeastern was organized in 1932.

"Suppose," said this authoritative source who would not permit use of his name, "that a certain school brings in athletes and offers them the advantages of this ruling. Then, suppose an alumni group of some other school recognizes the athletic ability of these athletes and offers inducements in addition to those legalized by the conference's action.

"What do you suppose would happen then?

"I am of the opinion that an athlete who received considerations above the conference ruling—which included an amount not to exceed 'legitimate expenses' of attending the university as represented by tuition, fees, books, board and lodging—would naturally feel inclined to accept a more remunerative offer.

"I doubt, however, that the Southeastern schools will permit such an encroachment upon their ideals.

Dr. Wilbur C. Smith, athletic director of Tulane university, said the practice of granting financial assistance to athletes—although barred by a conference ruling—had been in practice for years.

"The conference's action," he said, "simply eliminates hypocrisy. It was the only honest action that could be taken, and to go beyond the Southeastern's stand would be accepting proselyting in its rarest form."

Coach Chester A. Wynne, athletic director at the University of Kentucky, said the "men who handle athletics and the head coaches are the best sportsmen of the world.

"I have no fear of them going beyond the bounds of the rules adopted by the conference. They are genuine gentlemen. There isn't a coach who will violate anything conducive to higher education, both scholarly and athletically."

Herman J. Stegeman, athletic director of the University of Georgia, commented on the conference's action as follows:

"The enactment of legislation governing conditions under which athletes may receive reductions in college expenses, exactly as leaders in other student activities now receive, is a fine move.

"I think every honest man, who is not afraid to face the facts, will approve our rule."

Coach Ed L. Walker, athletic director of the University of Mississippi, heralded the move as a "progressive step."

"It is a good move," he said, "and I heartily approve of it."

Coach Jack Meagher of Alabama Polytechnic institute was elected president of the Conference Coaches association. Meagher succeeds Coach Ted Cox of Tulane.

There was no other business transacted at the day's session.

PRO TEAM DEFEATS COLLEGE ALL-STARS

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates, National League Professional Football team, slithered through a morass of mud today to a 14-0 victory over a college all-star team.

The Pirates' first score came after Zaneiski, Duquesne university halfback, caught Fullback Zanninelli's kick on his own 24-yard line and fumbled on the next play.

Bray, Pirate halfback broke through the collegians' line, picked up the ball and scampered across. The Pirates' second touchdown was tallied soon after the start of the second half. The professionals blocked Maglero's punt, and Sortet scooped up the ball. He crossed the line standing up.

New York U. Faces Basketball Schedule Of National Scope

By John J. Romano

New York university enjoys an enviable reputation as the haven of basketball stars in the East. Coach Howard G. Cann is confronted with the unpleasant task if disappointing fully three score boys who aspire to wear the Violet of N. Y. U. each fall.

This year was no exception. Prior to their recent game against the alumni, Coach Cann had no fewer than nineteen players on the squad. Included in these is a trio of football players, Captain Nat Machlowitz and tackles Irwin Klein and Perry Geffen. N. Y. U. does not go in for rough basketball. But with this trio on hand they figure well able to take good care of themselves should some scrimmaging be in order.

Six lettermen from last season will bear the brunt of a nineteen game schedule. Eight games will be played in the N. Y. U. gymnasium, at Madison Square Garden and two on foreign courts. Capt. William Rubenstein, Leonard Maidman, Milton Schulman, Irving Terjesen, Jack Bromberg, Jack Brown, Arthur Duffy, Louis Strauss, Alex Weinstein, Irving Rothman and the three footballers will furnish Bernie Carnevale, Jerome Tarlow, Lou Tripsianis and Irwin Witty from last year's unbeaten freshmen team little if any chance to shine. Coach Cann believes in having plenty of reserves on hand. Knowing how badly a young man feels to sit on the side-lines throughout a full game he wishes it were possible to give them all a fling.

Cann's Record

With a record of turning out teams good enough to register 128 victories against 57 defeats in 11 years for his Alma Mater, Mr. Cann has to exercise restraint in permitting sympathy to overrule better judgment. The former N. Y. U. grid and basketball star likes to look back on the undefeated quintet of 1933 and which suffered but a lone defeat in a stiff 20-game schedule last season. To prove N. Y. U. had no easy time of it last year Coach Cann points out that his team scored a total of 740 points against the opponents' 489. Willie Rubenstein was elected captain by tossing the ball so accurately that he was high scorer of the team with 156 points.

Before the advent of Ned Irish who proceeded to prove that collegiate basketball could pack Madison Square Garden to capacity, N. Y. U. boasted as good a team as there was around the country. The emphasis on college basketball is not the real reason N. Y. U. has attracted the best local high school basketeers to its standard. If such a reason was put forth it would also apply to St. John's College, across the river in Brooklyn, which was unbeatable for several years and now has a full team of graduates playing professional basketball under the name of the Brooklyn Jewels. With few exceptions the Jewels played as the same unit it was when it was winning games regularly for Buck Freeman.

Schedule Covers Country

Ned Irish made Gotham fans basketball-conscious last year. In other years when the famous Celtics tried to put the game over in a big way it was necessary to hold a dance in conjunction with the game. Even this failed. A college gymnasium used to be plenty large enough to seat the attending spectators. But a glance over the team on N. Y. U's. schedule will readily convince you that basketball is a major sport. Otherwise the attendance would hardly pay the expenses of such teams as Notre Dame, California, Kentucky, Purdue and North Carolina. In addition to these teams the Violet will be opposed on two different occasions by Fordham, N. Y. U.'s arch rival, Temple, St. Francis, Dartmouth, Brooklyn College, College of the City of New York, Rutgers, Temple, Princeton, Columbia, St. John's, Georgetown and Manhattan. With the exception of a few weak local teams it reads like the football schedule of a major college.

Howard Cann looks forward to a successful season. Needless to say, he expects to win all games of the most imposing schedule mapped out in years. He has a wealth of material to work with. Should the team come a cropper against a local team which has been looking askance at some of the nice "gates" attracted to the games with a distinct Violet tinge, Cann will have to shoulder the blame for approving such a hard campaign.

Christmas Carols To Be Sung At Grace Church December 18

Program Is Sponsored By Student Musicians

Short Historical Explanation Of Songs To Be Prelude; Lowery Jefferson Organist; Mrs. Moffett Director

"Silent night, holy night, all is calm, all is bright."

Soon these beautiful reassuring words of our beloved Christmas carol will come ringing over the frosty air from the throats of young singers.

In Monroe the Christmas carols will be initiated by the Student Musicians' club on the night of the eighteenth at Grace church, where all the old songs of the nativity will feature the evening's program.

It is always well to have a short explanation on the nature and history of the carols as a prelude to the program, so Chester DeCuir will have something of interest to tell at this time. Christmas memories of our childhood will come trooping back when Lowery Jefferson and Billy Reagan render their organ and piano medley of Yuletide songs.

From afar off will come the words of Wesley's "Hark! the Herald Angels Sing, Glory to the New-born King!" The voices will come nearer and nearer and grow in volume and clearness until the doors are opened and the surpliced singers wend their way to the choir loft. "Silent Night" will be used for the recessional.

It is interesting to know that the first carol was sung eight centuries ago in the little Italian village of Grecia. It was Christmas when St. Francis of Assisi, in trying to find a way to make the Christmas message clear to the people, made the first creche or crib by having the manger with an ox and an ass and all the usual equipment of an Italian stable of that time, set up in the church, in order to represent the first Christmas, when the angels sang over the fields of Bethlehem, the night that Christ was born, "Glory be to God on high, and on earth peace, good will toward men." It is written that the brethren within the church and the crowds of the faithful who came and went with lighted torches poured out their hearts in praises to God. The love of the carol service of today does not spring from a love of the antique nor from the love of folk art, but from a sense of profound devoutness, such as these folk of a past age experienced.

Members of the Student Musicians' club extend a cordial invitation to the public to attend their program of Christmas carols, to be presented as follows:

Program Annotations—Chester DeCuir.

Prelude—Christmas Eve Memories, arranged for organ and piano, (Wilson), Lowry Jefferson and Billy Reagan.

Basses—Mr. Wayne Benson, Mr. H. J. Hundley, Mr. Jack May, Mr. Frank Mullen, Mr. Wayne Wamsley, Mr. Sam Wimbish, Mr. John Winkler.

The organist will be Lowery Jefferson. Mrs. George A. Moffett will direct the singers.

Birthdays Celebrated

Rosemary, nine years old, and Mae, seven, lovely little daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cascio, celebrate their birthday anniversaries together each year and invite their young friends to their home on Erin avenue to share the pleasures with them.

Considerable artistry featured the decorations of crimson and green, reminiscent of the Yuletide. Tall vases overflowing with red carnations and rose colored chrysanthemums were placed in the background of the reception suite, where the children romped and played during the entire afternoon. The prize winners were Ann Brown, Barbara Trigg and Alan Sugar. The favors presented to each guest were bags of candy wrapped in cellophane and decorated with miniature Santa Clauses.

The highlight of the afternoon's festivities was the cutting of the two beautifully embossed birthday cakes placed at either end of the lace covered refreshment table, centered with a mound of crimson carnations encircled with rep tapers in poinsettia candlesticks. Hot chocolate and fancy cakes gayly decorated in the Christmas colors were served by Mrs. Cascio, assisted by the celebrants' grandmother, Mrs. A. Pendola, and Miss Elise Collier.

Enjoying the gayety of the evening were: Vera Jo Cannon, Sara Elizabeth Morgan, Yvonne Cuhn, Alan Sugar, Barbara Ann Trigg, Florence Abrams, Ann Brown, Gwen Walker, Constance Spatafora, L. C. Harkness, Bobby Jean West, Mary Gold Richerson, Donald Wadly, Tom Flournoy, Joy Elaine Mickal, Jean Ansell, Ida Sophie Davidson, Bessie Ann Silverstein, Mary Alice Mickal, Jerry Sugar, Betty Jane Thompson, Adrienne Gaston, Angie Marie Rizzo, Virginia Newman, John Spatafora, Jr., Mary Louise Varino, Aulcy Burgess, Peggy Morrison, Sara and Frances Ritter, Mary Agnes and Jo Ann Rizzo, Wadell Elias, Christine Galloway and Phylis Arseneau.

Friends of Mrs. Jessie Sadler will be glad to know that her condition is improving nicely. Regret is being manifested, however, over her decision to spend the holidays in Memphis, where she is taking a rest cure in the home of her daughter, Mrs. H. H. Honnoll.

PITTSBURGH DEFEATS SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA, 12 TO 7

RANDOUR LEADS INVADERS' FAST RUNNING ATTACK

Trojans Escape Shutout By Scoring In Last Minute Of Play

By Brian Bell
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 14.—Pittsburgh had Hub Randour on its side today and his presence meant the football game won by the Panthers from the University of Southern California, 12 to 7.

The fleet back scored his first touchdown of the season after he had gained more than 750 yards this fall without crossing the goal line. The halfback was a constant threat.

Southern California gave the crowd of approximately 35,000 its first chance to yell for the House of Troy when the game had less than a minute to go by completing a pass from the Pitt 39-yard line, Dave Davis to Bill Gainsford, who caught the ball on the ten-yard line and ran on to score.

The Trojans escaped a shut-out in the fifty-ninth second of the eleventh hour when it seemed they never would score. The Panthers' great defensive play had stopped the Trojans a minute before when they took the ball on the one-yard line, and in the second period the home guards had seen the door shut in its face on the five-yard line.

Pitt, too, had its chances but could capitalize on only two. Pittsburgh scored the first touchdown of the game in the middle of the first period when Frank Souchak intercepted a pass in midfield. He found himself surrounded evenly by a mass of Trojans and tossed the ball to Paul Shaw who struggled a few more yards to Southern California's nine-yard line. Three plunges left the ball only a yard from the goal and Frank Patrick plunged over on the fourth try.

The second score for the visitors came after a march of 81 yards. With two dashes of 25 yards by Randour helping their cause, the Panthers moved steadily to within seven yards of Southern California's goal. Randour then helped himself to his only touchdown of the year. Homer Beatty blocked the try for the extra point.

Pitts' sensational goal line stand came just before the Trojans registered their lone marker. Beatty intercepted a pass on Pitts' 33-yard line and a pass from Glenn Thompson to Alvin Kidder placed the ball on the 17. Pitt was penalized five yards for taking too much time out and a pass from Thompson to Cliff Propst placed the ball on the ten-yard line.

Thompson picked up two yards and when Pitt was offside, the ball was placed one yard from the goal. Propst failed to gain. Thompson, too, failed but Pitt was offside. Thompson lost a yard, and gained only one yard in two tries when two yards were needed, Pitt taking the ball.

Pitt kicked out to the 42-yard line and with the ball again in their possession the Trojans demonstrated they could score from 39 yards when they couldn't from the one.

Souchak, a brilliant end, shared the Pittsburgh spotlight with Randour, while Davis was Southern California's best back and Gil Kuhn stood out in the line.

The line-up and summary:

Pittsburgh.	Pos.	Sou. California.
Souchak	LE	Thurlow
Matisi	LT	Belko
Glassford	LG	Preienger
Kliskey	C	Kuhn
Dalle Tezze	RG	Brosseau

MAJOR NEYLAND TO COACH AGAIN

Army Engineer Will Return As Head Coach Of U. Of Tennessee

ATLANTA, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Major Robert Reese Neyland, 43-year-old Army engineer, will return as head coach of the University of Tennessee, it was learned today from unimpeachable sources.

Only minor negotiations with the war department stand between the successful Tennessee coach of the period of 1926 to 1934 and the placing of his signature to a five-year contract at a remuneration exceeding $10,000.

Definite announcement of Major Neyland's acceptance will come Monday or Tuesday, it was learned, and his plans will call for Colonel Paul Parker, director of athletics, serving as line coach and Bill Britton, present coach who succeeded Neyland, being offered the post of end coach.

Other assistant coaches, the source said, will be retained.

Major Neyland, whose teams won 71 games, lost 7 and tied five during his nine-year tenure, will be welcomed heartily by alumni who have been clamoring for his return since Tennessee went through only a fair season in 1934.

The Volunteers dropped five of their nine games this season and almost from the day that North Carolina swamped the team early in the season a howl went up for Neyland's return.

Major Neyland, it was understood, may not retire from an active post with the Army. However, negotiations are practically complete where by he will return to Tennessee.

At the close of the 1934 season Major Neyland was ordered to the Panama Canal Zone for military duty.

SKIRTING PERFECTION ON SKATES

Illy Holzmann, Austria's internationally famous skater, cuts a fancy figure without benefit of those curve-revealing short skirts to which feminine gliders incline. Fraulein Holzmann resembles a bird in flight as she skims over the ice in Vienna.

By HARRY GRAYSON

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—C. V. Whitney's announcement that Red Rain and Tatterdemalion will not be nominated for the Kentucky Derby again illustrates the chances against winter book players.

It was to preclude what would have been a tremendous play on Red Rain that Whitney instructed his trainer, Tom Healey, to throw the colts out of training at Lexington.

Winter book players annually see huge amounts go up in smoke when the better-liked ponies fail to come to hand.

Chance Sun, winter book favorite of last spring, was withdrawn several days prior to the running of the Derby.

More than a million was lost when C. V. Whitney's Top Flight had to be yanked a fortnight before the derby of 1932, and another $500,000 when Burning Blaze was cut down a week later. There was plenty aboard Jamestown when that splendid animal could not get to the post in 1931.

A lot of things can happen between the end of a 2-year-old's first season and the start of the next.

Red Rain came in for more comment than any other 2-year-old last season, mainly by virtue of his amazing triumph in the Hopeful, in which he came from absolutely last to win with something to spare. The son of Pennant captured the Flash and ran Coldstream to a dead heat in the Saratoga Special.

Had his record not been tarnished in several subsequent starts, you would have heard little or nothing of any other juvenile.

Red Rain showed lameness before being retired for the campaign, and Whitney decided that it was too early to train him for such a strenuous effort as the derby. It was deemed advisable to hold him in reserve for later fixtures.

Winning Futurity No Recommendation

Now that the first snow has fallen, the hot stove leaguers are once more in session and the next derby victor is being predicted by all and sundry.

"Hope springs eternal in the human breast" was never more true a saying than when applied to those perennial optimists who annually work out on derby possibilities.

The astonishing mortality of derby favorites is no deterrent to these dreamers, who advance as many reasons for their choices as faddists invent for their diets.

Tintagel, of course, led all 2-year-olds, both in money won, and in percentage of good efforts shown. He won six of nine starts, was second once, and earned $75,100. The Belmont Futurity put him on top in money winnings, just as it annually does for its winners.

But who ever heard of the Futurity winner bagging the derby the following May? They just don't, that's all. The chances are against the son of Sir Gallahad III—bred to be a route runner if his sire line counts for anything at all—being any more of a true derby favorite than was Chance Sun, Jamestown, Whichone, or Kerry Patch.

Grand Slam finished next to Tintagel in money earned. This one had his season's record ruined by lameness, but he proved as much of a mud running fool as was Chance Sun. Also, he's bred not unlike Chance Sun, should run any kind of distance, and if he runs soundly won't mind a fast track.

Hollyrood is another that is receiving plenty of attention. He grabbed the Pimlico Futurity in brilliant style. This one is not bred to stay. If he can carry his speed over a distance, he will be the outstanding member of his tribe.

Earl Sande gave out the belief that Jean Bart was the 2-year-old with the best 3-year-old prospects. Perhaps he was thinking of Tintagel's Futurity, a race in which many thought Jean Bart the best, even though he finished third.

Jean Bart won the Spaulding Lowe Jenkins and a couple of other races. He gave evidence of class. That is about all you can expect of a son of Man o' War as a 2-year-old, so he has plenty of backers who see in him a second War Glory.

Snark has his supporters. So have Ned Reigh, Brevity, Coldstream, Bien Joli, Crossbow II, Maerial and others.

Everybody is entitled to a vociferous opinion and nobody can prove him wrong until that first Saturday afternoon in May.

Several companies having buildings in Ottawa, Kan., recently took out earthquake insurance policies.

TOUGHEN TOES FIRST

Tender toes would find kicking a football without the protection of a shoe a bit painful, but the toes of Buster Piltz, of the University of Hawaii, are tough. Top shows Piltz' bare toes about to make contact for a place-kick with Tommy Kulukukul holding the pigskin; center the toes meet the ball; and below the ball is on its way. The Hawaiian team visited this country for engagements with the Universities of Denver and California at Los Angeles.

FIRST TOUCHDOWN MADE BY BRUINS ON 29-YARD PASS

46-Yard Drive Carries Ball Across Goal For Winning Margin

By Russell J. Newland
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 14.—University of California at Los Angeles carved the final chapter of its greatest football season into the turf of Kezar stadium today, with a 13 to 7 victory over a favored St. Mary's college eleven.

Unable to make a first down in the first half of the game, the Bruins nevertheless romped off the field at the half leading 6 to 0.

The second quarter touchdown of the team that finished in a triple tie for the Pacific coast conference title, came from a 26-yard pass, Charles Cheshire, all-coast halfback, riffling the ball to Schroeder, left end.

St. Mary's opened the third quarter with a touchdown, gained from a smashing 80 yard drive, and converted the extra tally to go into a one-point lead.

The tide turned again in favor of U. C. L. A. as the last period opened. With the ball on St. Mary's 46-yard marker, the Bruins drove down in two plays and an offside penalty to chalk up the points that clinched the game.

Cheshire got off his only good run of the day during the scoring splurge. He broke through the Gaels' right side for a 29-yard gain. It put the ball 17 yards from goal.

A five-yard penalty sent the oval to the 12-yard marker, from where Williams, sub fullback, raced over, after faking a pass. Williams had a clear field. He also placed the ball through the uprights for the extra point.

Lineups and summary:

U. C. L. A.	Pos.	St. Mary's

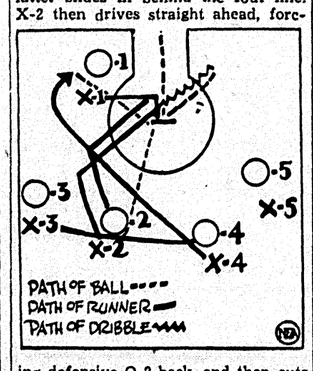
HOOP HITS OF LEADING COACHES

FORCED DEFENSE SWITCH PUTS OFFENSIVE MAN IN POSITION FOR GOOD SHOT

By Lewis Andreas
(Coach, Syracuse university)

In the above sketch of a favorite scoring play of mine, the team designated as "X" is the offensive squad, and has advanced the ball to the offensive half of the court.

X-2 throws the ball to X-1, as the latter slides in behind the foul line. X-2 then drives straight ahead, forcing defensive O-2 back, and then cuts sharply to the right, taking the ball from X-1, and forcing O-1 to switch to cover the man with the ball.



O-2 then switches to cover X-1, and usually switches too far. X-1 steps out to foul line and takes a return hook pass from X-2, who feints shot at basket. X-1 takes short set shot, or passes off to X-4, who has cut for the bucket behind X-3, after the latter has run across to block O-4.

Olla

The girls' home economics club of the Olla-Standard school met recently, with Miss Winnifred Boyd presiding. The entire club took part in the singing of Christmas carols. Miss Zelma gave a reading and Beth Fritz and Cleo Harris spoke on the work of the club. Plans were made for a Christmas program to be given December 27.

Miss Clara Jones has returned from Trout, where she was a guest of Mrs. Ternel Taylor for several days.

REVIEWING THE 1935 SPORTS PARADE

1. BASEBALL ADOPTS 'GAS-HOUSE' TACTICS

Baseball in 1935 saw the rise of Detroit to its first world championship. It brought bitter rivalry that spread from the original "Gas-House Gang" of St. Louis to other ball orchards and even into the post-season classic waged between the Cubs and the Tigers. It witnessed the return of several "old-timers" and many long-absent fans. Goose Goslin (right), an "aging veteran," struck the blow worth $50,000 in the world series. Hank Greenberg of the Tigers (left) and Gabby Hartnett, Cub catcher (center), were named the most valuable players in their respective leagues.

American League Banner Again Hoisted In Triumph After Whirlwind Campaign

Comebacks Of 'Washed Up' Veterans, Night Games, Feature Season

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a series of articles dealing with upsets, comebacks and the crowning of new champions which featured the nation's sports spectacle of the year now closing. The series will appear in the Morning World as they are prepared by sports writers of the Associated Press.)

By Paul Mickelson
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—In a whirlwind campaign featured by comebacks of "washed up" veterans, inauguration of night games, the collapse of the Ruthian experiment at Boston, the complete asphyxiation of the "Gas-House Gang" from St. Louis and the sensational 21-game winning streak of Chicago's Cubs, the American league banner once more was hoisted over the baseball world in 1935.

When Leon (Goose) Goslin ended one of the most bitterly fought—and argued—world series in years by hammering out his $50,000 hit in the sixth game to give Detroit its first world baseball championship, the American league completed a clean sweep of baseball honors. The triumph, coupled with the third successive victory in the annual all-star game at Cleveland, definitely removed the growing inferiority complex from the minds of the "junior leaguers" who hadn't much to cheer about since 1932.

Fans In Comeback, Too

Fans, who made the turnstiles sing some of their merriest tunes since the boom days, got both physical and verbal action for their money from the opening day of the exciting season right down to the instant when the "Goose laid the golden egg" for the Tigers and, so the Cubs said, for gruff Umpire George Moriarty, who drew a $200 fine along with Cubs Woody English, Billy Herman and Bill Jurges for "using vile, unprintable language" during the series.

National league fans saw an exciting race down to the final series of the season between the astonishing Cubs and the Cardinals, who almost succeeded again on the strong right arms of the Dean brothers, who captured 47 victories between them.

In the American league, the Yankees took the lead after a free-for-all start, only to succumb to the Detroit Tigers who became invincible after a feeble beginning. The surprising showing of the Chicago White Sox, who fought for the pennant two-thirds of the way and then fell back into the familiar regions of second division, the giant-killing tactics of the St. Louis Browns, and the collapse of Cleveland, which fired Walter Johnson as manager after a series of rebellions and troubles, featured the campaign.

Grove In Great Rally

Dotted all over the baseball landscape were veterans staging spectacular comebacks. Lefty Grove, ranked 63rd among 65 American league pitchers the previous year, led them all with a comeback that gave him the earned-run average title for the year at 2.70 and a record of 20 victories and 12 losses for the Red Sox.

The veteran Buddy Myer of Washington, never before a leading hitter, surprised by winning the American league batting championship by one point over Joe Vosmik of Cleveland with an official average of .349, the lowest mark to win the crown in 27 years.

Over in the National, Catcher "Gabby" Hartnett and Pitcher Charlie Root, "grandpappies of the Cubs," had two of their best years. Hartnett won the most-valuable-player award in the National league. Big Hank Greenberg of the Tigers—tied for home-run honors at 36 by Jimmy Foxx of the Athletics—was adjudged most valuable in the American league.

Arky Vaughan

Two youngsters in the game, however, added thrills, they are 23-year-old Arky Vaughan of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who captured the National league batting crown at .385 after flirting with the .400 mark all season, and young Bill Lee of the Cubs, leading hurler with 20 victories and 6 defeats.

Rookie Hurled "No-Hitter"

Vernon Kennedy, White Sox rookie, turned in the one perfect game of the season, holding Cleveland hitless.

Managers Joe McCarthy of the Yankees and Joe Cronin of Boston, who was sold by his father-in-law for a record price to the Red Sox during the winter trading season, were fined $100 each for stalling in a game on August 5.

Ruth's "blow-up" at Boston and the subsequent debacle of the sad Braves, who lost a record total of 115 games, provided the saddest note of the season. The Bambino, at only 41, appeared to have lost whatever hopes he once held of becoming a major league manager by his action in ripping up a fancy three-year contract.

Cincinnati's experiment with night games was pronounced such a success that other clubs were in a mood for trying the nocturnal contests, which were in the vogue in most of the 21 minor leagues. Prosperity did an encore for the minors.

Several important figures in the baseball world died in 1935. Among them were Frank J. Navin of the champion Tigers, Umpire Hank O'Day, Billy Sunday and Len Koenecke, Brooklyn outfielder, who was slain by a pilot when he became unmanageable in an airplane enroute to Toronto.

MANASSA MAULER IS DOUBTFUL OF BOMBER'S ABILITY

Dubious As Broadway Acclaims Detroit Negro Second Jack Dempsey

By Eddie Brietz
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Joe Louis, the new toast of Harlem, was being hailed as a second Jack Dempsey along Broadway today by almost everybody except the old Manassa Mauler himself.

Still the idol of the fight fans, Jack stopped pumping hands in his Eighth avenue restaurant long enough to give an authoritative lowdown on the Brown Bomber, whose fists are making ring history every time he climbs through the ropes.

Dempsey freely admits Louis is the outstanding heavyweight prospect in years, but he goes a bit slow on the super-man stuff.

"We're not going to know if Louis is really great until we throw him in the ring with somebody who will do a little fighting himself," he said.

"Joe has got to fight somebody who can not only take plenty, but give plenty back. Until a man of this calibre is found we'll not know just how good he is.

"Trouble is, most of the fellows he has been fighting folded up as soon as they were cracked. Joe has yet to meet a yellow who could or would take it long enough to get in a few punches on his own account."

Jack didn't hesitate a minute when asked whether Max Schmeling or James J. Braddock has the best chance of trimming Louis.

"Braddock unquestionably," he said. "Jim can take it and he has a pretty good right hand punch. He knows what to do in the ring and won't fall for any tricks. He's hard to hit. Schmeling can be hit much easier. And he can't punch as well as Braddock.

"I'm not telling you Braddock could lick Joe, but he has a better chance than Schmeling."

Louis, with almost $40,000 in his pocket and a new notch in the handle of his knockout gun, spent a day taking bows before leaving tonight for Detroit. Wednesday he starts for Havana to see what can be done about Senor Isidor Gastanagan, now being fattened up as the next sacrificial offering, December 29.

After that fight Louis will hop to Chicago to meet Charlie Retzlaff, then will take a good rest before going to work for Max Schmeling.

A patched-up Paulino stuffed himself with his favorite olla podrida (Spanish stew) at Pompton Lakes and sang Louis' praises in a never ceasing flow of torrid Spanish between mouthfuls.

There was a general exodus of pugilistic big shots, Ex-Champion Max Schmeling sailed for London tonight with a far-away look in his eyes. Ex-Champion Primo Carnera took off for Italy, secretly delighted that the boxing powers here laughed off his challenge for a return bout with Louis. Primo will return after the holidays. Schmeling is due six weeks before he

Christmas Time To Wear One Of Those New Hostess Gowns

Dress Should Please Relatives, Not Public

Clothes Are Designed To Accentuate Beauty In Home; Will Make Family Realize Mother's Prettiness

Fashion has a new recipe for Christmas dressing. This will be your day to wear one of the lovely new period hostess gowns. It should be as soft and glowing as the candlelight and as festive as the dinner over which you preside.

In direct contrast to this season of public-spirited entertaining, when opulence tries to outshine elegance and conversation is left hanging to keep another date, Christmas day should be unhurried, gracious, mellow rather than high-pitched. Fashion designs the mode in charming clothes that are keyed to gracious interiors and more intimate hospitality.

They are clothes to please your relatives instead of your public. For the first time, your family may see you as a Greek goddess, a Renaissance portrait, or a scintillating modern. Children home from school will suddenly realize how lovely their mother really is and roommates who accompanied them home will carry away a mental picture of their hostess for the rest of the year.

You will notice that most of the new at-home fashions have high necklines and long sleeves. There is not a hint of the negligee about the smartest of them.

Silver lame needs little or no trimming to enter the drawing room fashion picture. It is still elegant when treated to a simple surplice style and short full sleeves and tassel fringes.

There are several kinds of little evenings and there's a perfect outfit for each. There's the evening when you dine with another couple, by their own fireside, let us say, with a round of bridge afterward. For this, a long-sleeved dinner dress, a medieval teagowny kind of dress, black or rusty red, high in front but slit low in back. And then there's the evening when you dine out at a restaurant with a man who has said, "Yes, let's dress," and for this a long-sleeved black velvet dress again or perhaps an ankle-length short-sleeved bronze lame dress. With either, a silver fox cape and no hat. And then there's still another evening when the man says, "No, don't let's dress," and then your answer is a dark coat, a small dark hat, and a dark but festive street-length dress—for instance, a black wool skirt, a little longer than your day dress, a gold lame peasant blouse, or a black wool skirt with a shiny white satin blouse, or a black silk jersey dress with all the pleats in the black.

Tips for the Christmas shopper: The last word in finger luxury, pastel tinted gloves, lovely colors, such as lemon yellow, pale blush pink, turquoise blue, and wood violet; the kind of gloves that whisper seductively with a French accent. There are slip-on models with a deep cuff that wrinkle smartly above your dark suits or afternoon and dinner ensembles. They look like the delicate tints of bon-bons and are luxurious accents for dramatizing an otherwise ordinary black dress. And so are the stunning white gloves trimmed with either gold or silver braid. They are made with decorative cuffs where the braid is used. Or you can choose the rich appearing thick white doeskins, without any adornment except a few rows of tucks or plaits in the cuff section. Anybody would gloat over such a gift.

Pearl costume jewelry has never been lovelier, with the new velvet and twisted pearl creations heading the list. Three strands of graduated pearls that just show in front are attached to a velvet band that ties at the back. A strand of medium sized pearls braided with narrow black or colored velvet ribbon fashions rather old time and very romantic bracelets and a necklace or head band. All tie in place and you can easily match the color of the velvet ribbon to the shade of the dress you wear with these new accents. Another pearl idea is the daisy chain formation—small pearls around a large pearl forming a daisy, and a cluster of these flowers tied with black velvet to form clips, to make bracelets, and still more strung on the velvet to make the high round neckline.

Christmas Greetings

Dames and daughters of American households in the past century solved their Christmas greeting perplexities in a simple way.

A spray of pressed flowers, or a box of water colors, and a poetic turn of mind were all the present-day American's grandmother or great-grandmother needed to prepare her yuletide remembrances to friends. This is revealed by some of the oldest Christmas cards in existence, now part of a rare collection of greeting cards owned by the Wisconsin State Historical museum.

Tinted with the faint yellow of age, brought on, perhaps, by its being kept in a memory-box, a card made by an Ohio girl in 1800 reflects the ingenuity of a past generation. The young lady skillfully painted a scroll, harp and crown of roses upon a card fringed with machine-stamped lace, and dispatched the elaborate home-made greeting to a friend.

Milady used to press violets, lilies of the valley and ferns between pages of books months before the holiday season. Later, when snow began to fall, she would take from her secretary-desk several gold or gilt-edged white cards similar to those she used for visiting, and, removing the flowers from the books, would glue them to the cards.

Like in structure to the stage of a "Punch and Judy" show, one of the collection's Christmas cards is an intricate portrayal of the three wise men presenting the baby, Lord Jesus, with gifts, incense and mhyrr. Backgrounds of the manger are folding cardboard inserts, such as are used in up-to-date Valentine cards. This card is typical of the 1900 period of greetings. It is 8 by 10 inches, in green, yellow, red and blue tints. "Gloria in Excelsis Deo," a line from the angels' glorious song of rejoicing, appears above the cardboard.

A perfume sachet tied with pink ribbon to a card made in 1900 recalls the loveliness and tenderness of a bygone age. The grace of a past generation is visible in the simple sentiment written upon it: "A Happy Christmas to You."

Bordered by brilliant silk fringes of pink, red, maroon, old rose, or light blue, fringed greeting cards crowded post boxes, all over the country in the '90s.

Printed greetings on the curious fringed cards bring to mind a time of sentiment and deep feeling, as shown in the following quotations: "May this Christmas shed blessings on your head." "A blithe and peaceful Christmas." "A glad Christmas to thee, from every sorrow free," and "be thy Christmas replete with bliss pure and sweet." Bright-hued flowers and summer and winter landscapes are depicted in these cards, distinctive in that both sides of each card were illustrated.

The folding screen type of Christmas card was "the rage" with crowds thronging stationery shops in the holiday season thirty years ago. One such screen card in the collection is black, gold and red, which upon being opened, discloses an odd picture of a china plate, bowl and vase of flowers, with the inscription, "Compliments of the season." This card was made in France. Birds in winter scenes are the artistic design printed upon a similar folding screen card of 1905.

"Happy New Year, 1881," is the legend on a hand-painted Christmas card sent to a Wisconsin governor's family. Smoking a cigarette, a young-blood of the time is shown skating with his fair-haired sweetheart under a stone arch bordered by snow-laden trees.

Scenes from the life of Christ have always been favorite illustrations on Christmas cards. One of the more complicated greetings in the museum's collection is a 1900 card of the "pull-out" type, from whose center four religious picture cards may be drawn into view.

Marking the change from purely sentimental Christmas cards to the modern cards is a "Kris Kringle Song" novelty greeting of the 1915 period. It is a small cardboard victrola record in a record jacket upon which is found these jolly lines:

Put on a wood needle and softly play
A song of old friendship on Christmas day.
Your victrola wind, ere the tune's played through
Lest our friendship record should play out too.

Yule Play Slated

Religious drama has again come to the front in the churches of today. The First Methodist church of this city, on several different occasions, has inspired its congregation in worship through drama. Last Christmas the play "The Other Shepherd," was most effectively presented. This year, on the Sunday night before Christmas, another play, entitled "Ye Who Sit By The Fire," will be presented under the direction of Mrs. L. S. Oyster, assisted by Miss Elizabeth Langford, educational director of the church. The story is of a miser, "Old Jeffrey," who sends a little blind boy and his little sister upon the streets to beg and then hordes his wealth. At the Christmas season, he has many opportunities for sharing his possessions; but his greed forbids it until a little child reveals to him the spirit of the Christ Child. In addition to the play, Christmas carols will be presented in pantomine and song.

Tulip Planting Time

It is now tulip planting time in Monroe and we never think of these colorful blossoms, first harbingers of Spring, without visualizing the beautiful bed of tulips at Bethaven, home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Biedenharn. It brings to mind also the prim, orderly row of crimson blossoms bordering the garden walk of Mrs. H. R. Speed's home on Pine street. Rose colored tulips also nestle close to the grey stone walls of Grey Gables, home of Mr. and Mrs. Sigmund Masur, and flaunt their beauty from the enormous bed in the gardens of Mr. and Mrs. B. D. Hodges' home in Fairview.

Tulips are to the spring garden what oaks, sycamores and sumac are to the autumn landscape. Other beautiful flowers there are of course, in adundance, but none quite so brilliant and showy as these. With the possible exception of daffodils, they are certainly regarded as the most nearly indispensable of all early flowering bulbs, and—like the daffodils—they include so many distin.t and widely different types that with them alone the gardener could readily arrange a spring planting of diversified interest and color that would yield continuous bloom during six to eight weeks.

One advantage of the tulips is that they can be planted very late. The fall-flowering annuals are left undisturbed by many gardeners until the first frosts have put an end to their final bursts of bloom before the beds are cleared for tulip planting. Tulips planted in November or even in December have given perfectly satisfactory results, but once the autumn vegetation in the beds or borders has been killed off, most gardeners like to get their planting done while the soil is still moderately warm and easily worked. Heavy rains and cold weather may produce a stiff and lumpy condition of the soil that is not favorable for planting.

While it would be difficult to say that any one type of tulip is more beautiful than others—such preferences are largely a matter of personal taste—nevertheless there are differences which make certain types more suitable for certain purposes than others. The difference in time of flowering alone is sufficient reason for a gardener to make his selection from among several types, even though he may be planting but a few dozen bulbs altogether.

Too many gardeners think of tulips primarily for use in solid masses of color. They are equally desirable, however, for other methods of planting. Scattered groups of half a dozen to a dozen bulbs in the mixed border, though only a comparatively few varieties are used, will lend color to the entire garden. For this purpose, of course, selections are made from several different types, so that the flowering season may be a long one.

Often larger groups can be used with striking effect in front of evergreens or flowering shrubs outside of the regular flower border. For this purpose landscape architects prefer bold clear colors that will be effective at a distance, rather than the neutral tones and pastel shades of varieties many of which are admirable in the tulip border.

Even in rock garden planting, tulips have their place. In fact, many of the species are particularly effective in the rockery because their habit of growth is so diffrent from that of the majority of spring-blooming rock plants, most of which are trailers or creepers. Tulips therefore add variety in form as well as in color.

LOCAL FIGHTER READY FOR BOUT WITH WRESTLER

OLD QUESTION OF SUPREMACY TO BE ISSUE IN BATTLE

Butch Martin In Excellent Shape To Meet German Grappler

Can a fighter beat a wrestler, or, vice versa, can a wrestler beat a fighter?

That's a question that's been argued since time immemorial.

There are several instances on record in which a wrestler met a fighter in the squared circle with the fighter lasting but a short while. Only recently Kingfish Levinski, a fighter, failed to get half-way to first base in a bout with Ray Steele, a wrestler. Steele kayoed the former fish peddler before he could get started.

Fight and wrestling fans of northeast Louisiana will have the opportunity of seeing this age-old question settled by Butch Martin, Monroe fighter, and Otto Ludwig, German wrestler, in a semi-final bout next Wednesday night at Roosevelt stadium.

"I just want one good punch at Ludwig—that'll be enough to settle his hash," Martin said yesterday.

Concerning Martin's possibilities of winning the bout, Ludwig told Promoter Charlie Bruscato last Wednesday night at the close of a wrestling program at the stadium that Martin wouldn't have a chance with him in the ring. "Put him in there with me and I'll show the fans he's just a big bluff," Ludwig declared. "All I ask is police protection, and I'll break every bone in his body."

Martin, who gained prominence as a fighter in state high school circles and in rings of northeast Louisiana after his high school days, is in excellent physical condition and weighs 183 pounds. He has been working out at the stadium for two weeks, every since his job as a levee dump truck driver was ended by the completion of the levee, in West Monroe.

Ludwig, a professional wrestler, weights 171 pounds and keeps himself in shape for ring action at all times.

Promoter Bruscato signed the two for a mixed bout after Martin, as a referee, was forced to use rough tactics to break some of Ludwig's holds in the latter's bout with "Bull" Jeffries last Wednesday.

Ludwig was strongly opposed to the referee's methods, and socked and kicked Martin several times during the bout. Martin retaliated and let it be understood in no uncertain terms that while he was in the ring as referee he would be in charge of the situation.

The bout is scheduled for 12 three-minute rounds. Martin will wear five-ounce fighting gloves and will win if he kayoes Ludwig for a ten-count. Ludwig, to win a round, must pin Martin's shoulders to the mat for three seconds.

Promoter Bruscato announced last night that he has signed Vern Clark, clever Seattle youngster, to meet the "Masked Marvel" in the main event. Clark weighs 172 pounds and the "Masked Marvel" weighs 170 pounds.

The first bout will begin at 8:30 o'clock.

TENNESSEE GETS NEW CAGE COACH

Blair Gullion Succeeds Major Britton As Basketball Mentor

(This is one of a series of stories on basketball prospects of Southeastern conference schools).

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Fortunes of Tennessee's basketball team this season are wrapped up in a crew of veterans and sophomores who are learning their basket-looping and floor work from a new coach—tall, broad-shouldered Blair Gullion.

Gullion, a graduate of Purdue university, came from Earlham college, Richmond, Ind., where his teams chalked up a five-year record of 45 victories and 14 losses. He succeeded Major Bill Britton, who gave up basketball to become head football coach at Tennessee.

"Sometimes," said Gullion, "our team looks pretty good in practice, and sometimes pretty sorry. We're still doing a lot of experimenting. The squad shows promise and there's a possibility of developing a good team."

Gullion isn't planning any material change in the Volunteers' style of play, he said.

"We're going to use the same fast breaking offense," he added.

Eight letter men returned this year. Heading the list is Captain Harry Anderson, tall, rangy center from Memphis, and a brilliant player. He is the only senior on the squad. Others are Floyd Marshall and Everett Martin, regular forwards; Tip Masterson, Pete Johnson and Marion Perkins, regular guards; and Eblen and Smith, reserve forwards. Outstanding sophomores are Fisher, center; Rice and Ramsey, forwards, and Krisle, guard.

Gullion believes the Southeastern conference this winter "will be tougher than usual," and predicts "a wide open race."

The schedule:

Dec. 19, Lambuth college at Jackson; Jan. 4, Emory & Henry at Knoxville; Jan. 7, University of Chattanooga at Knoxville; Jan. 11, University of Georgia at Knoxville; Jan. 15, Sewanee university at Knoxville; Jan. 17, Georgia Tech at Atlanta; Jan. 18, Alabama at Tuscaloosa; Jan. 24, Xavier university at Cincinnati; Jan. 25, Kentucky at Lexington; Jan. 31, Georgia at Athens.

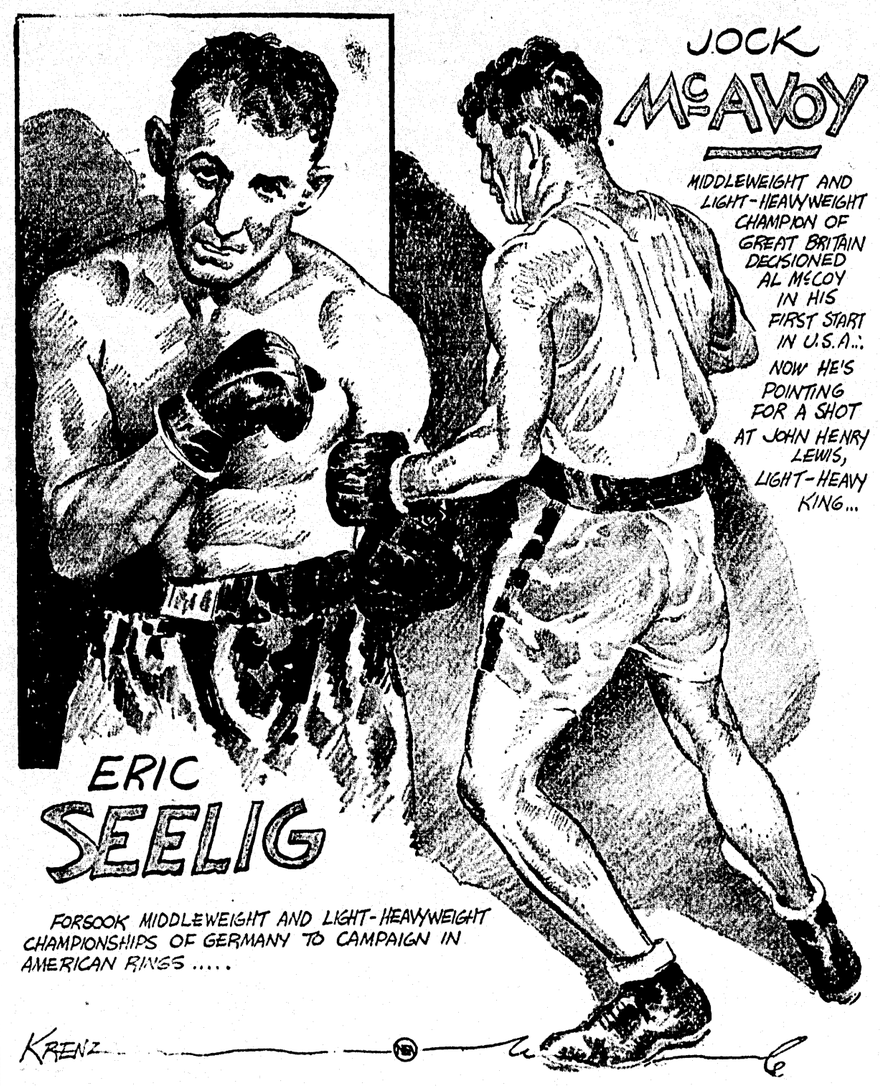
Handy Hands From Across the Sea



Swiss Girls 'Smuggle' Curls

VIENNA, Nov. 30.—(AP)—"Smuggling of permanent waves is giving serious concern to Swiss authorities on the border of Vorarlberg.

Swiss girls slip across the frontier into Austria straight-haired and go back curly-headed. Swiss beauty parlor operators don't like it and their chorus of complaints is creating another "international situation," minor but eat est.

So far Switzerland has imposed no import duty on permanent waves, and legislators admitted that such an impost probably wouldn't be feasible They shudder to think of the difficulties a tariff of this nature would impose on customs collectors. Border patrolmen, it was urged, have enough trouble going through baggage without, in addition, having to decide whether a feminine traveler's curls are real or artificial, or whether any given specimen is a so-called "water" or permanent wave.

But frontier authorities of the Canton of St. Gallen have been instructed to keep their eyes open and to report names of girls who come back from Austria with a "frizzy" appearance which usually characterizes the brand new permanent wave.

Badly adjusted currency systems are the reason for the traffic in waves. Swiss francs are expensive and go a long way in Austrian beauty parlors.

Members of the Needlecraft club entertained their husbands at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Madden. Card games were played and refreshments served. Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Madden, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Willis, Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Kidd, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Bagwell, Mr. and Mrs. D. F. O'Neal, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Gagley, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. O'Neal, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Colvin and Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Mondart.

The Baptist Woman's Missionary society met in the home of Mrs. J. Lee Hester, who was in charge of the program. The meeting was featured by a talk on the Lottie Moon Christmas offering and by songs and prayers. Mrs. T. B. Alderson was appointed president in the place of Mrs. C. E. Henry, who resigned. The society was divided into two circles, with Mrs. M. E. Kidd and Mrs. C. F. Brewster as chairmen.

A meeting to discuss plans for the erection of a new Methodist church, was held at Indian Village. Rev. B. F. Roberts, pastor of the local church, presided. W. A. Willis, acting chairman of the building committee, announced that $250 had been subscribed for the new edifice.

NEW RECORD FOR HIGH HURDLE MAY BE SET AT MEET

Sugar Bowl Carnival Entrants Threaten To Break World Mark

NEW ORLEANS, La., Dec. 14—(Special)—That phantom gentleman of the track, Mr. World Record, stands face to face with oblivion, here December 28, in the Sugar Bowl's first invitational track and field carnival.

Surely, he'll be in imminent danger of seeing split-seconds stripped from his pride, if Sugar Bowl high hurdlers have their way.

With the exception of Percy Beard, America's finest in the thrilling 120 yard race over the 3 foot 6 inch barriers, are coming to New Orleans for the holiday sports pageant. America's best is world's best, at least in a high hurdle race.

It's a race that locks the intercollegiate champion, a fellow who thrice equalled the present mark, and a former world record holder in a struggle that should make Mr. 14.2 run for cover.

Sam Allen, Al Moreau, and Johnny Morriss! Those boys are kingpins in this race against time. All of them, at one time or another, have beaten the record holder, Percy Beard; all have sprinted that gruelling 120 yard stretch in 14.3 seconds or better.

Allen, intercollegiate king from Oklahoma Baptist, is the "comer" of the group; Moreau and Morriss, veterans of international competition, have already reached their peak—and are still at the top.

Sammy threatened to step into select circles in 1934. He did it in 1935 by charging to individual titles in five of the outstanding relays and meets in the United States.

Allen smashed through to triumphs in the Texas Relays, Drake Relays, Princeton Invitation, N. C. A. A. games and Kansas Relays—and in his wake were strewn the figures of Messrs. Beard, Moreau and Morriss.

His time read like this: 14.3, 14.4, 14.3, 14.5, and 14.5. It was 14.3 seconds the day he knocked Beard, Moreau and Morriss into defeat.

Moreau's rise to national prominence is one of the most remarkable in American track records. Out of the Sugar Bowl country of Louisiana—the little village of Marksville—came Al with only the recommendation that he had never broken 16 flat.

Bernie Moore, the L. S. U. coach, who, himself, was little known at the time, saw in Moreau the possibilities of a great hurdler. So he set to work on him. Moore has called Al's form over the high sticks the greatest he has ever seen; but the kid, who still can't shake off a "Cajun" accent, lacked speed at the start.

Al was ready for the big time in 1933, his senior year. He and four other boys drove to Chicago and startled the country by bringing to Dixie its first national intercollegiate championship. Since then his name has had a place in any hurdle talk.

Moreau's greatest season was 1935. He equalled Professor Beard's record of 14.2 in winning the Southern A. A. U. meet; placed second to the flying Allen at Princeton though beating Beard; was third to Beard in the National A. A. U.; and then set out on a barnstorming tour of Europe.

There he consecutively won 12 high hurdle races and one over the low sticks. Over that stretch he raced twice at 14.2 seconds, once at 14.3, five times at 14.4, twice at 14.5 and once at 14.6—and against inferior competition, too.

Morriss has basked in the national spotlight longer than either of the first two. He was nosed out of the Los Angeles Olympic games, broke the tape at 14.3 in 1933 and held the world record until Beard came up with his 14.2 classic.

Johnny, now a professor at a Louisiana high school, was second to Moreau in 1935 S. A. A. U. meet and fourth to Allen, Moreau and Beard at Princeton in his two big meets of the past season.

Allen, Moreau and Morriss are naturally bracketed as favorites in the Sugar Bowl race; but there are two sectional champions and a coupe of other good boys to fill the lanes.

"Red" Phillips, who wanted to race here so much that he offered to pay his own expenses, is Missouri Valley titleholder. Forrest Townes of Georgia rules the Southeastern conference. Billy Wallace, Rice football star, and Howard Smith of Tulane will also dig in December 28.

Since Percy Beard has told L. di Benedetto, A. A. U. official in charge of the meet, that he is through with track, it means that the world's greatest high hurdlers will be in the Sugar Bowl.

BIG BUSINESS AT MAJORS' PARLEY

Baseball business had a very decided uptrend during the annual joint meeting of the major leagues in Chicago, sums ranging from $75,000 for a single player to $300,000 for a group of players changing hands. The $75,000 was spent by Mickey Cochrane, left above, manager and vice president of the Detroit Tigers, who gave that amount to Lou Comiskey, center, president of the Chicago White Sox, for Al Simmons, outfielder. Connie Mack, right, leader of the Philadelphia Athletics, is said to have received $300,000 and players from the Boston Red Sox for First Baseman Jimmy Foxx, and Pitcher Johnny Marcum, with Outfielder Roger Cramer and Infielder Eric McNair said also to be involved in the deal.

Winning Golf

By Lawson Little

I played in my first National Open championship at Merion, Philadelphia in 1934 just after returning from winning the British Amateur at Prestwick, Scotland. I was beautifully on my game and everything seemed to be going right. Then there suddenly occurred, one of those startling reversals of form that are so typical of golf. On the second hole of the seventy-two hole competition the breaks went against me, when my pet and only driver broke.

The second hole is a long par five and I wanted to hit an extra long drive so that I might have a chance to make the green in two. Just as I came onto the ball, the shaft of the club broke and half of the driver went sailing down the fairway while the rest remained in my hands. It was such a sickening sensation that I almost wept. I felt so futile and helpless that I could not do a thing except feel sorry for myself. My high hopes of winning were temporarily as completely wrecked as my favorite club.

All the way around the course I pitied myself and wound up with a miserable eighty-three — altogether out of the running and with a seventy-two to do the next day to qualify for the last thirty-six holes of play. Somehow I managed to get down a fifteen foot putt on the eighteenth green for my seventy-two and I will always contend that this one putt was about the luckiest thing that could have happened for my future golfing career. It gave me the chance to play the last thirty-six holes with Olin Dutra, who really had a reason to feel sorry for himself and didn't. Playing along with Olin and watching him come from behind to win the championship, despite his handicaps, made me heartily ashamed of my own actions. Dutra won without having any good breaks in his favor, in fact he should have been in bed for it was only against his doctor's orders that he was competing at all. His bigness through it all really showed me up to myself and for this I can never thank him enough.

The championship proper was a fine one, as they always are at Merion, and Dutra after being eight strokes behind with 150, came through to win with about the most perfect thirty-six holes of golf I believe I have ever seen. In the morning he was putting for birdies on sixteen of the eighteen greens and failed every time—not from poor putting either, his putts were rimming the hole but they just wouldn't drop. Some days it goes like that. On the other two holes, he recovered for his par once and failed the other time thus making his score 71, one over par. It was a really beautiful round of golf. He picked up five strokes on the leaders Gene Sarazen and Bobbie Cruickshank, but he was still three strokes behind.

His afternoon round was almost an exact duplicate of the morning round—he again hit sixteen greens in perfect figures. One of his second shots was but a foot from the hole so Olin got his first birdie in twenty five holes. Then on the fifteenth, or the thirty-third hole, he sank his only long putt of the day, a fifteen footer for a birdie three. The last two holes he had to finish in one over par each to win the championship and he played them safely, making each hole in the maximum number of strokes he could afford.

Olin Dutra was sick. He played golf good enough to be well down in the sixties for both rounds that day but his putts, no matter how well he struck them, stayed out of the hole yet he never gave up. He was courageous enough to stick in there and overcome an eight stroke lead and win the championship. He certainly made me feel small for allowing the breaking of my driver to run my score up to 83 the first day. Dutra taught me a valuable lesson.

yards. But on the fourth play, an incomplete pass, the referee penalized the Bulldogs to the one-yard line for roughness, and Tampa scored on three plays, the touchdown play being a pass from Rodriguez to Carter.

Tampa gained lots of ground, but it was mostly in Tampa territory. They penetrated Tech's 20-yard line but once. Tech made 15 first downs to Tampa's 14. The Spartans fumbled six times to the Bulldogs once. Tampa tried 19 passes, completed seven for 95 yards, and had two intercepted. Tech attempted 19 passes, five were completed for 130 yards and two were intercepted. Tech was penalized 45 yards and Tampa 10.

The Tech squad will spend Sunday as guests of the Tampa school on a sight-seeing tour of this section. They will leave tomorrow night, arriving in Ruston Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock.

Ever Heard About King James' Old Shoes?

He had worn them for a long time. He knew the quality of their soft leather and their durability. In a word, they were easiest on his feet. That's why he always called for them.

We all have our "old shoes"—things to which we are accustomed and which make life easier by their excellent service. A brand of coffee, special sunfast draperies, a favorite complexion cream, wholesome health foods, a fine make of felt hat—these we ask for again and again. They have a dependable quality that is as important to us as the comfort King James found in his old shoes.

Read the advertisements in this newspaper, and learn more about the things which are part of your daily life. Naturally, you take their quality for granted (advertised products are reliable). But with closer attention to the news in the advertisements, you will be able to effect surprising savings, and find new uses for old favorites.

Northeast Center Professor Speaks At Meeting Of P.-T. A.

Address Of History Is Made By Hammond

Four Objectives In Teaching Subject Given Stress; Says Wars Are Engendered By Wrong Patriotism

"History as an Aid to Modern Living" was the subject of an address made by W. R. Hammond, professor of history and economics at Northeast Center of L. S. U., at the December meeting of the Barkdull Faulk school Parent-Teacher association of the Louisiana Congress of Parents and Teachers.

"History," Mr. Hammond said, "is a record of human efforts and achievements, triumphs, successes and failures of the human race from the beginning of time.

"The common conception is learning dates, jumping from war to war and deifying national heroes."

In comparing the old method of history teaching with the new, he said that modern history tells of the whole range of events from earliest times, and gives us the answers to our "Whys."

The method has four objectives, he said:

First—To help students think for themselves.

Second—The engendering of a tolerant attitude.

Third—To help the student adjust himself to change.

Fourth—To re-interpret patriotism.

"Wars are engendered by wrong patriotism," he said, in analyzing his final point, "and causes hatreds because we have been taught to hate those who oppose us. This, in the light of the new history, is wrong.

"Any patriotism that cannot look beyond the man-made barriers, is not worthy of the name. Patriotism calls for leadership of the highest type."

Entertainment on the program was given by three members of Mr. Gauchell's band, who played "Silent Night," and children of the Barkdull Faulk Glee club sang several Christmas carols.

Miss Daisy Richardson's class won the prize for having the most parents present at the meeting. Refreshments were served at the conclusion in the school cafeteria.

Ouachita P.-T. A.

A talk by Jackson Purdy, new director of productions for the Monroe Little Theater, an entertainment program, reports and awarding of prizes marked the December meeting of the Ouachita Parent-Teacher association of the Louisiana Congress of Parents and Teachers.

On behalf of the Little Theater, Mr. Purdy extended an invitation to those present at the meeting to join the dramatic group.

The welfare committee for the Ouachita Parish High school reported that six underprivileged children had been clothed during the month, and that seven had been provided with food.

Prizes were awarded to the second grade and to Miss Wilson's room for obtaining the largest percentages of members during the recent membership campaign of the association. Presentation of the awards was made by Mrs. Jason Johnson, president of the association.

The following program was presented by the program committee: Tap dance and song, Gene Wilder, sixth grade; talk, "What Parents Can Do To Develop Reading In The Home," Mrs. Fred Fudickar; two piano solos, Billy McDowell, sixth grade; talk, "History and Geography as a Basis of World Citizenship," Miss Gertrude Gregory.

The meeting, which was held in the high school auditorium December 12 at 3:45 p.m., was launched with the reading of minutes by the secretary and a report from the treasurer.

Central P.-T. A.

The subject of Safety First was stressed at length by Judge W. M. Harper before a meeting of the Central Grammar school P.-T. A. in the school auditorium Wednesday afternoon. Judge Harper's talk was chiefly along the lines of protection of the children in the safe operation of motor vehicles and in the elimination of hazards in homes.

He laid stress on the safe operation of motor vehicles at all times and the importance of extreme care where children are in the street or crossing intersections. Strict observance of traffic rules and extra precaution when driving near schools were urged.

In regards to home hazards, Judge Harper particularly asked that parents restrain their children from playing in the streets or in driveways where machines might be backing out.

Other dangers around the home, such as air rifles, sling-shots, small caliber guns, loose ammunition and open fires, were criticized. Allowing children to play with matches or with electrical appliances were also given as home hazards.

Oak Ridge P.-T. A.

OAK RIDGE, La., Dec. 14.—(Special)—A decision to provide noon lunches for underprivileged children attending the school, an appeal by the principal for more magazines for the library, committee reports and an entertainment program featured the December meeting of the Oak Ridge high school Parent-Teacher association of the Louisiana Congress of Parents and Teachers.

The plan submitted for the provision of lunches for children in needy circumstances attending the school was unanimously adopted.

The appeal for magazines, the need for which was stressed, was made by B. S. Hamner, principal of the school.

At the close of the business session, which was presided over by Mrs. C. J. Wasson, president of the association, an entertainment program was presented.

Six-year-old Bonnie Marie Windsor contributed a song and dance, Mrs. Maud Baird gave a demonstration in teaching geography and Mr. Hamner spoke on the school and some of its needs.

The next meeting of the association is scheduled for the first Tuesday in January.

Dodson P.-T. A.

DODSON, La., Dec. 14.—(Special)—The Dodson P.-T. A. rendered an interesting program recently in the high school auditorium.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Henry Stovall, president, who announced that the organization would stage an old fashioned dance on New Year's eve at the high school auditorium.

R. H. Sylvest, principal of Dodson High school, talked on the new system of grading in the school. An address was also made by Miss Thelma Stovall.

Georgia Tucker Group

The third of a series of studies on "The Progressive Home" was carried out at the December meeting of the study group of the Georgia Tucker school Parent-Teacher association of the Louisiana Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Mrs. Virginia Newman reviewed the article "Managing the Children in the Home" in the Parent-Teacher magazine.

"Teaching the Children Good Manners" was stressed by Mrs. M. S. Harrison, who outlined principles to follow in laying the foundation.

Both topics were discussed by the parents in attendance at the meeting.

The next meeting of the group will take place at 2 p.m. the second Thursday in January. It will be held in the kindergarten room of the school.

Barkdull Faulk Group

Mrs. Virginia Newman, whose theme was "Management of Money in the Home," spoke before the study club of the Barkdull Faulk school Parent-Teacher association of the Louisiana Congress of Parents and Teachers at its meeting the past week.

"There are two basic principals of money management," Mrs. Newman said, "first, to live within ones incomes, and, second, to distribute ones income porportionally.

"We must 'save' proportionately.
"We must 'give' proportionately.
"We must 'have' proportionately."

The size of the income of a family does not matter so much as long as the father, mother and older children can cooperate in wise spending of the money, she said. Children should know the amount of the income and also be taken into the family conferences when money matters are discussed. Children, thus trained, would be given valuable lessons in thrift and wise spending, she stated.

"Prosperity as well as charity," she concluded, "must begin in the home."

Cotton

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Cotton futures reacted in today's short session under long liquidation and some hedge selling and the market closed from 7 to 16 points net lower.

Prices were lower at the start on poor cables from abroad and some profit-taking sales after yesterday's advance.

The trade took cotton on the decline but the amount of buying in the market was inadequate to hold prices higher.

December closed at 11.59, March at 11.23, May at 11.11 and July at 11.00 bid. October 1936 showed the sharpest break, losing 16 points to 10.69.

While reports current that peace talk in Europe might result in heavy sales of American cotton abroad these advices had little influence on prices.

For the entire trading period the market was decidedly easier.

Exports today were 37,022 bales.

Cotton futures closed barely steady at net declines of 7 to 16 points.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Stocks steady; leaders narrow in dull trading. Bonds mixed; industrials in demand. Curb irregular; utilities ease. Foreign exchanges quiet; changes narrow. Cotton lower; liquidation; lower cables; hedge selling. Sugar quiet; disappointing spot demand. Coffee barely steady; European selling.

CHICAGO—Wheat lower; heavy profit-taking sales. Corn weak; sympathy with wheat. Cattle nominally steady. Hogs, few sales steady; quotable top $9.75.

New York Stocks

By Victor Eubank
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Pressure relaxed in today's brief stock market session as a few of the metals oils, motors and specialties recovered moderately.

There were still plenty of skeptics in the board rooms, however, and the sidelines continued attractive for many traders. Dullness marked the two-hour proceedings. The close was steady. Transfers approximated 700,000 shares.

Chartists were far from discouraged with the action of the list. It was suggested that the erratic tendencies of leading stocks in the past week may have been due partly to year-end factors and partly to the necessity for a consolidation after a long advance.

The silver mystery was as far from solution as ever, but it apparently had become less conspicuous as a market factor.

Wheat reacted after its spurt yesterday and cotton pointed lower. Trends in the bond department were indefinite. Some rail liens sagged and Italian obligations were again a bit soft.

Share gainers of fractions to around a point or more included American Smelting, International Nickel, U. S. Smelting, Chrysler, Case, Westinghouse, Atlantic Refining, Houdaille-Hershey, Marlin-Rockwell, American Telephone and Western Union.

Continental Can came back about 2 points and American Can rallied around a point. American Type Founders preferred got up about 6 points on optimism over the company's reorganization plans, the rails and steels were narrow. American Tobacco "B," Public Service of New Jersey and Eastman Kodak were rather heavy.

No business was done in London in bar silver because of the continued lack of buying orders from the United States and, dealers said, because offices were open only a half day on Saturday. Silver futures in Montreal were mixed.

A little more selling of American securities from abroad was reported by brokers with foreign connections. There was also some liquidation during the past several sessions for income tax purposes, but this was not viewed as especially important.

The Italo-Ethiopian peace muddle continued to keep financial circles watchful and wary.

Commission house analysts were still expecting considerable irregularity in the equities market. It was pointed out though that in each one of the past six years the pre-Christmas decline was culminated some time between December 17 and 21. In these years reinvestment demand usually began to make itself felt during the latter part of the month.

Chicago Grain

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Wheat suffered a fall of more than two cents a bushel here early today in brisk trading. Downturns of wheat quotations at Liverpool, together with uncertainties relative to possible devaluation of the Argentine peso had an unsettling effect.

Opening irregularly at 2 cents setback to 1-8 cent advance, May 98 1-2 to 1.00, Chicago wheat futures soon rallied somewhat but showed all around losses. Corn started 3-8 to 1 1-4 off, May 60 1-2 to 5-8, and for the time being altered little.

Wheat closed unsettled 3-8 to 2 1-2 cents under yesterday's finish, May 98 7-8 to 99, corn 5-8 to 1 3-8 down, May 60 1-4 to 3-8, oats 3-4 to 1 cent off, and provisions at 5 to 12 cents decline.

ELLENDER AVERS PENSION U. S. JOB

simply told you he is going to do it, and not how he is going to do it. Huey Long and I talked about this old-age pension problem a lot. We were convinced that it would take $1,500,000 a month to pay it. In other words we would have to raise $18,000,000 a year.

"To have the state furnish so much and the parishes so much would not work well in poor parishes like Beauregard. You couldn't do it. Senator Long always felt that the federal government would have to handle the problem.

"The government would have to make the pension the same in every state. It would have to be the same in poor states like Mississippi as it would in richer states. We could not handle payments to old people who would want to move here from other states. And so, my friends, that's why Senator Long made old-age pensions a national issue."

The machine candidates also spoke today at Leesville, Pitkin and Hornbeck. Speakers included Judge Richard W. Leche, machine candidate for governor; Earl K. Long, candidate for lieutenant-governor; Gaston L. Porterie, for attorney-general; T. H. Harris, superintendent of state education; A. P. Tugwell, for state treasurer, L. B. Baynard for state auditor, Lucille May Grace for register of the state land office and E. A. Conway for secretary of state.

At some of the engagements J. Hugo Dore, candidate for reelection as judge of the circuit court of appeal, and John S. Patton for public service commissioner, appeared with the machine ticket.

All of the candidates paid tribute to the late Senator Long and pledged themselves "to continue his work."

"You are looking at 252 pounds of Huey Long candidate, Judge Leche told his audiences. He declared that the Home Rule candidates, whose slogan he said is "Long Is Now Dead, Let's Kill the Things He Stood For," are changing issues every day and have "about run out."

"But we are not going to let them do that," Judge Leche asserted. "They fought everything that Senator Long provided for your benefit, but we are going to repudiate them at the polls. They have been changing names just as they change issues. Now they call themselves the Home Rule ticket. I call it the home-brew ticket. But let me tell you, you can put any label on that bunch of repudiated politicians and they will smell the same and just as strong."

Judge Leche spoke briefly at all of the meetings, telling stories and adding that his listeners could read printed copies of his opening speech, which contains his full platform.

Earl Long also spoke briefly today. Almost without voice, he said he had been "putting on too much steam" and had gotten hoarse. He said the Home Rule candidates' "promises to give you this and that" contained "not a word of truth," and the people would not be able to get any relief out of them. He asserted that he could point to a million things that his brother, Senator Long, accomplished for the people, and not a one hurt the people.

Mr. Patton said that his opponents are "attempting to make capital of the fact that Earl Long at one time opposed his late brother. He declared the truth was that Earl and Huey Long "broke" because of Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley.

"When Huey went to Earl and told him that he was throwing that buzzard Walmsley out of the window, Earl and Huey shook hands," Mr. Patton declared.

Mr. Porterie said that the state government for the past eight years has been engaged in a "practical means of sharing the wealth," citing the provision for homestead exemptions. He had several members of the audience at De Ridder to rise and tell the amount of their taxes last year and show the reduction that had been granted this year.

Mr. Harris, Mr. Baynard and Mr. Ellender at earlier meetings in the day said that they had read in Texas newspapers that President Roosevelt had praised Senator Long's educational program in Louisiana. "If you saw that in the Times-Picayune or the New Orleans Item at all, you saw it on the 45th page," Mr. Ellender said at Leesville.

CALDWELL VOTERS REFUTE GOV. ALLEN'S STATEMENT

COLUMBIA, La., Dec. 14.—(Special)—Resentment of a statement made by Governor O. K. Allen, in a speech at Logansport Thursday night brought out a sheaf of affidavits from leading citizens of Caldwell parish today, who declared that, by actual count, at least 625 persons were present at the Home Rule meeting held here Wednesday night. Governor Allen had declared in his Logansport speech that "only 200 persons had attended the meeting at Columbia and half of them left before the meeting was over." The affidavits said that "not over 12 persons left the meeting, and most of them returned."

Another statement made by Governor Allen that "a group of Caldwell citizens had waited on Cleveland Dear and told him to take off his cloak of assassination," was characterized as "pure fabrication." No incident of the kind occurred at Columbia, it was declared.

All of the affidavits, taken before a notary public, were made individually by a number of those attending the meeting. A typical example follows:

"Before me the undersigned authority personally appeared W. D. McSween, W. E. Hendricks, and S. A. Myers, all being duly sworn, depose and say: That we all attended the meeting held by Cleveland Dear and his associates at Columbia high school auditorium, Wednesday night, December 11, 1935, beginning at 7 o'clock p.m., and we sat through the entire meeting and that to the best of our knowledge there were approximately 600 people who attended said meeting and that only about 12 people walked out and a portion of them returned before the meeting adjourned.

(Signed), W. D. McSween, W. E. Hendricks, S. A. Myers.

"Sworn to and subscribed before me this 14th day of December, 1935. (Signed), C. H. Hester, Dy. Clerk, ex-officio notary public."

Others signing the affidavits included D. J. Critchett, F. Cruse, Fred H. Mecom, M. D., James T. Henderson.

Weddings And Nuptial Parties Claim Social Interest

Miss Helen Marr Love Honored At Reception

Bastrop Hostesses Give Delightful Affair For Charming Member Of Younger Set In That City

Miss Helen Marr Love, bride-elect, was the guest of honor at a beautifully planned pre-nuptial affair, with Mrs. M. V. Orr and Mrs. W. C. Gibbs of Bastrop, hostesses, at Hedgelawn, handsome home of Mrs. Orr.

The entire lower floor was in festive Christmas attire, the brilliancy of which created a colorful background for the beautifully frocked hostesses, their guest of honor and the concourse of friends who called during the afternoon.

Miss Love, in a henna transparent velvet model with corsage of sweetheart roses and valley lilies, stood with the hostesses to receive. They were assisted by Miss Mildred Shell in silver satin model and Mrs. L. Owen, who wore a black chiffon model.

The guests upon arrival were requested to sign the lovely bride's book, presided over by Miss Bennie Gibson. Miss Elizabeth Orr, a vibrant flame in crimson velvet frock, related a dramatic Christmas story that paved the way for the entrance of the hostesses drawing a silver sled to the accompaniment of tinkling sleigh bells. The sled was piled high with beautiful gifts for Miss Love. Prominent among them was a complete chest of silver and a full set of rose point china. All the gifts were wrapped in tissue in the Christmas colors.

The refreshment table in the dining room was reminiscent of the old-fashioned Christmas with a tinsel and gold draped tree for central ornamentation. Across the "frosty" surface of the table was driven a small silver sled drawn by eight reindeer with gaily colored trappings.

Miss Justine Dorman and Miss Virginia Orr presided over the handsome silver coffee services at either end of the table. Assisting in serving the delicious confections were Miss Berly Madison, Mrs. C. N. Dalton, Miss Bennie Gibson and Miss Nanette Orr.

This delightful affair was one of a series arranged for Miss Love, a popular member of Bastrop's younger set.

Holloway-Clark

Of interest to their many friends is the marriage of Miss Beth Holloway, attractive young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Holloway of Longview to Mr. Leslie Hugh Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Clark of Mer Rouge, La.

The wedding was quietly solemnized at the Holloway home on the fifth of December, in the presence of relatives and a few close friends, with Rev. George D. Dickinson, pastor of the First Christian church, reading the impressive ring ceremony.

The reception suit reflected a theme of green and white. Tall floor baskets held long stemmed pom-pom chrysanthemums and white roses, intermingled with plumosa fern.

The bride wore a becoming ensemble of black crepe, with a chic off the face hat of black suede. She wore a corsage of lilies of the valley and white carnations.

Mrs. Clark is a popular member of the younger set of Longview, where she has resided all of her life. Mr. Clark, formerly of Mer Rouge, is now making his home in Longview, where he is connected with the Atlantic Oil company. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Clark left for a short wedding trip.

Out-of-town guests for the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Holloway, Jr., of Austin, Mrs. A. P. Harden of Shreveport, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hamilton and daughter, Dorothy, of Dallas, and Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Reily of Shreveport.

Holloway Honored

Robert Holloway, student at the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., and son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Holloway of this city, was selected for membership in the Blue Key honorary fraternity and publicly recognized during the Blue Key leadout at the Thanksgiving prom.

Blue Key, national honorary leadership fraternity, recognizes outstanding men on the campus who are chosen not solely for their past records, but also for their capabilities in furthering the interests of the university and the campus in the service fraternity. Blue Key carries on such civic functions as the fire department, a college community chest drive, and other services.

Mr. Holloway is a member of Kappa Sigma and is associate business manager of the Purple. Last spring he won a varsity letter in track. He is also a member of the Glee club.

Tallulah

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Buckner were hosts to their bridge club, entertaining with a delightful supper followed by games. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. George Yerger, Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Yerger, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Stribling, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Shamblin, Mrs. R. L. Baily and Miss Katherine Ward.

The December meeting of the Madison Parish Garden club took place at the home of Mrs. D. H. Allen. A program suggestive of Christmas was a feature. The members brought Christmas gifts from their gardens, which they exchanged.

Mrs. Albert Sevier gave a talk on "Magnolia Gardens," Mrs. George Eggleston spoke on the "Use and Abuse of Christmas Greens," and Miss Bertha Keller led a discussion of "The Living Christmas Trees." Following the discussion the club voted to sponsor outdoor Christmas decorations in Tallulah. Mrs. Lamar Lowe contributed a vocal number.

At the close of the session, the hostess invited the guests into the dining room, where a buffet tea was enjoyed. Those in attendance were Mesdames S. B. Bettis, R. K. Boney, Charles Coltharp, J. H. Devine, George Egleston, J. A. Gilbert, Alph Hebert, A. H. Hurd, T. P. Kell, A. L. Lane, L. A. Materne, H. R. Maxwell, E. T. Purnell, W. L. Rountree, Albert Sevier, C. K. Smith, George Webb, J. S. Agee, C. A. Sparling, Lamar Lowe and George Sevier and Miss Amy Holmes, Miss Annette Beers and Miss Bertha Keller.

Mrs. A. G. Bray was a charming hostess at bridge when she entertained the members of the Wednesday Afternoon club at her home. Mrs. A. L. Sevier captured the high score prize, a crystal vase, Mrs. Mason Spencer, consolation, a casserole, and Mrs. W. C. Starrett, low score, a pitcher. A delectable hot luncheon was attractively served to Mesdames A. L. Sevier, R. L. Baily, H. W. Lee, W. H. Pierson, A. J. Sevier, Mason Spencer, A. J. Sevier, R. E. Gilbert, J. A. Gilbert, Alex Blanche, W. C. Starrett, W. L. Rountree and T. P. Kell.

At the monthly meeting of the Tallulah Book club, held at the Book club building here recently, a Christmas program was rendered by the Music club. The program, consisting of a series of pageants and musical numbers, was presented under the direction of Mrs. R. L. Baily, president of the club.

A concealed quartet, composed of Mrs. Frank Montgomery, Mrs. Pauline Adams, Mrs. Alnut Cason and Mrs. Lamar Lowe, furnished appropriate music for the pageants. A Christmas morning scene was portrayed by little Alta Gwinn Garrison, Dickie Sevier, Ed Adams, Lamar Lowe and Pierce and Bob Baily, with "Santa Claus is Coming to Town" as the accompaniment. This was followed by a piano solo by Elmer Neill, Jr., and a sleigh scene by Warren Sevier and Reita Feith, made interesting with "Jingle Bells," sung by the quartet. A group of young boys, Beverly Stone, Jack Bridge, Jimmie Cason, Warren Sevier, Louis Buckner and Billy Grace, in vestments, rendered Chirstmas carols.

Geneva Rountree added variety to the program with an attractive "Dance of the Snowflakes," after which Mrs. George C. Purvis gave a Christmas reading. The concluding number was the manger scene, with Grace Leeves as Mary and Fred Edgerton, Colvin Todd and Andrew Sevier as the three wise men. The musical accompaniment was Brahm's "Lullaby."

During the social period which followed, the hostesses, Mrs. George Webb, Mrs. T. P. Kell, Mrs. J. R. Medlin, Mrs. A. T. Palmer and Mrs. A. G. Bray, served delicious refreshments.

C. S. Pierce is visiting relatives in Kentucky.

The December meeting of the Latin club of Tallulah high school took place at the home of Mrs. C. B. Claughton, with Miss Peggy Claughton and Miss Marguerite McDonald as hostesses. The program opened with "Silent Night," sung in Latin. This was followed by a Christmas play in Latin, given by Bruce Tyner, Bill Yerger, James Freeman, David Currie, Wesley Whitfield, Joe Smith and Bedford Lucas. A debate in English, "Resolved that the Roman Festival, Saturnalia was more fun than our Christmas," with Margaret Folk and Hunter Coad as speakers for the affirmative, and Tom Barber and Margaret McDonald for the negative, proved interesting and resulted in the decision going to the negative side. The hostesses were assisted by their mothers, Mrs. C. B. Claughton and Mrs. Watson McDonald in serving delicious refreshments during the social hour enjoyed at the close of the program.

A very delightful recent party was that given by Miss Alma Maxwell at Mounds complimentary to her sister, Miss Dorothy Maxwell, whose marriage to Mr. Blue Woodyear will be celebrated on December 19th. Bridge games were enjoyed throughout the afternoon and resulted in Mrs. Will Sevier, Sr., capturing the high score award. As a novel method of awarding the consolation prize, the guests drew candy kisses from a slipper filled with rice. Miss Elizabeth Bettis being the fortunate winner. The honoree was presented with a piece of silver.

Following the game, the guests were invited into the dining room, where the table centerpiece, depicting a wedding scene, with the miniature bride and bridesmaids under a white arch, announced the approaching happy event. A delectable dinner was attractively served.

Those enjoying the hospitality were: Mrs. Dan James, Miss Lou Koestler, Mrs. Hugh Montgomery, Mrs. John Helgasson, Mrs. Alnut Cason, Mrs. T. B. Lucas, Mrs. Ed Shamblin, Mrs. E. A. Buckner, Mrs. Maxwell Yerger, Miss Louise Thompson, Mrs. Richard Almond, Mrs. Will Sevier, Jr., Miss Elizabeth Holt, Miss Elizabeth Bettis, Mrs. W. P. Yerger and Miss Dorothy Fairly.

Mr. and Mrs. George Yerger, Jr., entertained recently with a lovely supper party in honor of Miss Dorothy Maxwell and Mr. B. Woodyear, whose approaching marriage will be a prominent social event of the month. Those in attendance besides the honorees, were Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Yerger, Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Yerger, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Buckner, Mr. J. E. Neill, Mr. Bill Yerger, Mr. Edward Yerger, Miss Georgette Ziegler, Miss Alma Maxwell and Mr. Joe Clark.

The Eveready circle of the Methodist Missionary society met recently at the country home of Mrs. Davis Whitfield at Mansford plantation. Mrs. G. L. Smith presided over the business session, Mrs. Webb Williams gave the devotional and Mrs. G. L. Garrison gave a review of an interesting article from the World Outlook. At the conclusion, the hostess served refreshments to the guests: Mesdames W. B. Williams, Earl Jennings, Richard Alexander, Herman Lancaster, Lavelle Scott, A. H. Hurt, G. L. Garrison, G. L. Smith, Jesse Anderson, Harry Anderson, Weathersby, J. W. Rogillio, W. H. Harvey, C. H. Billett, Wray Bowie, J. R. Medlin, A. J. Cranford, Allen, Richard Tate and A. T. Palmer, Miss Josephine Moore and Mrs. McCormick, of Baton Rouge.

Mrs. A. H. Hurd entertained the members of the Tuesday afternoon club at her home when bridge games were enjoyed. Mrs. E. S. Moberly captured the high score prize and Mrs. Hugh Montgomery the consolation award. At the close of the games a tempting hot plate luncheon was served. The guests included Mesdames L. Stevens, J. A. Gilbert, A. T. Palmer, J. R. Medlin, Richard Tate, E. S. Moberley, Frank Montgomery and Hugh Montgomery.

Mrs. P. O. Benjamin is recovering after an illness of several weeks.

Circle two of the Baptist Missionary society met at the church recently for the first session after reorganization of the various circles for the year. Officers elected were Mrs. W. C. Purdy, chairman; Mrs. W. C. Hobson, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. H. B. Day, mission study leader; Mrs. L. Westmoreland, Bible study leader; Mrs. W. A. Rock, personal service chairman; Mrs. Paul Gaines, stewardship; Mrs. H. M. Lewis, white cross; Mrs. D. L. Moore, pianist.

Circle one of the Methodist Missionary society met recently with Mrs. J. L. Coleman, with Mrs. D. H. Allen presiding. The subject of the session was a study lesson from the text, "That Other America." A social period followed. Refreshments were served. Those inattendance were Mesdames D. H. Allen, D. Fortner, M. L. Piper, I. M. Heflin, J. E. Bethea, A. B. Kelly, C. C. Loyd, C. K. Smith, Charles Coltharp, Buckles, J. Land and Bryan Foster.

Burnished Copper Gleams On Black Cocktail Frock

Sleek suavity is the keynote of this Paris costume which Alix designs for cocktail parties during the Christmas season. It is all black from hat to dress hem. The frock—designed with big sleeves and a slender skirt whose only fullness is in front—is fastened with big buttons of hammered burnished copper. The felt toque is draped forward and finished with a bow. Gloves and bag are of antelope.

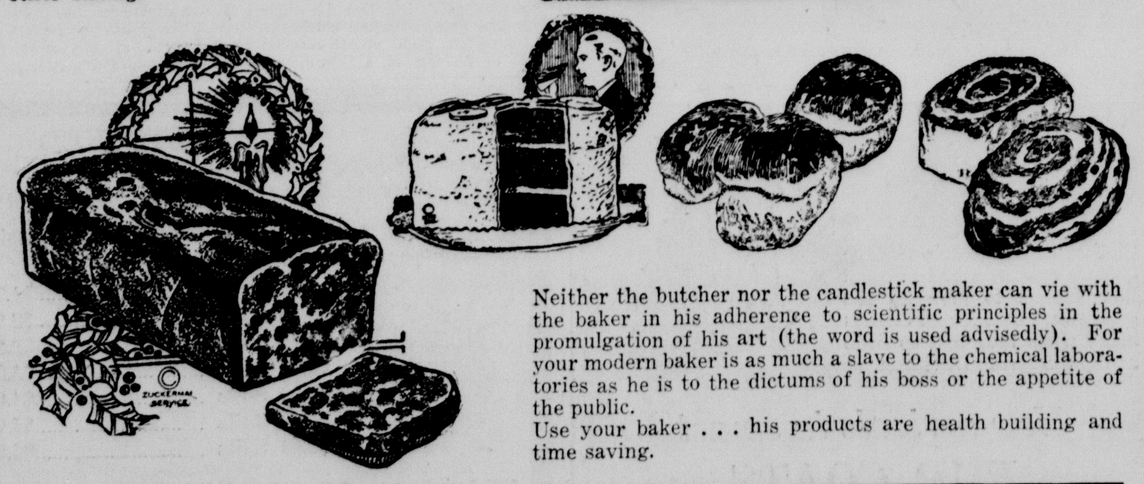
MY BAKER

IS DOING MY BAKING

Your busy season is here, Mrs. Housewife! You need all your strength to keep up with the demands that are being put upon you during this holiday rush —your baker can relieve you of your most strenuous duty—and that is baking Christmas cakes, pies and other baking.



Neither the butcher nor the candlestick maker can vie with the baker in his adherence to scientific principles in the promulgation of his art (the word is used advisedly). For your modern baker is as much a slave to the chemical laboratories as he is to the dictums of his boss or the appetite of the public.

Use your baker . . . his products are health building and time saving.

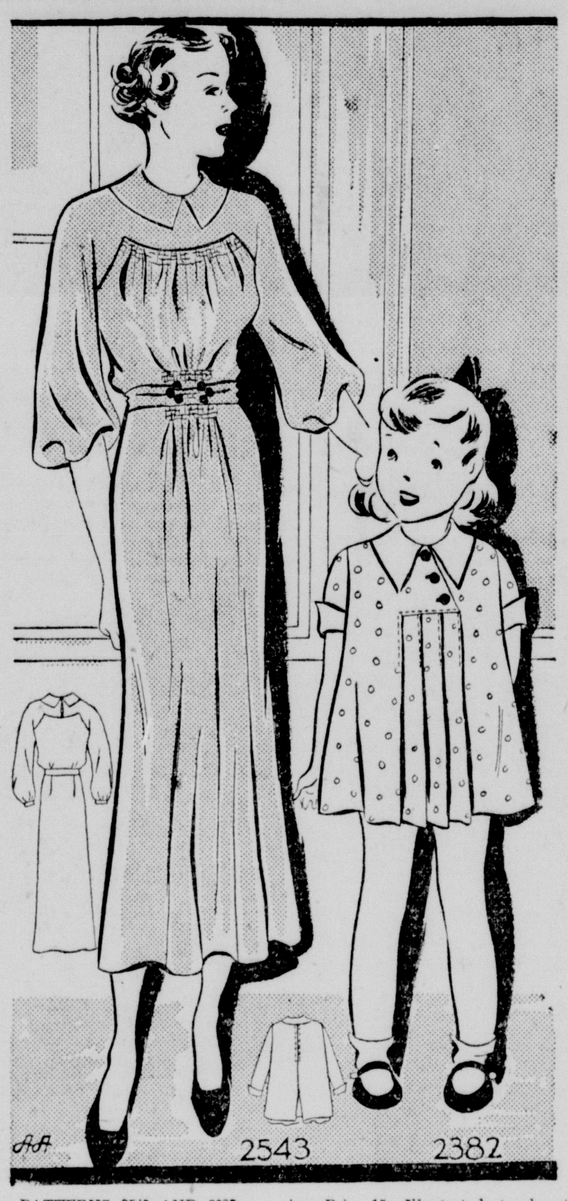
High Style At Low Cost



PATTERNS 2543 AND 2382

Whether you're the mother of a daughter—or daughter, herself, you're sure to find irresistible charm at low cost, in pattern 2543. Softly styled—it combines an easy sleeve-and-yoke-in-one feature with smart shirring at bodice and center waist—for that new front fullness that's so flattering. Satin or jewel-tone crepe would answer for any winter gaiety. The Tiny Tot who wears pattern 2382, has a warm, practical ensemble comprised of pleated frock and bloomers. Challis or light serge would be nice.

Pattern 2543 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 4 1-8 yards 39 inch fabric. Price 15c.

Pattern 2382 is available in sizes 2, 4, 6 and 8. Size 4 takes 2 1-4 yards 36 inch fabric and 3-8 yard contrasting. Price 15c. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included with each pattern.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Anne Adams pattern, THIRTY CENTS (30c) for both. Write name, address and style number, BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

DON'T WAIT! SEND NOW FOR THE WINTER PATTERN BOOK! You need all the advice Anne Adams gives you on keeping the family thriftily and attractively dressed. You need to know more about clothes etiquette, more about fabrics and fashions, more about glorifying your type! PRICE OF BOOK FIFTEEN CENTS. BOOK AND PATTERN TOGETHER, TWENTY-FIVE CENTS.

Address orders to Monroe Morning World, pattern Department, 243 West 17th Street, New York, N. Y.

Wade, Jr. those present were, Mrs. Joseph Curry, Mrs. Fred Cassil, Mrs. Annie Crothers, Mrs. Magruder Adams, Mrs. John Hughes, Mrs. Marable Harper, Mrs. Joseph Whitaker, Mrs. Willie Hudnall, and the hostess, Mrs. Thomas Wade, Jr. The vice-president, Mrs. Joseph Curry, presided. The minutes were read and reports made. Business was disposed of. At the close of the meeting tea and cakes were served.

Miss Bessie Muir left St. Joseph recently for Baton Rouge, where she expects to make her home in the future.

Mrs. Spencer Harris and her daughter, Miss Mildred Harris, visited Natchez, Miss.

Mrs. Theodosia La Cour left for Chicago, Ill., to visit her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Vanlandingham, for the remainder of the winter.

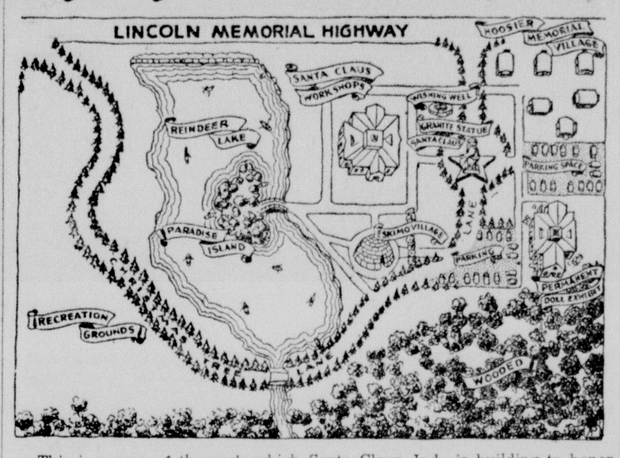
Fifty guests enjoyed the benefit entertainment given by the Tensas Garden club at the Farrar house. The various rooms were bright for the occasion with decorations of autumn leaves, redberries, and mistletoe, appropriate to the holiday season. A pretty Christmas tree was placed on a table in the entrance hall. A chicken-spaghetti supper was served at 7 o'clock and after the supper, games of cards were played. The winners at each card table were presented with appropriate souvenirs. Philip Watson drew the lucky number for the entrance prize, a box of candy. Clarence Reiber won a beautifully decorated cake, and Curry MacPherson a handsome center piece. The proceeds from the party will be donated to a Christmas fund.

Mrs. Edward J. Lynch and Mrs. Harold Monnot entertained the Cosmopolitan club at the Farrar house. Members of the program committee served as leaders. G. L. Burleson gave an interesting talk on the cotton control program. A plate lunch was served when the program was concluded. There was a good attendance of club members.

Miss Hazel Lindsay, Miss Roberta Turpin, and Mrs. William Harper spent the day recently with Mrs. Samuel Alsop at her home, "Routhwood," near Newellton, La.

The general elevation of Kaffa, a district in the southwest part of the great Abyssinian plateau, is about 8,000 feet, while several peaks are over 10,000 feet.

Big 'Estate' For St. Nick Gift Of Santa Claus, Ind.



This is a map of the park which Santa Claus, Ind., is building to honor jovial Saint Nick. It will cover 32 acres when completed.

By Claude H. Wolff

SANTA CLAUS, Ind., Dec. 14.—(AP)—A child's dream of what Santa Claus' home looks like is becoming a reality here in southern Indiana.

Workshops, where toys will be made, an Eskimo village, a paradise island, a wishing well and a lake, on the banks of which reindeer will be free to roam, are being constructed on a 32-acre plot.

The Santa Claus Good Fellowship club, which is behind the project, intends to make the place a shrine to Saint Nick.

As the work proceeds, Postmaster Oscar L. Phillips watches his mail grow daily. Letters pour in from all parts of the United States, and from England, Ireland, New Zealand and Germany.

For many years now, children and grownups have sent cards or letters to this postoffice for remailing. Phillips expects to handle 1,000,000 pieces this year.

The little boys and girls who write him, telling what they want Santa to bring them, are asking for more dolls and bicycles than ever before.

"There are a lot of amusing letters, and some which make my heart ache," he says. "I am happy when I get letters from children that I know have parents able to provide for them, but it makes me sad when I open mail from poor little tots I know will get very little. It's a responsibility, being Santa Claus to the world."

This town—the population is 60—got its name in 1853, when a postoffice was allowed the little settlement.

"There was a German Methodist church organized here in 1848," explains Jess Fahr, one of the oldest residents, "and it had a Sunday school class which was very active. It was on suggestion of the class that the town, in need of a name, was called Santa Claus.

"It was just about Christmas time and the residents had tired of the slow stage-coach delivery of the mail once a month. They took the matter of a postoffice up with the government and now our little place is known all over the world."

"Yes, I Patronize the Independent Druggist Because He Has My Welfare at Heart"

Since I was a little girl, I have had nothing but splendid cooperation from the Monroe Home-Owned Druggist. My family before me was treated as I have been. Our problems are their problems and without their support, Monroe and Ouachita Parish would suffer.

461-MAY-35

Another good feature that people like about the Home-Owned Independent Druggist is . . . The Service they give you. No rain is too hard, the sun too hot but that he isn't on the job from morning till night . . . 24 hours a day to give his customers his service . . . a service that we cannot get along without.

When you patronize the home-town, home-owned druggist, you are keeping your money at home and not in banks in other states to be kept out of circulation.

'Broadway Melody Of 1936,' Musical Film At Paramount

Jack Benny Tops Cast In New Hit

Dazzling Array Of Stars And Talent In Outstanding Picture

SO PACKED with entertainment is "Broadway Melody of 1936," which yesterday came to screen at the Paramount theater, that it at once registers its right to acclaim as the greatest extravaganza yet to be made by Hollywood. Stars, story, music, dancing, all are present in satisfying and often thrilling form, so splendidly elaborate is the picture and so skilfully is it fashioned.

There is glorious comedy, and the story takes dramatic turns which set it above the usual vehicle of its type. The plot is superbly woven amid the gorgeously spectacular specialties, and the many song hits all fall naturally out of the streaming action of the production.

For players the cast has as its top personality the gifted Jack Benny, now lending to the screen the brilliant talents that have made him a star of stage and the outstanding genius of radio broadcasting. He handles a grand role perfectly and he has the most ample and able support from noted performers like Una Merkel, who rings the bell as a wise-cracking secretary; Robert Taylor, a grand romantic male lead, and others.

Eleanor Powell wins triple honors in this picture for she is not only seen as the "world's greatest feminine tap dancer," but handles the ballerina demands finely, and in addition proves she is a fine dramatic actress.

It is practically an all-star cast. Among other triumphant players in the cast are Sid Silvers, "king of stooges," June Knight, Vilma and Buddy Ebsen, Nick Long, Jr., Frances Langford, Harry Stockwell, Robert Wildhack and a great many more.

The spectacles are done with unprecedented charm. Among the musical highlights are five great songs by Nacio Herb Brown and Arthur Freed—"Broadway Rhythm," "I've Got a Feelin' You're Foolin'," "On a Sunday Afternoon," "Sing Before Breakfast," and "You Are My Lucky Star." The elaborate ballet by Albertina Rasch for the last named is one of the outstanding sequences in all musical pictures.

The dances were staged by Dave Gould, creator of the "Carioca" and "Continental," and Gould's new creations add further glory to his record.

Roy Del Ruth directed with that skill for which he is famous and this Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture boasts an all-around splendor in which he has a large share of credit.

With John W. Considine, Jr., as the producer for M-G-M, "Broadway Melody of 1936" may be set down as a film that every lover of good entertainment should see.

The story was an original by Moss Hart, famous on Broadway. The screen play was prepared by Jack McGowan, Sid Silvers and Harry Conn.

The killdeer, commonest American plover, often surrounds its nest with small pebbles and fragments of shells.

Jack Benny, the Broadway columnist, tells Eleanor Powell that she'll have to stop masquerading as the French star, "Arlette," because it is interfering with his plans. The scene is from the giant musical production, "Broadway Melody of 1936," the attraction at the Paramount theater for today and Monday.

Carl Brisson as a rough, tough sailor-bouncer in a night club, was a Sailor Bold with a Voice of Gold. Arline Judge, the night club entertainer, who changed his humble melody on mine into melody divine. It's a scene from the romantic comedy, "Ship Cafe," the attraction at the Paramount theater for Tuesday and Wednesday, with William Frawley, Mady Christians, Eddie Davis, Grant Withers and others in the supporting cast.

Frank Mitchell, Ray Walker, Alice Faye and Jack Durant, four good reasons for seeing "Music Is Magic," the melodious comedy drama in which four dizzy vaudevillians caper into the movies. It's the attraction at the Paramount theater for Thursday and Friday and has Bebe Daniels, Rosina, Mitchell and Durant, Andrew Tombes and Ed Gargan in the singing and dancing comedy cast.

Maureen O'Sullivan, fresh from her triumphant role in "Anna Karenina," is teamed with Norman Foster in "The Bishop Misbehaves," a Metro filmization of the Broadway mystery comedy hit. Norman Foster is seen as an innocent bystander who gets caught in a web of both mystery and romance while the bishop is portrayed by the English star, Edmund Gwenn, as an eccentric character in love with amateur sleuthing and matchmaking. The picture, playing at the Capitol Wednesday, is a hilarious comedy.

"East of Java," the film in which Charles Bickford, its "he-man" star, was nearly killed by a ferocious lion and was at death's door for days, is playing at the Capitol theater today and Monday. Above we see Bickford and Elizabeth Young in the arms of Frank Albertson, as the principals who take part in the actual jungle scenes, treachery, bitter-sweet romance and real animal fights that made front page news all over the land when Bickford was clawed and bitten in the throat by a 400 pound lion, during production.

Wallace Beery plays the father who goes through fire and brimstone to win the affection of his son, Jackie Cooper, in "O'Shaughnessy's Boy," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's great story of circus life, coming to the Capitol theater Tuesday. This is the picture that is described as bringing to the screen for the first time the spirit of the circus with all its thrills, excitement, and color and is recommended as superb entertainment for every age. Spanky McFarland, Leona Maricle and Henry Stephenson are also prominently cast.

Here is the exciting climax in "Freckles." Through the orphan's courage a small band of murderous timber thieves is captured in their cabin hide-out, finding Tom Brown the hero unconscious. Carol Stone and Virginia Weidler have other important roles in this forest romance by Gene Stratton Porter and produced by RKO-Radio. The 2,000,000 published copies of this book makes "Freckles" the largest selling romance in all history, a story that all people will love best. It's at the Capitol Thursday and Friday.

Jungle Film Is Showing At Capitol

Charles Bickford Starred In 'East Of Java,' Thrilling Picture

ONE of the most thrilling and tense of all jungle productions is Universal's "East of Java," starring Charles Bickford, opening today at the Capitol theater for a run of two days. Bickford, cast as an American gangster fleeing from East Africa with "G" men on his trail, champions seven cowering human beings, including a beautiful woman, against seven lions, when a tramp schooner is wrecked on the reefs of a jungle isle a hundred miles from the nearest civilization. This is the film in which Bickford was attacked by a crazed lion and nearly died of his wounds.

In the cast are Elizabeth Young, Frank Albertson, Leslie Fenton, Clarence Muse, and many other noted players of stage and screen. The production was directed by George Melford from the book, "Tiger Island," by Gouverneur Morris, and adapted for the screen by Paul Perez and James Ashmore Creelman. Paul Kohner produced.

The story opens with Bickford fleeing the East African port of Simba Sao in the tramp schooner "Sea Dragon," Leslie Fenton, master. The ship is shipping, beside human cargo, a consignment of lions and other jungle beasts, to America. A tropical hurricane sweeps the ship onto reefs, humans and beasts escape to the island, and the fight for the survival of the fittest starts. Hunger, thirst, lack of firewood, fever and jungle insanity follow as the beasts sweep closer and closer to their human prey.

Who survives the gruelling battle is told only in the last part of the last reel. Bickford, in a role that calls for him to be half human, half beast, as he fights off his enemies, both human and animal, handles each situation with brute ferocity and force.

Notes On Life In Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD—Old Buffalo Bill would have been a delight to a modern movie press agent.

The boys who strive to keep picture names in the limelight are frequently called upon to corral their stars for personal appearances at such functions as theater openings, meat-market premieres (with floodlights) and women's club meetings. Corraling, in some stellar instances, is the proper word. Some of the girls and boys whose smiling faces decorate the news pictures of the events the next day have been cajoled, coaxed, figuratively cudgeled into the line of fire. Not that they are averse to publicity, but you know how it is.

Cody Was Different

Old Buffalo Bill, now, was different. You can take Courtney Ryley Cooper's word for it. Cooper was Colonel Cody's press agent.

"There was never a star," reposeth Cooper, "more agreeable to a wild-eyed press agent's stunts—and I was wild-eyed!"

Cooper, by reason of his close association with the famous scout, is here to collaborate with Grove Jones on the script of Cecil B. DeMille's Buffalo Bill picture.

"If I staged a contest on 'Who is Buffalo Bill?" and wanted him to distribute the prizes at 10," says Cooper, "he would be there at 8:30. If I wanted him to head a circus parade in Chicago where parades were forbidden, he was right there. Once he threatened to shoot me for the way a stunt turned out, but when I showed up three weeks later he said, 'You're not worth shootin', Bad Lands. Let's have a drink!"

Jack Ketch, the famous English executioner whose nickname was applied to his successors for nearly two centuries, was appointed public hangman in 1663, historians believe.

CHAPTER XXVI

The little valley opened about 100 yards from Pulaski road. The driveway led downward, swinging sharply to the left and then to the right again in a barren region that seemed almost desert-like. Once out of sight of the main highway, Bobby could see nothing but the bleak, grimy hillocks. There was no grass; here and there a stunted, soot-blackened bush clug to a slope; otherwise there was not a sign of life.

The driveway kept on going down hill; and at last it made one more turn and came out in a queer little hollow. At the other side, a few rods away, there was a precipitous bank, crowned by a long row of gone-to-seed dwellings; on the right hand and on the left a similar bank hemmed the place in. And in the center of the hollow there was a long, ancient building of red brick with a time-stained roof of galvanized iron. Nestling against the banks were broken-down ruins of odd-looking conical brick structures.

"A brick yard!" said Bobby suddenly. That, obviously, was what the place had been—once. A deposit of workable clay must have been dug out of this hollow, at one time. The remains of the kilns were still in evidence; the long, low building in the center must have been the—well, thought Bobby, that must have been where they did whatever it is people do to bricks when they get them ready for the ovens.

It was perfectly clear that no bricks had been made here for many a year. But it was equally clear that the central building was still in use. A freshly-painted black chimney rose from the farther end, with a wisp of smoke threading its way up toward the evening sky; and surrounding the whole thing there was a new, business-like fence of woven wire, seven feet high, with barbed-wire strands on the top and a substantial gate at the point where the driveway entered. Inside this gate three or four cars were parked.

As Bobby drove up, a man got up from a seat beside the gate. He let himself out and strolled up to Bobby's car with insolent slowness, his thumbs hooked in his belt. He wore no coat, and his vest was unbuttoned; and beneath his left armpit the black butt of a revolver, tucked away in a shoulder holster, was plainly visible.

He was a hard-looking proposition, this man, and as Bobby stopped the car the man bent a distinctly unfriendly look upon him.

"What do you want?" he asked.

Bobby did his best to look confused and lost.

"Why," he said, "I was looking for a short-cut over to—to GGrand River boulevard. I thought this was it."

"Well, it isn't," said the man.

"Oh," said Bobby. He looked at the building with what he hoped was just the right degree of innocent interest. "What is this?"

"Never mind what it is," said the man. "This's a private road, and you're trespassing. Scram!"

He casually moved his vest back, to give Bobby a better look at the revolver. Bobby grinned suddenly. "Okay, partner," he said. He backed up and swung around, while the guard stood watching him with sullen suspicion. Then, casting a last glance at the erstwhile brick plant, Bobby drove up the roadway to Pulaski road again.

On his way back to town Bobby was the prey of a pleasurable excitement, not unmixed with an even more pleasurable feeling of self-congratulation. He had found something queer, that was certain; something almighty queer, tucked away in that inaccessible hollow, surrounded by an unclimbable fence and guarded by a surly watchman with a revolver. Was this the place Mark Hopkins and MacFarlane had visited the afternoon before- Where else could they have gone? If their goal had been some place on Central street they would not have used Pulaski road at all; if they had gone to the steel mill they would have used Turney road, which led directly to the front entrance.

The reddish dust on Hopkins' car testified that they had gone along Pulaski road back of the steel mill; and if they had done that, this queer place back in the hollow seemed to be the only conceivable goal.

"I've got somthing!" Bobby told himself jubilantly. "I'll bet a dollar to an old doughunt that's the place Larry Glenn's looking for. Had I better tell Larry about it right off—or should I try to find out something more before I do? Gosh, I wish I could get just a little more dope before I tell him. Maybe I can. Waiting another week won't hurt anything. . . . Anyhow, I'll go see him tonight."

He returned the car to the rental agency, walked to a drug store, entered a telephone booth, and rang Larry's office in the federal building. Larry was still in. He greeted Bob warmly and invited him to have dinner with him.

They ate at a pleasant little restaurant near the federal building, and there Bobby guilefully told Larry just enough about Mark Hopkins' mysterious trip to whet the federal man's interest. He did not tell him of having found the peculiar building in the hollow off Pulaski road, but he told him enough to convince him that he was on the trail of something.

"That's fine," said Larry. "As soon as you get anything definite, let me know so I can get some of our men working on it. You see, Bobby—all I want from you is just a hint; no more than that. We can run it down. If our suspicions are correct, running the thing down may be rather dangerous, and I don't want you to run any risk of getting hurt. Will you promise me to call me as soon as you have anything we can work on?"

He looked at Bobby with his keen gray eyes and Bobby solemnly promised. He felt a trifle guilty about concealing his knowledge; but he was determined to vindicate himself in the elder man's estimation for his lamentable flyer in stolen bonds; and besides, he rather enjoyed the thrill of amateur detective work.

Their food was served and they began to eat. Larry carved off a bite of steak and ate it thoughtfully; then he laid down his fork and knife and leaned forward confidentially.

"I'm going to tell you something that you're not really entitled to know about," he said. "I wouldn't do it, except that it concerns Jean."

Bobby looked up, startled.

"We raided the apartment your friends the Lewises were occupying," said Larry. "They'd got out before we got there, but we did get plenty of fingerprints. Today I got the identifications back from Washington, and I want you to know about them.

"To begin with, your friend Lewis—the man who so kindly put that bond deal in your way—is a known criminal. He used to be a confidence man, out west—specialized in selling bogus oil and gold stocks, and did time in Colorado for swindling, some six or eight years ago. A year or so ago he fell in with the Red Jackson gang of bank robbers. Since then he's been one of Jackson's right-hand men. And this may interest you—it seems he specializes in disposing of the 'hot' securities that the gang picks up in its travels."

He looked at Bobby with a grimly humorous expression. Bobby could only murmur, "GGood Lord!"

Larry went on, "But that isn't the most important part. It's this chap Harkins I wanted to tell you about, because he's been seeing more or less of Jean. I guess. Listen.

"We got his prints out of that apartment, too, and sent them in. And it develops that he's a gunman from Oklahoma. He did a term in the Oklahoma pen for robbery a few years ago. Came out on parole last summer, and is believed to have joined the Jackson gang shortly thereafter. His association with Lewis, of course, proves that he joined it.

"So that's who he is. You can see, now, can't you, why I hate to see Jean even listing him among her casual acquaintances? Fortunately, he's no more than that. But even so.

"I'm not so sure," said Bobby miserably. "The other night, after you left her place, she and I—we had a kind of a quarrel about him. She said she'd been seeing quite a lot of him. I'm—" he paused, and grew red—"I'm afraid she's getting sort of infatuated with him."

Larry looked worried.

"We can't have that," he said. "Dam it, Bobby, we've got to look out for that girl. We'll have to warn her as soon as she gets back to Dover."

Bobby stared unhappily at the table clock, remembering what had happened to him the last time he had tried to warn Jean about Sandy.

"Maybe you'd better speak to her about him," he said. "You're older. She'd be more apt to listen to you. She'd just think I was being jealous."

Larry nodded.

"I'll tell her," he said grimly. "It'd be terrible if she let herself get entangled with a man like that. When's she coming back to Dover?"

"Next week, I guess," said Bobby.

"Well, there's breathing space," said Larry. "It's a cinch Harkins won't be showing up around here for a while yet. That outfit knows by this time that Dover is hot."

He shook his head thoughtfully.

"I ought to have warned her as soon as I found out she'd been a witness for him," he mused. Bobby looked up anxiously. "How was that?" he asked. Larry told him how Jean had gone to the police station to give Sandy an alibi for the Friday afternoon of the payroll holdup.

Bobby wrinkled his forehead in a desperate effort to remember.

"Hey, wait!" he said. "Something's screwy somewhere. If she got the afternoon off the day I went in to see Montague . . . Larry, that was a Thursday, not a Friday!"

"Thursday! Are you dead certain?"

"Of course I am."

Larry's lips tightened.

"We've got to let Jean konw who this man is, the moment she gets back," he said grimly. "We can't let her go on drifting toward trouble any longer—"

But fate was against him. For when Jean returned, Larry Glenn was to be far away—and she refused even to listen to Bibby's attempt to warn her.

PUBLIC FORUM

CHRISTMAS HOURS

To the Editor:

Softly, silently as a cat treads, the atmosphere ushers in Christmas, with a tang in the air of holly, melodies and wintery luster. The winds whispers in the trees, the autumn leaves ride the breezes to a theme song of Christmas.

The weary sun slips lazily over the hills leaving silver clouds tangled in the cold lavender skies. Fringing the landscape are the dark pines and the red glowing oaks. Against this natural background stretch the brilliant shrubs, holly, maple and haw. The hours flit by, and the sun dips into a cluster of crimson-gold. As dusk blows in the hours hold a deeper and softer charm.

But the scene mellows even more as the moon stipples upon the east. Slowly a beam drifts by the windows radiating bits of cold ivory and gold. A reflection of wintery luster and smoothness with brightness reigns without. Alone I sit by my window, watching the sleeping world. Far away a building reaches up and up into the sky, a shadowery, mysterious thing that in the morning will be only gray stone. Then, nearer are the chimneys of houses, and dim lights beneath the maze of roofs. Santa Claus makes his rounds. But the world sleeps and there is no sound.

Always those dawning and closing hours of Christmas bring an odd, sweet joy. The visionary young and the very old glimpse the same portrait, and feel in the silence the melody. Those are hours that come and pass. Even too grand to be registered by the ledger-thumbing memory.

Gathering Of Families For Christmas Is To Start Shortly

Few Gatherings Are Scheduled Christmas

Several Monroe Homes Are Noted For Open House Celebrations; Most Observances To Be Family Affairs

By Eve Bradford

The Christ Child's gentle message, "Peace on earth, good will to men," will soon hover over the city like a soft amen. Very soon now the beautiful symbols of Christmas will come to gladden our lives—crimson holly, fragrant pine, altars gleaming, soaring incense, belfries singing, the laughter of children, horns tooting, steaming plum pudding, gayly-wrapped gifts, carols and, above everything else, our loved ones all together again.

"Home for Christmas"—the sweetest words in all the world today. Yes, they will all come trooping home this week. The airways will fly extra planes, Pullmans will be crowded with students and highways will be dotted with automobiles carrying precious cargoes. Like homing pigeons they all find the Christmas fireside. There is not much variation in the quality of Christmas in homes of high worldly station and just ordinary homes. In the stately colonial home, the modest New England farmhouse, the old Kentucky home, the plantation mansion of the deep south, the cottage among the sycamores on the banks of the Wabash or the little gray home in the west, the day will be distinctly a family one. Simple affection will rule and stronger than ever will become the tie that binds.

Most homes in Monroe will be en famille, but there are a few where society will gather, as is the custom every year. The Abe Arent menage swarms with friends all day and many a glass of sparkling vino of Abe's favorite brand is lifted to the genial hosts who open wide their door to a gala open house.

Oceans of egg-nogg and hot Tom and Jerry has long made the R. L. Woods open house on Christmas day ring merrily down the corridors of time. The pot-pourri of talk reaches crescendo along about one o'clock, noon, when the festivities are supposed to be over.

We haven't as yet received our annual invitation to the Charles Reid's open house Christmas day, but no doubt they will not alter the custom. Their entertainments are always charmingly informal and rendered exceedingly interesting by the presence of their lovely children. Charles, Jr., is the ideal movie type, with his mother's beautiful brown eyes and his father's sang froid.

We didn't have to use opera glasses to spy on the activities of society last week. They were out en masse at the dinner party at the Virginia hotel, where that gallant company of Alexandria Rotarians dined and wined their Monroe colleagues to the queen's taste. Rook Harrison swept past us on the arm of that good-looking husband of hers. She wore an intriguing little gold veil over a red rose adorned turban. A long, floor-length black skirt and a silver lame blouse completed a most distinctive toilette. When A. V. Miller addressed the assemblage, no doubt he was inspired by the presence of his beautiful wife, Patty, who wore a smart black model with shaggy white chrysanthemum at her throat and close-fitting hat with a flaring veil. The years have touched lovely Patty Miller very, very lightly. The only way you can reckon time is when she talks about her son, who is a student at Tulane university. Otherwise she is still the lovely golden-haired girl. At one end of the long dinner table Edgar Florsheim presided with a handsome attorney from south Louisiana. They were so deeply engrossed in the art of brew a cafe broule, the address of the speaker went quite over their heads. The concoction was ladled carefully into glasses and passed along the board. It must have rivaled the stuff brewed by the gods, if one can reckon by the smiles of satisfaction on the faces of those who sipped. My word! but Clarence Faulk has fairly grasped the bull by the horns so far as age is concerned. He talked glibly the other night of voyaging about on the China Clipper. A few years ago he went back and forth about his business with never a "flighty" thought. Today he cannot fly high enough and is restless when his feet touch terra firma. The man never grows old who "lives in thoughts, not breaths, in feelings, not in figures on a dial." Vivian Harper was looking unusually well in a King's blue, rhinestone-studded model with wide-brimmed blue hat that matched her eyes perfectly. Mabel Wallace, vibrant and animated as usual, brightened the corner of her table, where she sat with that extremely likeable person, her husband, Charlie Will Wallace. Mable was sartorially perfect in a cocktail frock of black with a chic little black hat. Suzanne Hirsch, who assured us she would positively remain at home now until after the holidays, wore a fascinating little black satin hat with little ostrich feathers standing upright on the crown. Her silver blouse and black skirt was the very essence of style. Saw that good-looking Allen Norris bending low to catch whatever it was his dinner partner, Elizabeth Cosper, was saying. Mrs. Aubrey Haas, always lovely and always so friendly, was wearing a rust-colored dinner frock. Aubrey waxed poetical and oratorical down at the speaker's table.

Christmas presents are not the only gifts being selected these days. Saw Mrs. P. A. Poag selecting a glamorous evening frock for that equally glamorous daughter, Margaret, who will breeze into town this week from Whitworth college. When Jane Dawkins arrives from Mary Baldwin college, she will find some breath-taking frocks ready to be donned. She will take part in the wedding of her brother, Benjamin, who walks altarward on the first on January.

There is one person in Monroe who will draw one long sigh of relief when the new T. B. sanatorium is built. Mrs. G. B. Cooley's dinner hour varies like the wind and she never knows when Bert is going to drop the Weto's anchor. He never misses a day steaming up the river to Pine Top on board the Weto. Dinner, necessarily, has to wait until he returns and sometimes it is far into the night. However, Mrs. Cooley's is long suffering, as her heart strings respond to the music of the pines in this breeze-swept spot where the new sanatorium is being erected.

With pansies blooming in the T. O. Bancroft yard and pink japonicas unfolding their petals in the Allen Sholars yard, it is hard to believe that Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Ferguson are buried under ten feet of snow up in Canada. They will dig themselves out, however, in time to reach home for Christmas. The X-ray hands of the famous nerve specialist Mr. Ferguson has consulted are doing wonders for him and many there are who hope a permanent cure will be effected.

Lights gleam again from the J. W. McWilliams home. And it is about time. We have missed Mrs. "Mac," whose presence is absolutely necessary to perfect our design for living. A summer in Wisconsin and a few leisurely months spent in the bosom of her family in Memphis sends her back home, glowing and happy and eager to welcome friends in that big house of hers. The walls still echo with the merry days of yore when life in Monroe was lived on a broader scale.

Defies Superstition

Friday, December the thirteenth may have meant another unlucky day for you, but to Jacquelyn Walker, lovely little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Walker, Jr., it was one of the happiest days of the whole year. She reached the interesting age of six on that day; and just to prove how lucky the number thirteen can be, she invited thirteen intimate friends to her home to share the festivities. The entire afternoon was devoted to the playing of games, with the cutting of the birthday cake a happy climax. The tea table was laden with delicious tid-bits, served with ice cream. Christmas favors were distributed before departure.

Pocketbooks Influenced 1935 Fashions With Double-Duty Styles Taking Lead

By Adelaide Kerr
(Associated Press Fashion Editor)

PARIS, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Pocketbooks and budgets greatly influenced 1935 fashions.

Though costly and luxurious furs, fabrics and jewels were shown, in the heart of the mode appeared scores of costumes which enabled women to be well dressed inexpensively.

Simpler day frocks on which a change of accessories could work magic, less ostentatious use of furs, and the dinner suit, ready for all sorts of after 5 o'clock engagements were among "count the cost" trends.

Another trend was the linking of fashions to current news instead of historical periods. Once the Regency and Renaissance modes were launched designers turned to the 1935 map.

A gold braided, double breasted military mode stepped in. The Italian Renaissance faded into fascist fashions and China, Russia, Spain and Greece influenced the mode.

Drapery appeared on the bodies of day frocks and in huge scarfs and swathed hiplines of evening gowns, making 1935 "Drapery Year."

The silhouette changed. Curves came back. Busts, slender waists and molded hips appeared. Skirts were shortened for both day and evening —slightly widened in the spring, very slim this winter. More trousered skirts were seen than in any previous year.

Shoulders were broadened, though not squared, and sleeves were struck by inflation. Necklines climbed high by day and were cut to nude, daring decolletes by night.

New rough-surfaced and shiny fabrics appeared. Black took the center of the color stage and held it. Pleats came in. Trains went out. Elaborate belts increased in importance. Huge fur and colored suede gloves were shown. Scores of tricky accessories from jeweled clips to metal padlocks appeared on frocks.

Heads and feet saw changes too. This was the year of "crazy" hats with feathers much in the mode. Veils grew increasingly important. "Something on the head" became almost an edict for evening.

The spirit of 1935 fashions is reflected in this black crepe frock by Lelong. It is one of the practical "after-5-o'clock" models which can do duty for cocktails, dinner or the theater and is cut on simple lines. Horizontal body drapery molds it to reveal the figure's curves and the slender skirt is finished with a softly draped back. It has the high neckline and inflated sleeves of 1935. Finally it is accented by a jeweled silver ornament. Louise Bourbon designs the eccentric hat of black felt topped with two swirls of black paradise feathers.

Sopie Odom is a patient in the Riverside sanitarium and will be glad to have his friends call.

Little Theater Notes

What a joy it would be if every household could boast as efficient a staff of helpers as those who comprise Mr. Latimer's staff in "The Dover Road!"

The maids and footmen do not have very much to say, as is certainly proper in a well-ordered establishment, but do they have plenty to do! We'll say so! And so will you, when you see Nita Fields, Eileen MacKinnon, H. C. Wroten, and Ulmer McDonald in our play Tuesday night at the auditorium of Northeast Center of Louisiana State university. Quiet, efficient, and quick are these four, and having made their mark by "doing," there'll come a time, and that very soon, when star parts will be found for them.

The successful production of a play depends almost as much on those who help with the properties, scenery, costumes, etc., as it does on those actually taking part. Jackson Purdy, Sazanne Hirsch, Charles Stubbs, Maude Stubbs, Frances McHenry, Ulmer McDonald, Louis Guerriero and Suzonne Kellogg have worked like Trojans in helping make the setting a success.

Cynthia Lee Love has the difficult role of prompter and general assistant, and excells in it.

To Mr. and Mrs. Neville, Miss Kate Key, Henry Gibbs, and Mr. Pittman, of Central Grammar school, to Dean Colvert and the boys of Northeast Center of Louisiana State university, to Delly Swayze, the News-Star—World, radio station KMLB, and the many friends who have loaned us furnishings, and helped in other ways with our production, we extend our heart-felt thanks.

And now to the citizenship of the Twin Cities, we make an appeal for encouragement by a large attendance at our play. We have worked very hard. Please do not disappoint us!

Entertains Club

All the symbols and beautiful colors of the Yuletide were employed by Miss Maible Hood when she entertained members of her Tuesday Night Bridge club with a typical Christmas party. Crimson poinsettias adorned the reception suite, where the card tables were covered with crimson. The score cards were miniature Santa Clauses.

Handsome toilette articles wrapped in novelty crimson paper were presented to Mrs. Herbert Rinehart and Mrs. W. C. Feazel for high scores.

The serving of a luscious supper course concluded the many courtesies extended by the hostess to Mmes. Bluett Poimboeuff, W. C. Feazel, Otto Miller, Roy Lee, Edward Harper, Jr., Herbert Rinehart, Sam Humphries and Marie Frazier, and Miss Katherine Averette.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. King had as their guest for the past week-end Mr. King's mother, Mrs. J. P. King and Miss Vera White of Sykes.

Charles McGuire, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman McGuire, has been critically ill for the past week.

'CHRISTMAS SEAL'

Miss Fay Bennett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Bennett, Bastrop, representing the girl on the Christmas seals this year. Miss Bennett appeared before civic clubs and other organizations of Bastrop in the interest of of the Christmas seal campaign of the Morehouse parish Tuberculosis and public health association.

* * *

Mrs. Amos Hood, who has been a patient at St. Francis sanitarium for the past two weeks, has recovered sufficiently to be removed to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hawkins, 200 Clayton street, West Monroe.

Program Presented

Members of the Lucie Love Music club were charmingly entertained Friday afternoon in the home of Betty Gene Greenwell on Stubbs avenue, with Mignon Griffing co-hostess.

A short program of Christmas music was presented as follows:

"Silent Night," Joan McDuffie.

"O Holy Night," Jean Tabb.

"The Bells," Jean McCormick.

Other piano numbers presented were:

Duet, "A Little Journey," Ann Buckley, Mrs. Tabb.

"Floating Along," "Waltz of the Raindrops," Ramona Daugherty.

Duet, "To and Fro," Mary Evelyn Booras, Mrs. Tabb.

Mrs. Greenwell read a very interesting paper on the origin of musical instruments.

Dinner Party Given

A beautifully planned dinner party at the Monroe hotel brought together members of the W. B. A. No. 26, with several national officers, Mrs. Pearl Croy, vice-president and director, of Birmingham, Ala., Mrs. Jennie Little, supreme captain, of Port Huron, Mich., and Mrs. Lucile Sharpe, managing deputy, of Birmingham, the guests of honor.

During the serving of the delicious five-course dinner, several clever entertainers were introduced. Outstanding was the brilliant song and dance number contributed by Miss Sue Cobb, dance pupil of Clarice Roan.

Members attending the banquet were Mrs. A. J. New, Mrs. Meddie Franklin, Mrs. Clara Cash, Mrs. Lettie Cash, Miss Clarice Roan, Mrs. Julia Clawson, Mrs. Gladys Poulon, Miss Sue Cobb, Mrs. Roberts, Mrs. Estelle Brantley, Mrs. Thelma Jones and Mrs. Asa Belle Cash.

FIRST AID WORK PLANNED BY WPA

Classes For Instruction To Be Given Here And Elsewhere

Plans to provide Red Cross first aid instruction for all works progress administration foremen and engineers in Louisiana were revealed here Saturday.

Arrangements for the state-wide instruction campaign, which will be conducted over a period of eight or nine weeks, were completed recently by Douglas Watters, state safety consultant, and Miss Margaret Fetner, Red Cross field representative in Louisiana. Four qualified Red Cross instructors, under the direction of Dr. L. H. Schraugher, assistant safety consultant, will give the courses.

In order to facilitate training, the state has been divided into eight districts, with each district subdivided into four sections. The instructors will work in one district at a time, moving on to the next as soon as the courses are completed. The eight districts are Monroe, Shreveport, Lake Charles, Alexandria, Lafayette, Baton Rouge, New Orleans and the parishes surrounding the latter city.

All classes will be arranged by the WPA district supervisor in cooperation with local Red Cross officers. In most instances men taking the courses will receive their first aid certificates from the local chapter. They will be taught the standard 30-hour first aid course, attending class three hours a day for five days. The instruction will be given during working hours.

WPA officials estimate the total enrollment of all classes will reach 3,000. The instructors are A. P. Granger, Herbert E. Burnham, Toxie R. Trim, and Warren Fortier, all of New Orleans. These men are WPA employes, authorized by the Red Cross to teach first aid anywhere in the state.

Although this instruction project has no direct connection with the Red Cross accident prevention program, officials here believe it will be of great benefit to the program in Louisiana. At the present time, 23 chapters in the state have appointed committees to work out plans for home and farm accident prevention campaigns.

Many of these communities participated in the nation-wide home inspection campaign during the last week in October. Millions of inspection blanks, listing a number of common home hazards, were distributed to school children during that week, with the request that they inspect and accident-proof their homes. Thousands of these blanks have been returned to Red Cross chapters all over the country and are now being analyzed. The findings of this campaign in Louisiana will be announced as soon as the survey is complete.

In addition to home and farm accident prevention activities, a number of Louisiana chapters are planning to establish highway first aid stations. After the first of the year members of the national first aid and life saving staff will be sent into the state to facilitate this work.

Courses will be given in Monroe immediately after Christmas, according to Mrs. W. C. Holstein, executive secretary of the Ouachtia parish chapter.

WEDDED FIFTY YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Britt, 813 Cypress street, West Monroe, who recently celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. They were married in Calhoun Nov. 24, 1885, the ceremony being performed by "Bob" McClendon. Mrs. Britt was the former Sarah Holman, whose father built the first railroad through Ouachita parish. Mr. and Mrs. Britt have lived in the parish all their lives. They have six children, four grandchildren and one great grandchild. Mr. Britt is 77 years old, and Mrs. Britt 67. The golden wedding celebration was attended by 200 guests, including all the children of the couple except one, who was unable to be present. Open house was held at the Britt home in West Monroe, culminating with a dinner and dance. Among the relatives attending were: Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Britt and children Faye and Elmo, Jr., West Monroe; Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Britt, Rodessa; Mr. and Mrs. George Toombs and daughter, West Monroe; Mr. and Mrs. Lester Toombs and grandson, West Monroe; Louis Toombs West Monroe; Mrs. Ethel Anderson, West Monroe; little Dorothy Sue Toombs, great granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Britt.

FIREMEN WILL SPONSOR SHOW FOR GOOD FELLOWS

The Monroe fire department will sponsor a benefit show to be held at the parish high school Friday night, Dec. 20. Following the show a dance will be given at Cherokee terrace in Hotel Frances, beginning at 9 o'clock and continuing until 2 a. m. Ten per cent of the proceeds will be donated to the Good Fellows Fund, and the balance will be used for the firemen's annual Christmas fund, which is used to furnish Yuletide gifts to children of the city.

NEW U. S. CABINET POST IS FAVORED

Principal Kenney Addresses Teachers At Saturday Meeting

The Monroe City Teachers' association met for a session at the Neville High school auditorium at 9 a. m. Saturday, when a program was held. The chief feature of the meeting was a talk by Dr. Charles Kenney on "A Set-Up I Would Like to See." He advocated the creation of a United States superintendent of education, headed by a cabinet officer at Washington. Also he urged the creation of an equalization fund from the federal government.

After the general assembly, there were conferences held of various school departments. E. L. Neville, superintendent of schools, announced that the holiday vacation will start on December 20 and that classes will resume on January 2.

The program for the general assembly was as follows: Business meeting, music by the Barkdull Faulk Rhythm band, highlights of the recent state convention of teachers by Miss Sara Bres and Miss Louise Moore, and inspirational address by Dr. Kenney.

The program of the primary conference was as follows: "Activities That Teach Good Citizenship," panel discussion led by Miss Kate Henry; "How the Discussion Period Is Used," by Miss Olive Myatt; "Round Table Discussion" by Miss Addie McNeill, Miss Verna Le Blanc, and Mrs. K. Wilkins.

The intermediate conference considered the following program: "One Cycle Plan of Geography I Would Like to See in Monroe," Miss Rosa Belle McDonald; "Unit Plan of Recitation in Teaching Geography," by Miss Edna McConnell; "The Elementary School Library," by Miss Violet Martin, "The National Geographic Council," by Miss Myrtle Rodgers.

The high school conference discussed "The Teacher's Tenure from the Classroom Teacher's Viewpoint," panel discussion led by Miss Mary Hester.

'PUBLIC ENEMY NO. 1'

Reproduction of Haydon-Haydon's famous poster, unveiled at ceremonies on Central Grammar school grounds Friday night, inaugurating the American Legion's campaign on behalf of public safety on the highways. The ceremonies were in charge of Barkdull Faulk Post No. 13. The campaign is sponsored by the Louisiana department of the Legion, in cooperation with the Standard Oil company and fifteen outdoor advertising companies, who have devoted their billboards to the subject.

LIONS CLUBS TO MEET IN GROUP

District No. 2 Will Be Entertained By Jonesboro And Hodge Units

District No. 2 of Lions clubs, comprising all clubs of northeast Louisiana, will be entertained by the Jonesboro-Hodge club on Thursday night, December 19, according to announcement made by W. C. Oliver, president of the Monroe Lions' club.

There will be a business meeting held in the camp recreation hall with J. C. Shows presiding, starting at 7 p.m. An hour later, the banquet will be held in the camp mess hall with Mr. Shows acting as toastmaster.

An interesting feature will be the limitation of length of addresess. The main address will be but five minutes in duration and all impromptu talks will be but one minute in length. Any person talking over the time set will be fined $1 a minute for every minute or fraction thereof.

The night's program will be as follows: Song, "America," led by Mike Kelly; prayer, Rev. Father J. C. Marsh; welcome address, two minutes, by Capt. S. A. Hall; response, Lion Berry of Winnsboro club, length two minutes; music, Miss Gladys Bayes and pupils; readings, "Street Car Ridge," by Sidney Miller, and "Italian Phone Call," also by Mr. Miller; introduction of Lions, each club; music, "The Last Roundup," Camp Colvin; "Mocking Bird" Harmony makers; address, five minutes, Warren O. Watson, district governor; impromptu talks, any one.

CATTLEMEN HOLD MEET AT TALLULAH

TALLULAH, La., Dec. 14.—(Special)—The Northeast Louisiana Livestock association composed of the livestock growers of East Carroll, Madison and Tensas parishes held a meeting of the cattlemen of the state here at the community club which was attended by 160 persons. This was said to be the largest assembly of livestock men ever gathered in this state before. A tour of the livestock farms of Tensas and Madison parishes followed by a barbecue luncheon was an interesting feature of the session.

J. H. Baughman of Tallulah, president of the local organization, presided. Arthur B. Gayle of Lake Charles, president of the Louisiana Cattlemen's association, addressed the assemblage, giving a brief history of the cattle industry and presenting an exhaustive discussion of the problems confronting the cattleman of America at the present time. Other speakers were C. T. Dowell, director of the experiment station at L. S. U., J. W. Bateman, director of agriculture extension department of L. S. U.; Steve Voelker, secretary of the Tallulah Productive Credit association and W. T. Cobb, beef cattle specialist of L. S. U. The 4-H clubs of the state were represented by John Hughes of East Feliciana parish.

PARISH HIGH STUDENTS GIVE PLAY, 'HONOR WINS'

A group of students of the Ouachita Parish High school, under the direction of Mrs. T. V. Simmons and Miss Zelda Moss, faculty members, presented a play entitled "Honor Wins," by Olive Parker, before the student body Friday afternoon.

Characters of the play were portrayed by Sam Walker, Eva Dale Coon, Billy Chappell, Bill Mays, Rudy Vandenberg, Chester DeCuir, Barbara Butler, Tommy Wyatt and George Stovall.

Mrs. George Moffett and Miss Ann Platt, members of the faculty, handled the stage arrangements.

PUBLIC URGED TO PURCHASE SEALS

Large Number Have Been Sent Out Through Mails; Returns Slow

While receipts of money in payment of Christmas seals are coming in daily to the office of the Ouachita Tuberculosis and Public Health association, returns are not as rapid as desired, Miss Bernice Wright, executive secretary, reported yesterday.

Miss Wright pointed out that this is in reality a community project and that all should seek to have a part, no matter how small, in the work. This year interest is heightened by the fact that a new tuberculosis sanatorium is being erected in this parish to care for cases.

Every seal that is issued to the local group has to be accounted for to the national association, hence it is important that the cash be received through the mails or when one is not able to remit, the seals should be returned.

The goal set this year is $5,000 and if all will do their part, this end can be realized, Miss Wright assured.

MARION EASTERN STAR ELECTS ITS OFFICERS

MARION, La., Dec. 14.—(Special)—Miss Alethia Cole has been elected as worthy matron of Marion chapter 150, Order of the Eastern Star, for the ensuing year. Other officers are as follows: associate matron, Mrs. Hattie Lane; worthy patron, Frank E. Wheelis; associate patron, B. K. Watson; secretary, Mrs. Emma J. Watson; Ada, Mrs. Loula Powell; Ruth, Mrs. Clara Powell; Esther, Mrs. Ninnie Brasher; Electa, Mrs. Ida Cole; Martha, Mrs. Eva Westbrook; warder, Mrs. Mollie Tucker; sentinel, J. O. Brown.

Platinum is found in iron meteorites, but in very small quantities.

CHAPTER CHOOSES OFFICERS

WINNSBORO, La., Dec. 14.—(Special)—The Mizpah chapter No. 15 of the Order of the Eastern Star elected the following officers to serve during the coming year: Miss Marjorie Moore, worthy matron; J. B. Evans, worthy patron; Mrs. Lilly Godfrey, associate matron; J. R. Smith, associate patron; Mrs. Mary Wooleridge, conductress; Miss Marie Duncan, associate conductress; John J. Ward, secretary; E. D. Walter, treasurer; Mrs. E. D. Walter, marshal; Miss Mary Frazier, chaplain; Mrs. Jennie Frazier, warder; the Star Points were appointed as follows: Mrs. Aline Evans, Ada; Mrs. Ollie Ward, Ruth; Mrs. Bessie Walters, Ester; Miss Lillian Frazier, Martha. All officers for the coming year will be installed at a meeting December 16.

WOMEN SHOPPERS FAVOR BAKE SHOP

Electrik Maid Provides Booths For Rest During Shopping

The Electrik Maid Bake shop, 404 DeSiard street, well known as a rendezvous of hunters, especially in the early morning hours, has also become popular with women shoppers. This popularity has been distinctly shown since the Christmas shopping season began, large numbers of women stopping at the shop each afternoon for a respite from their tour of crowded stores.

Booths in which the women may sit down and make a check of their shopping purchases and relax are available at the Electrik Maid Bake shop. G. K. Primos, proprietor of the shop, and members of his staff, are well known for the courtesy they extend customers and visitors.

The bake shop, which also has a delicatessen department, restaurant counter, soft drink counter and candy and cigar counter, caters to a wide trade.

At this time the shop's fruit cakes are in great demand. Christmas fruit cakes, as well as other types of cakes, pastries and rolls, are regularly carried in stock. Special cakes, with artistic decorations, are made to order by the shop for parties, weddings and other social events.

Turkey dinners are being served by the restaurant department several days each week, both at noon and in the evening.

The shop is open every minute of each 24-hour period.

Christmas Carols To Be Sung At Grace Church December 18

Program Is Sponsored By Student Musicians

Short Historical Explanation Of Songs To Be Prelude; Lowery Jefferson Organist; Mrs. Moffett Director

"Silent night, holy night, all is calm, all is bright."

Soon these beautiful reassuring words of our beloved Christmas carol will come ringing over the frosty air from the throats of young singers.

In Monroe the Christmas carols will be initiated by the Student Musicians' club on the night of the eighteenth at Grace church, where all the old songs of the nativity will feature the evening's program.

It is always well to have a short explanation on the nature and history of the carols as a prelude to the program, so Chester DeCuir will have something of interest to tell at this time. Christmas memories of our childhood will come trooping back when Lowery Jefferson and Billy Reagan render their organ and piano medley of Yuletide songs.

From afar off will come the words of Wesley's "Hark! the Herald Angels Sing, Glory to the New-born King!" The voices will come nearer and nearer and grow in volume and clearness until the doors are opened and the surpliced singers wend their way to the choir loft. "Silent Night" will be used for the recessional.

It is interesting to know that the first carol was sung eight centuries ago in the little Italian village of Grecia. It was Christmas when St. Francis of Assisi, in trying to find a way to make the Christmas message clear to the people, made the first creche or crib by having the manger with an ox and an ass and all the usual equipment of an Italian stable of that time, set up in the church, in order to represent the first Christmas, when the angels sang over the fields of Bethlehem, the night that Christ was born, "Glory be to God on high, and on earth peace, good will toward men." It is written that the brethren within the church and the crowds of the faithful who came and went with lighted torches poured out their hearts in praises to God. The love of the carol service of today does not spring from a love of the antique nor from the love of folk art, but from a sense of profound devoutness, such as these folk of a past age experienced.

Members of the Student Musicians' club extend a cordial invitation to the public to attend their program of Christmas carols, to be presented as follows:

Program Annotations—Chester DeCuir.

Prelude—Christmas Eve Memories, arranged for organ and piano, (Wilson), Lowry Jefferson and Billy Reagan.

The organist will be Lowery Jefferson. Mrs. George A. Moffett will direct the singers.

Birthdays Celebrated

Rosemary, nine years old, and Mac, seven, lovely little daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cascio, celebrate their birthday anniversaries together each year and invite their young friends to their home on Erin avenue to share the pleasures with them.

Considerable artistry featured the decorations of crimson and green, reminiscent of the Yuletide. Tall vases overflowing with red carnations and rose colored chrysanthemums were placed in the background of the reception suite, where the children romped and played during the entire afternoon. The prize winners were Ann Brown, Barbara Trigg and Alan Sugar. The favors presented to each guest were bags of candy wrapped in cellophane and decorated with miniature Santa Clauses.

The highlight of the afternoon's festivities was the cutting of the two beautifully embossed birthday cakes placed at either end of the lace covered refreshment table, centered with a mound of crimson carnations encircled with rep tapers in poinsettia candlesticks. Hot chocolate and fancy cakes gayly decorated in the Christmas colors were served by Mrs. Cascio, assisted by the celebrants' grandmother, Mrs. A. Pendola, and Miss Elise Collier.

Enjoying the gayety of the evening were: Vera Jo Cannon, Sara Elizabeth Morgan, Yvonne Cuhn, Alan Sugar, Barbara Ann Trigg, Florence Abrams, Ann Brown, Gwen Walker, Constance Spatafora, L. C. Harkness, Bobby Jean West, Mary Gold Richerson, Donald Wadly, Tom Flournoy, Joy Elaine Mickal, Jean Ansell, Ida Sophie Davidson, Bessie Ann Silverstein, Mary Alice Mickal, Jerry Sugar, Betty Jane Thompson, Adrienne Gaston, Angie Marie Rizzo, Virginia Newman, John Spatafora, Jr., Mary Louise Varino, Aulcy Burgess, Peggy Morrison, Sara and Frances Ritter, Mary Agnes and Jo Ann Rizzo, Wadell Elias, Christine Galloway and Phylis Arseneau.

Friends of Mrs. Jessie Sadler will be glad to know that her condition is improving nicely. Regret is being manifested, however, over her decision to spend the holidays in Memphis, where she is taking a rest cure in the home of her daughter, Mrs. H. H. Honnoll.

Christmas Time To Wear One Of Those New Hostess Gowns

Dress Should Please Relatives, Not Public

Clothes Are Designed To Accentuate Beauty In Home; Will Make Family Realize Mother's Prettiness

Fashion has a new recipe for Christmas dressing. This will be your day to wear one of the lovely new period hostess gowns. It should be as soft and glowing as the candlelight and as festive as the dinner over which you preside.

In direct contrast to this season of public-spirited entertaining, when opulence tries to outshine elegance and conversation is left hanging to keep another date, Christmas day should be unhurried, gracious, mellow rather than high-pitched. Fashion designs the mode in charming clothes that are keyed to gracious interiors and more intimate hospitality.

They are clothes to please your relatives instead of your public. For the first time, your family may see you as a Greek goddess, a Renaissance portrait, or a scintillating modern. Children home from school will suddenly realize how lovely their mother really is and roommates who accompanied them home will carry away a mental picture of their hostess for the rest of the year.

You will notice that most of the new at-home fashions have high necklines and long sleeves. There is not a hint of the negligee about the smartest of them.

Silver lame needs little or no trimming to enter the drawing room fashion picture. It is still elegant when treated to a simple surplice style and short full sleeves and tassel fringes.

There are several kinds of little evenings and there's a perfect outfit for each. There's the evening when you dine with another couple, by their own fireside, let us say, with a round of bridge afterward. For this, a long-sleeved dinner dress, a medieval teagowny kind of dress, black or rusty red, high in front but slit low in back. And then there's the evening when you dine out at a restaurant with a man who has said, "Yes, let's dress," and for this a long-sleeved black velvet dress again or perhaps an ankle-length short-sleeved bronze lame dress. With either, a silver fox cape and no hat. And then there's still another evening when the man says, "No, don't let's dress," and then your answer is a dark coat, a small dark hat, and a dark but festive street-length dress—for instance, a black wool skirt, a little longer than your day dress, a gold lame peasant blouse, or a black wool skirt with a shiny white satin blouse, or a black silk jersey dress with all the pleats in the black.

Tips for the Christmas shopper: The last word in finger luxury, pastel tinted gloves, lovely colors, such as lemon yellow, pale blush pink, turquoise blue, and wood violet; the kind of gloves that whisper seductively with a French accent. There are slip-on models with a deep cuff that wrinkle smartly above your dark suits or afternoon and dinner ensembles. They look like the delicate tints of bon-bons and are luxurious accents for dramatizing an otherwise ordinary black dress. And so are the stunning white gloves trimmed with either gold or silver braid. They are made with decorative cuffs where the braid is used. Or you can choose the rich appearing thick white doeskins, without any adornment except a few rows of tucks or plaits in the cuff section. Anybody would gloat over such a gift.

Pearl costume jewelry has never been lovelier, with the new velvet and twisted pearl creations heading the list. Three strands of graduated pearls that just show in front are attached to a velvet band that ties at the back. A strand of medium sized pearls braided with narrow black or colored velvet ribbon fashions rather old time and very romantic bracelets and a necklace or head band. All tie in place and you can easily match the color of the velvet ribbon to the shade of the dress you wear with these new accents. Another pearl idea is the daisy chain formation—small pearls around a large pearl forming a daisy, and a cluster of these flowers tied with black velvet to form clips, to make bracelets, and still more strung on the velvet to make the high round neckline.

Christmas Greetings

Dames and daughters of American households in the past century solved their Christmas greeting perplexities in a simple way.

A spray of pressed flowers, or a box of water colors, and a poetic turn of mind were all the present-day American's grandmother or great-grandmother needed to prepare her yuletide remembrances to friends. This is revealed by some of the oldest Christmas cards in existence, now part of a rare collection of greeting cards owned by the Wisconsin State Historical museum.

Tinted with the faint yellow of age, brought on, perhaps, by its being kept in a memory-box, a card made by an Ohio girl in 1800 reflects the ingenuity of a past generation. The young lady skillfully painted a scroll, harp and crown of roses upon a card fringed with machine-stamped lace, and dispatched the elaborate home-made greeting to a friend.

Milady used to press violets, lilies of the valley and ferns between pages of books months before the holiday season. Later, when snow began to fall, she would take from her secretary-desk several gold or gilt-edged white cards similar to those she used for visiting, and, removing the flowers from the books, would glue them to the cards.

Like in structure to the stage of a "Punch and Judy" show, one of the collection's Christmas cards is an intricate portrayal of the three wise men presenting the baby, Lord Jesus, with gifts, incense and mhyrr. Backgrounds of the manger are folding cardboard inserts, such as are used in up-to-date Valentine cards. This card is typical of the 1900 period of greetings. It is 8 by 10 inches, in green, yellow, red and blue tints. "Gloria in Excelsis Deo," a line from the angels' glorious song of rejoicing, appears above the cardboard.

A perfume sachet tied with pink ribbon to a card made in 1900 recalls the loveliness and tenderness of a bygone age. The grace of a past generation is visible in the simple sentiment written upon it: "A Happy Christmas to You."

Bordered by brilliant silk fringes of pink, red, maroon, old rose, or light blue, fringed greeting cards crowded post boxes, all over the country in the '90s.

Printed greetings on the curious fringed cards bring to mind a time of sentiment and deep feeling, as shown in the following quotations: "May this Christmas shed blessings on your head." "A blithe and peaceful Christmas." "A glad Christmas to thee, from every sorrow free," and "be thy Christmas replete with bliss pure and sweet." Bright-hued flowers and summer and winter landscapes are depicted in these cards, distinctive in that both sides of each card were illustrated.

The folding screen type of Christmas card was "the rage" with crowds thronging stationery shops in the holiday season thirty years ago. One such screen card in the collection is black, gold and red, which upon being opened, discloses an odd picture of a china plate, bowl and vase of flowers, with the inscription, "Compliments of the season." This card was made in France. Birds in winter scenes are the artistic design printed upon a similar folding screen card of 1905.

"Happy New Year, 1881," is the legend on a hand-painted Christmas card sent to a Wisconsin governor's family. Smoking a cigarette, a young-blood of the time is shown skating with his fair-haired sweetheart under a stone arch bordered by snow-laden trees.

Scenes from the life of Christ have always been favorite illustrations on Christmas cards. One of the more complicated greetings in the museum's collection is a 1900 card of the "pull-out" type, from whose center four religious picture cards may be drawn into view.

Marking the change from purely sentimental Christmas cards to the modern cards is a "Kris Kringle Song" novelty greeting of the 1915 period. It is a small cardboard victrola record in a record jacket upon which is found these jolly lines:

Put on a wood needle and softly play
A song of old friendship on Christmas day.
Your victrola wind, ere the tune's played through
Lest our friendship record should play out too.

Yule Play Slated

Religious drama has again come to the front in the churches of today. The First Methodist church of this city, on several different occasions, has inspired its congregation in worship through drama. Last Christmas the play "The Other Shepherd," was most effectively presented. This year, on the Sunday night before Christmas, another play, entitled "Ye Who Sit By The Fire," will be presented under the direction of Mrs. L. S. Oyster, assisted by Miss Elizabeth Langford, educational director of the church. The story is of a miser, "Old Jeffrey," who sends a little blind boy and his little sister upon the streets to beg and then hordes his wealth. At the Christmas season, he has many opportunities for sharing his possessions; but his greed forbids it until a little child reveals to him the spirit of the Christ Child. In addition to the play, Christmas carols will be presented in pantomine and song.

Tulip Planting Time

It is now tulip planting time in Monroe and we never think of these colorful blossoms, first harbingers of Spring, without visualizing the beautiful bed of tulips at Bethaven, home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Biedenharn. It brings to mind also the prim, orderly row of crimson blossoms bordering the garden walk of Mrs. H. R. Speed's home on Pine street. Rose colored tulips also nestle close to the grey stone walls of Grey Gables, home of Mr. and Mrs. Sigmund Masur, and flaunt their beauty from the enormous bed in the gardens of Mr. and Mrs. B. D. Hodges' home in Fairview.

Tulips are to the spring garden what oaks, sycamores and sumac are to the autumn landscape. Other beautiful flowers there are of course, in adundance, but none quite so brilliant and showy as these. With the possible exception of daffodils, they are certainly regarded as the most nearly indispensable of all early flowering bulbs, and—like the daffodils—they include so many distinct and widely different types that with them alone the gardener could readily arrange a spring planting of diversified interest and color that would yield continuous bloom during six to eight weeks.

One advantage of the tulips is that they can be planted very late. The fall-flowering annuals are left undisturbed by many gardeners until the first frosts have put an end to their final bursts of bloom before the beds are cleared for tulip planting. Tulips planted in November or even in December have given perfectly satisfactory results, but once the autumn vegetation in the beds or borders has been killed off, most gardeners like to get their planting done while the soil is still moderatly warm and easily worked. Heavy rains and cold weather may produce a stiff and lumpy condition of the soil that is not favorable for planting.

While it would be difficult to say that any one type of tulip is more beautiful than others—such preferences are largely a matter of personal taste—nevertheless there are differences which make certain types more suitable for certain purposes than others. The difference in time of flowering alone is sufficient reason for a gardener to make his selection from among several types, even though he may be planting but a few dozen bulbs altogether.

Too many gardeners think of tulips primarily for use in solid masses of color. They are equally desirable, however, for other methods of planting. Scattered groups of half a dozen to a dozen bulbs in the mixed border, though only a comparatively few varieties are used, will lend color to the entire garden. For this purpose, of course, selections are made from several different types, so that the flowering season may be a long one.

Often larger groups can be used with striking effect in front of evergreens or flowering shrubs outside of the regular flower border. For this purpose landscape architects prefer bold clear colors that will be effective at a distance, rather than the neutral tones and pastel shades of varieties many of which are admirable in the tulip border.

Even in rock garden planting, tulips have their place. In fact, many of the species are particularly effective in the rockery because their habit of growth is so diffrent from that of the majority of spring-blooming rock plants, most of which are trailers or creepers. Tulips therefore add variety in form as well as in color.

Address Of History Is Made By Hammond

Four Objectives In Teaching Subject Given Stress; Says Wars Are Engendered By Wrong Patriotism

"History as an Aid to Modern Living" was the subject of an address made by W. R. Hammond, professor of history and economics at Northeast Center of L. S. U., at the December meeting of the Barkdull Faulk school Parent-Teacher association of the Louisiana Congress of Parents and Teachers.

"History," Mr. Hammond said, "is a record of human efforts and achievements, triumphs, successes and failures of the human race from the beginning of time.

"The common conception is learning dates, jumping from war to war and deifying national heroes."

In comparing the old method of history teaching with the new, he said that modern history telis of the whole range of events from earliest times, and gives us the answers to our "Whys."

The method has four objectives, he said:

First—To help students think for themselves.

Second—The engendering of a tolerant attitude.

Third—To help the student adjust himself to change.

Fourth—To re-interpret patriotism. "Wars are engendered by wrong patriotism," he said, in analyzing his final point, "and causes hatreds because we have been taught to hate those who oppose us. This, in the light of the new history, is wrong.

"Any patriotism that cannot look beyond the man-made barriers, is not worthy of the name. Patriotism calls for leadership of the highest type."

Entertainment on the program was given by three members of Mr. Gauchell's band, who played "Silent Night," and children of the Barkdull Faulk Glee club sang several Christmas carols.

Miss Daisy Richardson's class won the prize for having the most parents present at the meeting. Refreshments were served at the conclusion in the school cafeteria.

Ouachita P.-T. A.

A talk by Jackson Purdy, new director of productions for the Monroe Little Theater, an entertainment program, reports and awarding of prizes marked the December meeting of the Ouachita Parent-Teacher association of the Louisiana Congress of Parents and Teachers.

On behalf of the Little Theater, Mr. Purdy extended an invitation to those present at the meeting to join the dramatic group.

The welfare committee for the Ouachita Parish High school reported that six underprivileged children had been clothed during the month, and that seven had been provided with food.

Prizes were awarded to the second grade and to Miss Wilson's room for obtaining the largest percentages of members during the recent membership campaign of the association. Presentation of the awards was made by Mrs. Jason Johnson, president of the association.

The following program was presented by the program committee: Tap dance and song, Gene Wilder, sixth grade; talk, "What Parents Can Do To Develop Reading In The Home," Mrs. Fred Fudickar; two piano solos, Billy McDowell, sixth grade; talk, "History and Geography as a Basis of World Citizenship," Miss Gertrude Gregory.

The meeting, which was held in the high school auditorium December 12 at 3:45 p.m., was launched with the reading of minutes by the secretary and a report from the treasurer.

The subject of Safety First was stressed at length by Judge W. M. Harper before a meeting of the Central Grammar school P.-T. A. in the school auditorium Wednesday afternoon. Judge Harper's talk was chiefly along the lines of protection of the children in the safe operation of motor vehicles and in the elimination of hazards in homes.

He laid stress on the safe operation of motor vehicles at all times and the importance of extreme care where children are in the street or crossing intersections. Strict observance of traffic rules and extra precaution when driving near schools were urged.

In regards to home hazards, Judge Harper particularly asked that parents restrain their children from playing in the streets or in driveways where machines might be backing out.

Other dangers around the home, such as air rifles, sling-shots, small caliber guns, loose ammunition and open fires, were criticized. Allowing children to play with matches or with electrical appliances were also given as home hazards.

Oak Ridge P.-T. A.

OAK RIDGE, La., Dec. 14.—(Special)—A decision to provide noon lunches for underprivileged children attending the school, an appeal by the principal for more magazines for the library, committee reports and an entertainment program featured the December meeting of the Oak Ridge high school Parent-Teacher association of the Louisiana Congress of Parents and Teachers.

The plan submitted for the provision of lunches for children in needy circumstances attending the school was unanimously adopted.

The appeal for magazines, the need for which was stressed, was made by B. S. Hamner, principal of the school.

At the close of the business session, which was presided over by Mrs. C. J. Wasson, president of the association, an entertainment program was presented.

Six-year-old Bonnie Marie Windsor contributed a song and dance, Mrs. Maud Baird gave a demonstration in teaching geography and Mr. Hamner spoke on the school and some of its needs.

The next meeting of the association is scheduled for the first Tuesday in January.

Dodson P.-T. A.

DODSON, La., Dec. 14.—(Special)—The Dodson P.-T. A. rendered an interesting program recently in the high school auditorium.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Henry Stovall, president, who announced that the organization would stage an old fashioned dance on New Year's eve at the high school auditorium.

R. H. Sylvest, principal of Dodson High school, talked on the new system of grading in the school. An address was also made by Miss Thelma Stovall.

Georgia Tucker Group

The third of a series of studies on "The Progressive Home" was carried out at the December meeting of the study group of the Georgia Tucker school Parent-Teacher association of the Louisiana Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Mrs. Virginia Newman reviewed the article "Managing the Children in the Home" in the Parent-Teacher magazine.

"Teaching the Children Good Manners" was stressed by Mrs. M. S. Harrison, who outlined principles to follow in laying the foundation.

Both topics were discussed by the parents in attendance at the meeting.

The next meeting of the group will take place at 2 p.m. the second Thursday in January. It will be held in the kindergarten room of the school.

Barkdull Faulk Group

Mrs. Virginia Newman, whose theme was "Management of Money in the Home," spoke before the study club of the Barkdull Faulk school Parent-Teacher association of the Louisiana Congress of Parents and Teachers at its meeting the past week.

"There are two basic principals of money management," Mrs. Newman said, "first, to live within ones incomes, and, second, to distribute ones income porportionally.

"We must 'save' proportionately.
"We must 'give' proportionately.
"We must 'have' proportionately."

The size of the income of a family does not matter so much as long as the father, mother and older children can cooperate in wise spending of the money, she said. Children should know the amount of the income and also be taken into the family conferences when money matters are discussed. Children, thus trained, would be given valuable lessons in thrift and wise spending, she stated.

"Prosperity as well as charity," she concluded, "must begin in the home."

Miss Helen Marr Love Honored At Reception

Bastrop Hostesses Give Delightful Affair For Charming Member Of Younger Set In That City

Miss Helen Marr Love, bride-elect, was the guest of honor at a beautifully planned pre-nuptial affair, with Mrs. M. V. Orr and Mrs. W. C. Gibbs of Bastrop, hostesses, at Hedgelawn, handsome home of Mrs. Orr.

The entire lower floor was in festive Christmas attire, the brilliancy of which created a colorful background for the beautifully frocked hostesses, their guest of honor and the concourse of friends who called during the afternoon.

Miss Love, in a henna transparent velvet model with corsage of sweetheart roses and valley lilies, stood with the hostesses to receive. They were assisted by Miss Mildred Shell in silver satin model and Mrs. L. Owen, who wore a black chiffon model.

The guests upon arrival were requested to sign the lovely bride's book, presided over by Miss Bennie Gibson. Miss Elizabeth Orr, a vibrant flame in crimson velvet frock, related a dramatic Christmas story that paved the way for the entrance of the hostesses drawing a silver sled to the accompaniment of tinkling sleigh bells. The sled was piled high with beautiful gifts for Miss Love. Prominent among them was a complete chest of silver and a full set of rose point china. All the gifts were wrapped in tissue in the Christmas colors.

The refreshment table in the dining room was reminiscent of the old-fashioned Christmas with a tinsel and gold draped tree for central ornamentation. Across the "frosty" surface of the table was driven a small silver sled drawn by eight reindeer with gaily colored trappings.

Miss Justine Dorman and Miss Virginia Orr presided over the handsome silver coffee services at either end of the table. Assisting in serving the delicious confections were Miss Berly Madison, Mrs. C. N. Dalton, Miss Bennie Gibson and Miss Nanette Orr.

This delightful affair was one of a series arranged for Miss Love, a popular member of Bastrop's younger set.

Holloway-Clark

Of interest to their many friends is the marriage of Miss Beth Holloway, attractive young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Holloway of Longview to Mr. Leslie Hugh Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Clark of Mer Rouge, La.

The wedding was quietly solemnized at the Holloway home on the fifth of December, in the presence of relatives and a few close friends, with Rev. George D. Dickinson, pastor of the First Christian church, reading the impressive ring ceremony.

The reception suit reflected a theme of green and white. Tall floor baskets held long stemmed pom-pom chrysanthemums and white roses, intermingled with plumosa fern.

The bride wore a becoming ensemble of black crepe, with a chic off the face hat of black suede. She wore a corsage of lillies of the valley and white carnations.

Mrs. Clark is a popular member of the younger set of Longview, where she has resided all of her life. Mr. Clark, formerly of Mer Rouge, is now making his home in Longview, where he is connected with the Atlantic Oil company. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Clark left for a short wedding trip.

Out-of-town guests for the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Holloway, Jr., of Austin, Mrs. A. P. Harden of Shreveport, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hamilton and daughter, Dorothy, of Dallas, and Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Reily of Shreveport.

Tallulah

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Buckner were hosts to their bridge club, entertaining with a delightful supper followed by games. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. George Yerger, Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Yerger, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Stribling, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Shamblin, Mrs. R. L. Baily and Miss Katherine Ward.

The December meeting of the Madison Parish Garden club took place at the home of Mrs. D. H. Allen. A program suggestive of Christmas was a feature. The members brought Christmas gifts from their gardens, which they exchanged.

Mrs. Albert Sevier gave a talk on "Magnolia Gardens," Mrs. George Eggleston spoke on the "Use and Abuse of Christmas Greens," and Miss Bertha Keller led a discussion of "The Living Christmas Trees." Following the discussion the club voted to sponsor outdoor Christmas decorations in Tallulah. Mrs. Lamar Lowe contributed a vocal number.

At the close of the session, the hostess invited the guests into the dining room, where a buffet tea was enjoyed. Those in attendance were Mesdames S. B. Bettis, R. K. Boney, Charles Coltharp, J. H. Devine, George Egleston, J. A. Gilbert, Alph Hebert, A. H. Hurd, T. P. Kell, A. L. Lane, L. A. Materne, H. R. Maxwell, E. T. Purnell, W. L. Rountree, Albert Sevier, C. K. Smith, George Webb, J. S. Agee; C. A. Sparling, Lamar Lowe and George Sevier and Miss Amy Holmes, Miss Annette Beers and Miss Bertha Keller.

Mrs. A. G. Bray was a charming hostess at bridge when she entertained the members of the Wednesday Afternoon club at her home. Mrs. A. L. Sevier captured the high score prize, a crystal vase, Mrs. Mason Spencer, consolation, a casserole, and Mrs. W. C. Starrett, low score, a pitcher. A delectable hot luncheon was attractively served to Mesdames A. L. Sevier, R. L. Baily, H. W. Lee, W. H. Pierson, A. J. Sevier, Mason Spencer, A. J. Sevier, R. E. Gilbert, J. A. Gilbert, Alex Blanche, W. C. Starrett, W. L. Rountree and T. P. Kell.

At the monthly meeting of the Tallulah Book club, held at the Book club building here recently, a Christmas program was rendered by the Music club. The program, consisting of a series of pageants and musical numbers, was presented under the direction of Mrs. R. L. Baily, president of the club.

A concealed quartet, composed of Mrs. Frank Montgomery, Mrs. Pauline Adams, Mrs. Alnut Cason and Mrs. Lamar Lowe, furnished appropriate music for the pageants. A Christmas morning scene was portrayed by little Alta Gwinn Garrison, Dickie Sevier, Ed Adams, Lamar Lowe and Pierce and Bob Baily, with "Santa Claus is Coming to Town" as the accompaniment. This was followed by a piano solo by Elmer Neill, Jr., and a sleigh scene by Warren Sevier and Reita Feith, made interesting with "Jingle Bells," sung by the quartet. A group of young boys, Beverly Stone, Jack Bridge, Jimmie Cason, Warren Sevier, Louis Buckner and Billy Grace, in vestments, rendered Chirstmas carols.

Geneva Rountree added variety to the program with an attractive "Dance of the Snowflakes," after which Mrs. George C. Purvis gave a Christmas reading. The concluding number was the manger scene, with Grace Leeves as Mary and Fred Edgerton, Colvin Todd and Andrew Sevier as the three wise men. The musical accompaniment was Brahm's "Lullaby."

During the social period which followed, the hostesses, Mrs. George Webb, Mrs. T. P. Kell, Mrs. J. R. Medlin, Mrs. A. T. Palmer and Mrs. A. G. Bray, served delicious refreshments.

C. S. Pierce is visiting relatives in Kentucky.

The December meeting of the Latin club of Tallulah high school took place at the home of Mrs. C. B. Claughton, with Miss Peggy Claughton and Miss Marguerite McDonald as hostesses. The program opened with "Silent Night," sung in Latin. This was followed by a Christmas play in Latin, given by Bruce Tyner, Bill Yerger, James Freeman, David Currie, Wesley Whitfield, Joe Smith and Bedford Lucas. A debate in English, "Resolved that the Roman Festival, Saturnalia was more fun than our Christmas," with Margaret Folk and Hunter Coad as speakers for the affirmative, and Tom Barber and Margaret McDonald for the negative, proved interesting and resulted in the decision going to the negative side. The hostesses were assisted by their mothers, Mrs. C. B. Claughton and Mrs. Watson McDonald in serving delicious refreshments during the social hour enjoyed at the close of the program.

A very delightful recent party was that given by Miss Alma Maxwell at Mounds complimentary to her sister, Miss Dorothy Maxwell, whose marriage to Mr. Blue Woodyear will be celebrated on December 19th. Bridge games were enjoyed throughout the afternoon and resulted in Mrs. Will Sevier, Sr., capturing the high score award. As a novel method of awarding the consolation prize, the guests drew candy kisses from a slipper filled with rice. Miss Elizabeth Bettis being the fortunate winner. The honoree was presented with a piece of silver.

Following the game, the guests were invited into the dining room, where the table centerpiece, depicting a wedding scene, with the miniature bride and bridesmaids under a white arch, announced the approaching happy event. A delectable dinner was attractively served.

Those enjoying the hospitality were: Mrs. Dan James, Miss Lou Koestler, Mrs. Hugh Montgomery, Mrs. John Helgasson, Mrs. Alnut Cason, Mrs. T. B. Lucas, Mrs. Ed Shamblin, Mrs. E. A. Buckner, Mrs. Maxwell Yerger, Miss Louise Thompson, Mrs. Richard Almond, Mrs. Will Sevier, Jr., Miss Elizabeth Holt, Miss Elizabeth Bettis, Mrs. W. P. Yerger and Miss Dorothy Fairly.

Mr. and Mrs. George Yerger, Jr., entertained recently with a lovely supper party in honor of Miss Dorothy Maxwell and Mr. B. Woodyear, whose approaching marriage will be a prominent social event of the month. Those in attendance besides the honorees, were Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Yerger, Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Yerger, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Buckner, Mr. J. E. Neill, Mr. Bill Yerger, Mr. Edward Yerger, Miss Georgette Ziegler, Miss Alma Maxwell and Mr. Joe Clark.

The Eveready circle of the Methodist Missionary society met recently at the country home of Mrs. Davis Whitfield at Mansford plantation. Mrs. G. L. Smith presided over the business session, Mrs. Webb Williams gave the devotional and Mrs. G. L. Garrison gave a review of an interesting article from the World Outlook. At the conclusion, the hostess served refreshments to the guests: Mesdames W. B. Williams, Earl Jennings, Richard Alexander, Herman Lancaster, Lavelle Scott, A. H. Hurt, G. L. Garrison, G. L. Smith, Jesse Anderson, Harry Anderson, Weathersby, J. W. Rogillio, W. H. Harvey, C. H. Billett, Wray Bowie, J. R. Medlin, A. J. Cranford, Allen, Richard Tate and A. T. Palmer, Miss Josephine Moore and Mrs. McCormick, of Baton Rouge.

Mrs. A. H. Hurd entertained the members of the Tuesday afternoon club at her home when bridge games were enjoyed. Mrs. E. S. Moberly captured the high score prize and Mrs. Hugh Montgomery the consolation award. At the close of the games a tempting hot plate luncheon was served. The guests included Mesdames L. Stevens, J. A. Gilbert, A. T. Palmer, J. R. Medlin, Richard Tate, E. S. Moberley, Frank Montgomery and Hugh Montgomery.

Mrs. P. O. Benjamin is recovering after an illness of several weeks.

Circle two of the Baptist Missionary society met at the church recently for the first session after reorganization of the various circles for the year. Officers elected were Mrs. W. C. Purdy, chairman; Mrs. W. C. Hobson, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. H. B. Day, mission study leader; Mrs. L. Westmoreland, Bible study leader; Mrs. W. A. Rock, personal service chairman; Mrs. Paul Gaines, stewardship; Mrs. H. M. Lewis, white cross; Mrs. D. L. Moore, pianist.

Circle one of the Methodist Missionary society met recently with Mrs. J. L. Coleman, with Mrs. D. H. Allen presiding. The subject of the session was a study lesson from the text, "That Other America." A social period followed. Refreshments were served. Those inattendance were Mesdames D. H. Allen, D. Fortner, M. L. Piper, I. M. Heflin, J. E. Bethea, A. B. Kelly, C. C. Loyd, C. K. Smith, Charles Coltharp, Buckles, J. Land and Bryan Foster.

Burnished Copper Gleams On Black Cocktail Frock

Sleek suavity is the keynote of this Paris costume which Alix designs for cocktail parties during the Christmas season. It is all black from hat to dress hem. The frock—designed with big sleeves and a slender skirt whose only fullness is in front—is fastened with big buttons of hammered burnished copper. The felt toque is draped forward and finished with a bow. Gloves and bag are of antelope.

I'LL HAVE PLENTY OF TIME FOR MY CHRISTMAS SHOPPING

— BECAUSE —

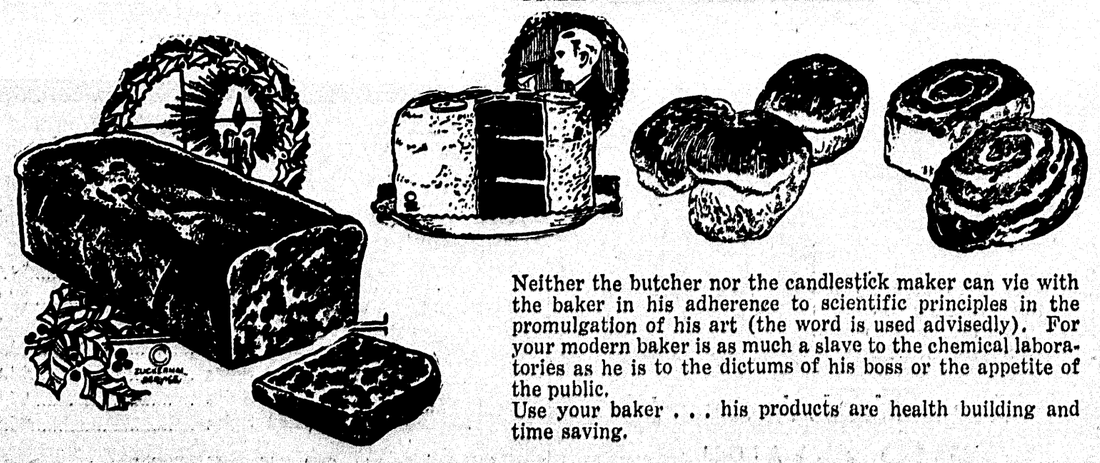
IS DOING MY BAKING

Your busy season is here, Mrs. Housewife! You need all your strength to keep up with the demands that are being put upon you during this holiday rush, —your baker can relieve you of your most strenuous duty—and that is baking Christmas cakes, pies and other baking.



Neither the butcher nor the candlestick maker can vie with the baker in his adherence to scientific principles in the promulgation of his art (the word is used advisedly). For your modern baker is as much a slave to the chemical laboratories as he is to the dictums of his boss or the appetite of the public.

Use your baker . . . his products are health building and time saving.

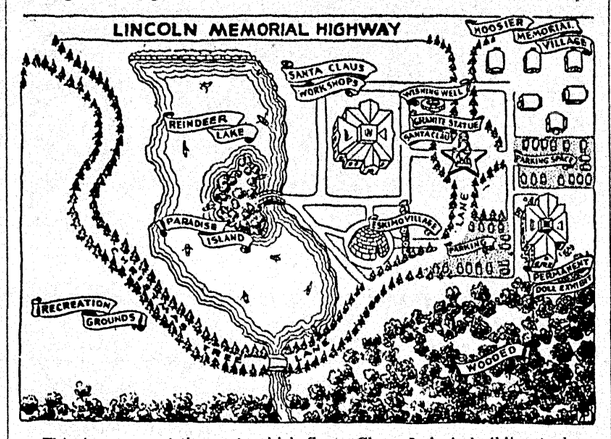
Big 'Estate' For St. Nick Gift Of Santa Claus, Ind.



This is a map of the park which Santa Claus, Ind., is building to honor jovial Saint Nick. It will cover 32 acres when completed.

By Claude H. Wolff

SANTA CLAUS, Ind., Dec. 14.—(AP)—A child's dream of what Santa Claus' home looks like is becoming a reality here in southern Indiana.

Workshops, where toys will be made, an Eskimo village, a paradise island, a wishing well and a lake, on the banks of which reindeer will be free to roam, are being constructed on a 32-acre plot.

The Santa Claus Good Fellowship club, which is behind the project, intends to make the place a shrine to Saint Nick.

As the work proceeds, Postmaster Oscar L. Phillips watches his mail grow daily. Letters pour in from all parts of the United States, and from England, Ireland, New Zealand and Germany.

For many years now, children and grownups have sent cards or letters to this postoffice for remailing. Phillips expects to handle 1,000,000 pieces this year.

The little boys and girls who write him, telling what they want Santa to bring them, are asking for more dolls and bicycles than ever before.

"There are a lot of amusing letters, and some which make my heart ache," he says. "I am happy when I get letters from children that I know have parents able to provide for them, but it makes me sad when I open mail from poor little tots I know will get very little. It's a responsibility, being Santa Claus to the world."

This town—the population is 60—got its name in 1853, when a postoffice was allowed the little settlement.

"There was a German Methodist church organized here in 1848," explains Jess Fahr, one of the oldest residents, "and it had a Sunday school class which was very active. It was on suggestion of the class that the town, in need of a name, was called Santa Claus.

"It was just about Christmas time and the residents had tired of the slow stage-coach delivery of the mail once a month. They took the matter of a postoffice up with the government and now our little place is known all over the world."

A cabbage weighing 20 1-2 pounds and measuring 51 inches in circumference was raised by Cohen Robertson of Lamar county, Ala.

Kohl, the ancient cosmetic, has been made of finely powdered antimony as well as the smoke black of burnt almond shells or frankincense.

"Yes, I Patronize the Independent Druggist Because He Has My Welfare at Heart"

Since I was a little girl, I have had nothing but splendid cooperation from the Monroe Home-Owned Druggist. My family before me was treated as I have been. Our problems are their problems and without their support, Monroe and Ouachita Parish would suffer.

Another good feature that people like about the Home-Owned Independent Druggist is . . . The Service they give you. No rain is too hard, the sun too hot but that he isn't on the job from morning till night . . . 24 hours a day to give his customers his service . . . a service that we cannot get along without.

When you patronize the home-town, home-owned druggist, you are keeping your money at home and not in banks in other states to be kept out of circulation.

'Broadway Melody Of 1936,' Musical Film At Paramount

Jack Benny Tops Cast In New Hit

Dazzling Array Of Stars And Talent In Outstanding Picture

SO PACKED with entertainment is "Broadway Melody of 1936," which yesterday came to screen at the Paramount theater, that it at once registers its right to acclaim as the greatest extravaganza yet to be made by Hollywood. Stars, story, music, dancing, all are present in satisfying and often thrilling form, so splendidly elaborate is the picture and so skilfully is it fashioned.

There is glorious comedy, and the story takes dramatic turns which set it above the usual vehicle of its type. The plot is superbly woven amid the gorgeously spectacular specialties, and the many song hits all fall naturally out of the streaming action of the production.

For players the cast has as its top personality the gifted Jack Benny, now lending to the screen the brilliant talents that have made him a star of stage and the outstanding genius of radio broadcasting. He handles a grand role perfectly and he has the most ample and able support from noted performers like Una Merkel, who rings the bell as a wise-cracking secretary; Robert Taylor, a grand romantic male lead, and others.

Eleanor Powell wins triple honors in this picture for she is not only seen as the "world's greatest feminine tap dancer," but handles the ballerina demands finely, and in addition proves she is a fine dramatic actress.

It is practically an all-star cast. Among other triumphant players in the cast are Sid Silvers, "king of stooges," June Knight, Vilma and Buddy Ebsen, Nick Long, Jr., Frances Langford, Harry Stockwell, Robert Wildhack and a great many more.

The spectacles are done with unprecedented charm. Among the musical highlights are five great songs by Nacio Herb Brown and Arthur Freed—"Broadway Rhythm," "I've Got a Feelin' You're Foolin'," "On a Sunday Afternoon," "Sing Before Breakfast," and "You Are My Lucky Star." The elaborate ballet by Albertina Rasch for the last named is one of the outstanding sequences in all musical pictures.

The dances were staged by Dave Gould, creator of the "Carioca" and "Continental," and Gould's new creations add further glory to his record.

Roy Del Ruth directed with that skill for which he is famous and this Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture boasts an all-around splendor in which he has a large share of credit.

With John W. Considine, Jr., as the producer for M-G-M, "Broadway Melody of 1936" may be set down as a film that every lover of good entertainment should see.

The story was an original by Moss Hart, famous on Broadway. The screen play was prepared by Jack McGowan, Sid Silvers and Harry Conn.

The killdeer, commonest American plover, often surrounds its nest with small pebbles and fragments of shells.

ADVENTURE WITH A VENGEANCE!

CARL LAEMMLE PRESENTS

EAST OF JAVA

starring

Charles BICKFORD

CAPITOL

15c—Until 6 o'Clock—15c

Jack Benny, the Broadway columnist, tells Eleanor Powell that she'll have to stop masquerading as the French star, "Arlette," because it is interfering with his plans. The scene is from the giant musical production, "Broadway Melody of 1936," the attraction at the Paramount theater for today and Monday.

Carl Brisson as a rough, tough sailor-bouncer in a night club, was a Sailor Bold with a Voice of Gold. Arline Judge, the night club entertainer, who changed his humble melody on mine into melody divine. It's a scene from the romantic comedy, "Ship Cafe," the attraction at the Paramount theater for Tuesday and Wednesday, with William Frawley, Mady Christians, Eddie Davis, Grant Withers and others in the supporting cast.

Frank Mitchell, Ray Walker, Alice Faye and Jack Durant, four good reasons for seeing "Music Is Magic," the melodious comedy drama in which four dizzy vaudevillians caper into the movies. It's the attraction at the Paramount theater for Thursday and Friday and has Bebe Daniels, Rosina, Mitchell and Durant, Andrew Tombes and Ed Gargan in the singing and dancing comedy cast.

Maureen O'Sullivan, fresh from her triumphant role in "Anna Karenina," is teamed with Norman Foster in "The Bishop Misbehaves," a Metro filmization of the Broadway mystery comedy hit. Norman Foster is seen as an innocent bystander who gets caught in a web of both mystery and romance while the bishop is portrayed by the English star, Edmund Gwenn, as an eccentric character in love with amateur sleuthing and matchmaking. The picture, playing at the Capitol Wednesday, is a hilarious comedy.

"East of Java," the film in which Charles Bickford, its "he-man" star, was nearly killed by a ferocious lion and was at death's door for days, is playing at the Capitol theater today and Monday. Above we see Bickford and Elizabeth Young in the arms of Frank Albertson, as the principals who take part in the actual jungle scenes, treachery, bitter-sweet romance and real animal fights that made front page news all over the land when Bickford was clawed and bitten in the throat by a 400 pound lion, during production.

Wallace Beery plays the father who goes through fire and brimstone to win the affection of his son, Jackie Cooper, in "O'Shaughnessy's Boy," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's great story of circus life, coming to the Capitol theater Tuesday. This is the picture that is described as bringing to the screen for the first time the spirit of the circus with all its thrills, excitement, and color and is recommended as superb entertainment for every age. Spanky McFarland, Leona Maricle and Henry Stephenson are also prominently cast.

Here is the exciting climax in "Freckles." Through the orphan's courage a small band of murderous timber thieves is captured in their cabin hide-out, finding Tom Brown the hero unconscious. Carol Stone and Virginia Weidler have other important roles in this forest romance by Gene Stratton Porter and produced by RKO-Radio. The 2,000,000 published copies of this book makes "Freckles" the largest selling romance in all history, a story that all people will love best. It's at the Capitol Thursday and Friday.

TO ERECT TREE

WINNSBORO, La., Dec. 14.—(Special)—A community Christmas tree is to be erected Wednesday at the head of Prairie street by the Winnsboro Lions club. Gifts are to be distributed on Christmas eve by the same organization, in cooperation with the local P.-T. A. Several hundred dollars have been subscribed by local business and professional interests of the town to make the affair a success. The committee from the Lions club in charge of the arrangements is composed of Leo Richardson, A. D. Meyer, Ola Bridges, W. B. Glover and N. M. McCuan.

Jungle Film Is Showing At Capitol

Charles Bickford Starred In 'East Of Java,' Thrilling Picture

ONE of the most thrilling and tense of all jungle productions is Universal's "East of Java," starring Charles Bickford, opening today at the Capitol theater for a run of two days. Bickford, cast as an American gangster fleeing from East Africa with "G" men on his trail, champions seven cowering human beings, including a beautiful woman, against seven lions, when a tramp schooner is wrecked on the reefs of a jungle isle a hundred miles from the nearest civilization. This is the film in which Bickford was attacked by a crazed lion and nearly died of his wounds.

In the cast are Elizabeth Young, Frank Albertson, Leslie Fenton, Clarence Muse, and many other noted players of stage and screen. The production was directed by George Melford from the book, "Tiger Island," by Gouverneur Morris, and adapted for the screen by Paul Perez and James Ashmore Creelman. Paul Kohner produced.

The story opens with Bickford fleeing the East African port of Simba Sao in the tramp schooner "Sea Dragon," Leslie Fenton, master. The ship is shipping, beside human cargo a consignment of lions and other jungle beasts, to America. A tropical hurricane sweeps the ship onto reefs, humans and beasts escape to the island, and the fight for the survival of the fittest starts. Hunger, thirst, lack of firewood, fever and jungle insanity follow as the beasts swee closer and closer to their human prey.

Who survives the gruelling batt is told only in the last part of the last reel. Bickford, in a role that cal for him to be half human, half beas as he fights off his enemies, both hu man and animal, handles each situation with brute ferocity and force.

Notes On Life In Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD—Old Buffalo Bill would have been a delight to a modern movie press agent.

The boys who strive to keep picture names in the limelight are frequently called upon to corral their stars for personal appearances at such functions as theater openings, meat-market premieres (with floodlights) and women's club meetings. Corraling, in some stellar instances, is the proper word. Some of the girls and boys whose smiling faces decorate the news pictures of the events the next day have been cajoled, coaxed, figuratively cudgeled into the line of fire. Not that they are averse to publicity, but you know how it is.

Cody Was Different

Old Buffalo Bill, now, was different. You can take Courtney Ryley Cooper's word for it. Cooper was Colonel Cody's press agent.

"There was never a star," reposeth Cooper, "more agreeable to a wild-eyed press agent's stunts—and I was wild-eyed!"

Cooper, by reason of his close association with the famous scout, is here to collaborate with Grove Jones on the script of Cecil B. DeMille's Buffalo Bill picture.

"If I staged a contest on 'Who is Buffalo Bill?" and wanted him to distribute the prizes at 10," says Cooper, "he would be there at 8:30. If I wanted him to head a circus parade in Chicago where parades were forbidden, he was right there. Once he threatened to shoot me for the way a stunt turned out, but when I showed up three weeks later he said, 'You're not worth shootin', Bad Lands. Let's have a drink!"

Jack Ketch, the famous English executioner whose nickname was applied to his successors for nearly two centuries, was appointed public hangman in 1663, historians believe.

CHAPTER XXVI

The little valley opened about 100 yards from Pulaski road. The driveway led downward, swinging sharply to the left and then to the right again in a barren region that seemed almost desert-like. Once out of sight of the main highway, Bobby could see nothing but the bleak, grimy hillocks. There was no grass; here and there a stunted, soot-blackened bush clug to a slope; otherwise there was not a sign of life.

The driveway kept on going down hill; and at last it made one more turn and came out in a queer little hollow. At the other side, a few rods away, there was a precipitous bank, crowned by a long row of gone-to-seed dwellings; on the right hand and on the left a similar bank hemmed the place in. And in the center of the hollow there was a long, ancient building of red brick with a time-stained roof of galvanized iron. Nestling against the banks were broken-down ruins of odd-looking conical brick structures.

"A brick yard!" said Bobby suddenly. That, obviously, was what the place had been—once. A deposit of workable clay must have been dug out of this hollow, at one time. The remains of the kilns were still in evidence; the long, low building in the center must have been the—well, thought Bobby, that must have been where they did whatever it is people do to bricks when they get them ready for the ovens.

It was perfectly clear that no bricks had been made here for many a year. But it was equally clear that the central building was still in use. A freshly-painted black chimney rose from the farther end, with a wisp of smoke threading its way up toward the evening sky; and surrounding the whole thing there was a new, business-like fence of woven wire, seven feet high, with barbed-wire strands on the top and a substantial gate at the point where the driveway entered. Inside this gate three or four cars were parked.

As Bobby drove up, a man got up from a seat beside the gate. He let himself out and strolled up to Bobby's car with insolent slowness, his thumbs hooked in his belt. He wore no coat, and his vest was unbuttoned; and beneath his left armpit the black butt of a revolver, tucked away in a shoulder holster, was plainly visible.

He was a hard-looking proposition, this man, and as Bobby stopped the car the man bent a distinctly unfriendly look upon him.

"What do you want?" he asked.

Bobby did his best to look confused and lost.

"Why," he said, "I was looking for a short-cut over to—to GGrand River boulevard. I thought this was it."

"Well, it isn't," said the man.

"Oh," said Bobby. He looked at the building with what he hoped was just the right degree of innocent interest. "What is this?"

"Never mind what it is," said the man. "This's a private road, and you're trespassing. Scram!"

He casually moved his vest back, to give Bobby a better look at the revolver. Bobby grinned suddenly. "Okay, partner," he said. He backed up and swung around, while the guard stood watching him with sullen suspicion. Then, casting a last glance at the erstwhile brick plant, Bobby drove up the roadway to Pulaski road again.

On his way back to town Bobby was the prey of a pleasurable excitement, not unmixed with an even more pleasurable feeling of self-congratulation. He had found something queer, that was certain; something almighty queer, tucked away in that inaccessible hollow, surrounded by an unclimbable fence and guarded by a surly watchman with a revolver. Was this the place Mark Hopkins and MacFarlane had visited the afternoon before- Where else could they have gone? If their goal had been some place on Central street they would not have used Pulaski road at all; if they had gone to the steel mill they would have used Turney road, which led directly to the front entrance.

The reddish dust on Hopkins' car testified that they had gone along Pulaski road back of the steel mill; and if they had done that, this queer place back in the hollow seemed to be the only conceivable goal.

"I've got somthing!" Bobby told himself jubilantly. "I'll bet a dollar to an old doughunt that's the place Larry Glenn's looking for. Had I better tell Larry about it right off—or should I try to find out something more before I do? Gosh, I wish I could get just a little more dope before I tell him. Maybe I can. Waiting another week won't hurt anything. . . . Anyhow, I'll go see him tonight."

He returned the car to the rental agency, walked to a drug store, entered a telephone booth, and rang Larry's office in the federal building. Larry was still in. He greeted Bob warmly and invited him to have dinner with him.

They ate at a pleasant little restaurant near the federal building, and there Bobby guilefully told Larry just enough about Mark Hopkins' mysterious trip to whet the federal man's interest. He did not tell him of having found the peculiar building in the hollow off Pulaski road, but he told him enough to convince him that he was on the trail of something.

"That's fine," said Larry. "As soon as you get anything definite, let me know so I can get some of our men working on it. You see, Bobby—all I want from you is just a hint; no more than that. We can run it down. If our suspicions are correct, running the thing down may be rather dangerous, and I don't want you to run any risk of getting hurt. Will you promise me to call me as soon as you have anything we can work on?"

He looked at Bobby with his keen gray eyes and Bobby solemnly promised. He felt a trifle guilty about concealing his knowledge; but he was determined to vindicate himself in the elder man's estimation for his lamentable flyer in stolen bonds; and besides, he rather enjoyed the thrill of amateur detective work.

Their food was served and they began to eat. Larry carved off a bite of steak and ate it thoughtfully; then he laid down his fork and knife and leaned forward confidentially.

"I'm going to tell you something that you're not really entitled to know about," he said. "I wouldn't do it, except that it concerns Jean."

Bobby looked up, startled.

"We raided the apartment your friends the Lewises were occupying," said Larry. "They'd got out before we got there, but we did get plenty of fingerprints. Today I got the identifications back from Washington, and I want you to know about them.

"To begin with, your friend Lewis—the man who so kindly put that bond deal in your way—is a known criminal. He used to be a confidence man, out west—specialized in selling bogus oil and gold stocks, and did time in Colorado for swindling, some six or eight years ago. A year or so ago he fell in with the Red Jackson gang of bank robbers. Since then he's been one of Jackson's right-hand men. And this may interest you—it seems he specializes in disposing of the 'hot' securities that the gang picks up in its travels."

Larry went on, "But that isn't the most important part. It's this chap Harkins I wanted to tell you about, because he's been seeing more or less of Jean. I guess. Listen.

"We got his prints out of that apartment, too, and sent them in. And it develops that he's a gunman from Oklahoma. He did a term in the Oklahoma pen for robbery a few years ago. Came out on parole last summer, and is believed to have joined the Jackson gang shortly thereafter. His association with Lewis, of course, proves that he joined it.

"So that's who he is. You can see, now, can't you, why I hate to see Jean even listing him among her casual acquaintances? Fortunately, he's no more than that. But even so.

"I'm not so sure," said Bobby miserably. "The other night, after you left her place, she and I—we had a kind of a quarrel about him. She said she'd been seeing quite a lot of him. I'm—" he paused, and grew red—" I'm afraid she's getting sort of infatuated with him."

Larry looked worried.

"We can't have that," he said. "Dam it, Bobby, we've got to look out for that girl. We'll have to warn her as soon as she gets back to Dover."

Bobby stared unhappily at the table clock, remembering what had happened to him the last time he had tried to warn Jean about Sandy.

"Maybe you'd better speak to her about him," he said. "You're older. She'd be more apt to listen to you. She'd just think I was being jealous."

Larry nodded.

"I'll tell her," he said grimly. "It'd be terrible if she let herself get entangled with a man like that. When's she coming back to Dover?"

"Next week, I guess," said Bobby.

"Well, there's breathing space," said Larry. "It's a cinch Harkins won't be showing up around here for a while yet. That outfit knows by this time that Dover is hot."

He shook his head thoughtfully.

"I ought to have warned her as soon as I found out she'd been a witness for him," he mused. Bobby looked up anxiously. "How was that?" he asked. Larry told him how Jean had gone to the police station to give Sandy an alibi for the Friday afternoon of the payroll holdup.

Bobby wrinkled his forehead in a desperate effort to remember.

"Hey, wait!" he said. "Something's screwy somewhere. If she got the afternoon off the day I went in to see Montague . . . Larry, that was a Thursday, not a Friday!"

"Thursday! Are you dead certain?"

"Of course I am."

Larry's lips tightened.

"We've got to let Jean konw who this man is, the moment she gets back," he said grimly. "We can't let her go on drifting toward trouble any longer—"

But fate was against him. For when Jean returned, Larry Glenn was to be far away—and she refused even to listen to Bibby's attempt to warn her.

PUBLIC FORUM

To the Editor:

Softly, silently as a cat treads, the atmosphere ushers in Christmas, with a tang in the air of holly, melodies and wintery luster. The winds whispers in the trees, the autumn leaves ride the breezes to a theme song of Christmas.

The weary sun slips lazily over the hills leaving silver clouds tangled in the cold lavender skies. Fringing the landscape are the dark pines and the red glowing oaks. Against this natural background stretch the brilliant shrubs, holly, maple and haw. The hours flit by, and the sun dips into a cluster of crimson-gold. As dusk blows in the hours hold a deeper and softer charm.

But the scene mellows even more as the moon stipples upon the east. Slowly a beam drifts by the windows radiating bits of cold ivory and gold. A reflection of wintery luster and smoothness with brightness reigns without. Alone I sit by my window, watching the sleeping world. Far away a building reaches up and up into the sky, a shadowery, mysterious thing that in the morning will be only gray stone. Then, nearer are the chimneys of houses, and dim lights beneath the maze of roofs. Santa Claus makes his rounds. But the world sleeps and there is no sound.

Always those dawning and closing hours of Christmas bring an odd, sweet joy. The visionary young and the very old glimpse the same portrait, and feel in the silence the melody. Those are hours that come and pass. Even too grand to be registered by the ledger-thumbing memory.

FIRST AID WORK PLANNED BY WPA

Classes For Instruction To Be Given Here And Elsewhere

Plans to provide Red Cross first aid instruction for all works progress administration foremen and engineers in Louisiana were revealed here Saturday.

Arrangements for the state-wide instruction campaign, which will be conducted over a period of eight or nine weeks, were completed recently by Douglas Watters, state safety consultant, and Miss Margaret Fether, Red Cross field representative in Louisiana. Four qualified Red Cross instructors, under the direction of Dr. L. H. Schraugher, assistant safety consultant, will give the courses.

In order to facilitate training, the state has been divided into eight districts, with each district subdivided into four sections. The instructors will work in one district at a time, moving on to the next as soon as the courses are completed. The eight districts are Monroe, Shreveport, Lake Charles, Alexandria, Lafayette, Baton Rouge, New Orleans and the parishes surrounding the latter city.

All classes will be arranged by the WPA district supervisor in cooperation with local Red Cross officers. In most instances men taking the courses will receive their first aid certificates from the local chapter. They will be taught the standard 30-hour first aid course, attending class three hours a day for five days. The instruction will be given during working hours.

WPA officials estimate the total enrollment of all classes will reach 3,000. The instructors are A. P. Granger, Herbert E. Burnham, Toxie R. Trim, and Warren Fortier, all of New Orleans. These men are WPA employes, authorized by the Red Cross to teach first aid anywhere in the state.

Although this instruction project has no direct connection with the Red Cross accident prevention program, officials here believe it will be of great benefit to the program in Louisiana. At the present time, 23 chapters in the state have appointed committees to work out plans for home and farm accident prevention campaigns.

Many of these communities participated in the nation-wide home inspection campaign during the last week in October. Millions of inspection blanks, listing a number of common home hazards, were distributed to school children during that week, with the request that they inspect and accident-proof their homes. Thousands of these blanks have been returned to Red Cross chapters all over the country and are now being analyzed. The findings of this campaign in Louisiana will be announced as soon as the survey is complete.

In addition to home and farm accident prevention activities, a number of Louisiana chapters are planning to establish highway first aid stations. After the first of the year members of the national first aid and life saving staff will be sent into the state to facilitate this work.

Courses will be given in Monroe immediately after Christmas, according to Mrs. W. C. Holstein, executive secretary of the Ouachtia parish chapter.

WEDDED FIFTY YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Britt, 813 Cypress street, West Monroe, who recently celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. They were married in Calhoun Nov. 24, 1885, the ceremony being performed by "Bob" McClendon. Mrs. Britt was the former Sarah Holman, whose father built the first railroad through Ouachita parish. Mr. and Mrs. Britt have lived in the parish all their lives. They have six children, four grandchildren and one great grandchild. Mr. Britt is 77 years old, and Mrs. Britt 67. The golden wedding celebration was attended by 200 guests, including all the children of the couple except one, who was unable to be present. Open house was held at the Britt home in West Monroe, culminating with a dinner and dance. Among the relatives attending were: Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Britt and children Faye and Elmo, Jr., West Monroe; Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Britt, Rodessa; Mr. and Mrs. George Toombs and daughter, West Monroe; Mr. and Mrs. Lester Toombs and grandson, West Monroe; Louis Toombs West Monroe; Mrs. Ethel Anderson, West Monroe; little Dorothy Sue Toombs, great granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Britt.

FIREMEN WILL SPONSOR SHOW FOR GOOD FELLOWS

The Monroe fire department will sponsor a benefit show to be held at the parish high school Friday night, Dec. 20. Following the show a dance will be given at Cherokee terrace in Hotel Frances, beginning at 9 o'clock and continuing until 2 a. m. Ten per cent of the proceeds will be donated to the Good Fellows Fund, and the balance will be used for the firemen's annual Christmas fund, which is used to furnish Yuletide gifts to children of the city.

NEW U. S. CABINET POST IS FAVORED

Principal Kenney Addresses Teachers At Saturday Meeting

The Monroe City Teachers' association met for a session at the Neville High school auditorium at 9 a. m. Saturday, when a program was held. The chief feature of the meeting was a talk by Dr. Charles Kenney on "A Set-Up I Would Like to See." He advocated the creation of a United States superintendent of education, headed by a cabinet officer at Washington. Also he urged the creation of an equalization fund from the federal government.

After the general assembly, there were conferences held of various school departments. E. L. Neville, superintendent of schools, announced that the holiday vacation will start on December 20 and that classes will resume on January 2.

The program for the general assembly was as follows: Business meeting, music by the Barkdull Faulk Rhythm band, highlights of the recent state convention of teachers by Miss Sara Bres and Miss Louise Moore, and inspirational address by Dr. Kenney.

The program of the primary conference was as follows: "Activities That Teach Good Citizenship," panel discussion led by Miss Kate Henry; "How the Discussion Period Is Used," by Miss Olive Myatt; "Round Table Discussion" by Miss Addie McNeill, Miss Verna Le Blanc, and Mrs. K. Wilkins.

The intermediate conference considered the following program: "One Cycle Plan of Geography I Would Like to See in Monroe," Miss Rosa Belle McDonald; "Unit Plan of Recitation in Teaching Geography," by Miss Edna McConnell; "The Elementary School Library," by Miss Violet Martin, "The National Geographic Council," by Miss Myrtle Rodgers.

The high school conference discussed "The Teacher's Tenure from the Classroom Teacher's Viewpoint," panel discussion led by Miss Mary Hester.

Electrik Maid Provides Booths For Rest During Shopping

The Electrik Maid Bake shop, 404 DeSiard street, well known as a rendezvous of hunters, especially in the early morning hours, has also become popular with women shoppers. This popularity has been distinctly shown since the Christmas shopping season began, large numbers of women stopping at the shop each afternoon for a respite from their tour of crowded stores.

Booths in which the women may sit down and make a check of their shopping purchases and relax are available at the Electrik Maid Bake shop. G. K. Primos, proprietor of the shop, and members of his staff, are well known for the courtesy they extend customers and visitors.

The bake shop, which also has a delicatessen department, restaurant counter, soft drink counter and candy and cigar counter, caters to a wide trade.

At this time the shop's fruit cakes are in great demand. Christmas fruit cakes, as well as other types of cakes, pastries and rolls, are regularly carried in stock. Special cakes, with artistic decorations, are made to order by the shop for parties, weddings and other social events.

Turkey dinners are being served by the restaurant department several days each week, both at noon and in the evening.

The shop is open every minute of each 24-hour period.

'PUBLIC ENEMY NO. 1'

Reproduction of Haydon-Haydon's famous poster, unveiled at ceremonies on Central Grammar school grounds Friday night, inaugurating the American Legion's campaign on behalf of public safety on the highways. The ceremonies were in charge of Barkdull Faulk Post No. 13. The campaign is sponsored by the Louisiana department of the Legion, in cooperation with the Standard Oil company and fifteen outdoor advertising companies, who have devoted their billboards to the subject.

LIONS CLUBS TO MEET IN GROUP

District No. 2 Will Be Entertained By Jonesboro And Hodge Units

District No. 2 of Lions clubs, comprising all clubs of northeast Louisiana, will be entertained by the Jonesboro-Hodge club on Thursday night, December 19, according to announcement made by W. C. Oliver, president of the Monroe Lions' club.

There will be a business meeting held in the camp recreation hall with J. C. Shows presiding, starting at 7 p.m. An hour later, the banquet will be held in the camp mess hall with Mr. Shows acting as toastmaster.

An interesting feature will be the limitation of length of addresess. The main address will be but five minutes in duration and all impromptu talks will be but one minute in length. Any person talking over the time set will be fined $1 a minute for every minute or fraction thereof.

The night's program will be as follows: Song, "America," led by Mike Kelly; prayer, Rev. Father J. C. Marsh; welcome address, two minutes, by Capt. S. A. Hall; response. Lion Berry of Winnsboro club, length two minutes; music, Miss Gladys Bayes and pupils; readings, "Street Car Ridge," by Sidney Miller, and "Italian Phone Call," also by Mr. Miller; introduction of Lions, each club; music, "The Last Roundup," Camp Colvin; "Mocking Bird" Harmony makers; address, five minutes, Warren O. Watson, district governor; impromptu talks, any one.

Dancing of the old fashioned square dance and round dances will end the evening's entertainment. The Harmony Makers will furnish the music.

A large delegation from the Monroe Lions club is expected to attend.

Nettles, treasurer, Mrs. Nannie Landers; conductress, Mrs. Venie A. Bird; associate conductress, Mrs. Hazel Gulley; chaplain, Mrs. Lucinda Reppond, marshal, Mrs. Hazel Sutton; organist, Mrs. Minnie S. Watson; Ada, Mrs. Loula Powell; Ruth, Mrs. Clara Powell; Esther, Mrs. Ninnie Brasher; Electa, Mrs. Ida Cole; Martha, Mrs. Eva Westbrook; warder, Mrs. Mollie Tucker; sentinel, J. O. Brown.

Platinum is found in iron meteorites, but in very small quantities.

CATTLEMEN HOLD MEET AT TALLULAH

TALLULAH, La., Dec. 14.—(Special)—The Northeast Louisiana Livestock association composed of the livestock growers of East Carroll, Madison and Tensas parishes held a meeting of the cattlemen of the state here at the community club which was attended by 160 persons. This was said to be the largest assembly of livestock men ever gathered in this state before. A tour of the livestock farms of Tensas and Madison parishes followed by a barbecue luncheon was an interesting feature of the session.

J. H. Baughman of Tallulah, president of the local organization, presided. Arthur B. Gayle of Lake Charles, president of the Louisiana Cattlemen's association, addressed the assemblage, giving a brief history of the cattle industry and presenting an exhaustive discussion of the problems confronting the cattleman of America at the present time. Other speakers were C. T. Dowell, director of the experiment station at L. S. U., J. W. Bateman, director of agriculture extension department of L. S. U.; Steve Voelker, secretary of the Tallulah Productive Credit association and W. T. Cobb, beef cattle specialist of L. S. U. The 4-H clubs of the state were represented by John Hughes of East Feliciana parish.

PARISH HIGH STUDENTS GIVE PLAY, 'HONOR WINS'

A group of students of the Ouachita Parish High school, under the direction of Mrs. T. V. Simmons and Miss Zelda Moss, faculty members, presented a play entitled "Honor Wins," by Olive Parker, before the student body Friday afternoon.

Characters of the play were portrayed by Sam Walker, Eva Dale Coon, Billy Chappell, Bill Mays, Rudy Vandenberg, Chester DeCuir, Barbara Butler, Tommy Wyatt and George Stovall.

Mrs. George Moffett and Miss Ann Platt, members of the faculty, handled the stage arrangements.

PUBLIC URGED TO PURCHASE SEALS

Large Number Have Been Sent Out Through Mails; Returns Slow

While receipts of money in payment of Christmas seals are coming in daily to the office of the Ouachita Tuberculosis and Public Health association, returns are not as rapid as desired, Miss Bernice Wright, executive secretary, reported yesterday.

Miss Wright pointed out that this is in reality a community project and that all should seek to have a part, no matter how small, in the work. This year interest is heightened by the fact that a new tuberculosis sanatorium is being erected in this parish to care for cases.

Every seal that is issued to the local group has to be accounted for to the national association, hence it is important that the cash be received through the mails or when one is not able to remit, the seals should be returned.

The goal set this year is $5,000 and if all will do their part, this end can be realized, Miss Wright assured.
